CSUSB
College holds 6th graduation

Nearly 700 graduates were recognized June 16 as CSCSB conducted its sixth commencement exercise.

This year, there were 675 Bachelor of Arts degrees presented, six Masters of Arts and the college's first Bachelor of Science degree.

Approximately 450 persons marched in royal blue robes in the traditional procession. The commencement speaker was Dr. James G. Bond, president of California State University at Sacramento.

The Alumni Association had free coffee for the graduates before the event -- and it appeared to be welcome after a cookout in which the refreshment, beer, also was provided by the Association.

The Alumni joined with the Junior Class in recognizing the graduates at the cookout affair earlier in the day near the P.E. facilities. Guest speakers at that event, black spokesman Gary Lawton and Cal Worthington, provided an interesting juxtaposition. Worthington, the Western personality who saturates Los Angeles television with auto commercials, brought along his "dog," Spot, a baby elephant. Spot made a hit with the children while the adults listened to a guitar-strumming Clabe Hangan ... and drank beer.

Don't forget

Money status

Total cash assets of the Association stand at $1,196 as of June 12, according to a report presented to the alumni Board of Directors.

Expenditures, for Panorama printing and postage, totaled $287.47. Revenue, in the form of new memberships this year, amounted to $487.50.

A budget for this fiscal year has been considered by the board and it includes such items as donations to the college's emergency loan fund for students and an Alumni Scholarship to the college.

Details of the adopted budget will be reported in the next issue of Panorama.
New studies announced

New degree programs, some of which may be of interest to alumni, have been approved for the college.

The new studies include additions to the undergraduate curriculum, new minors in two areas (Philosophy and Physical Education and Recreation) and proposals, still awaiting approval, for broadening the master's programs.

New bachelor programs:
---Child Development
---Environmental Studies
---Liberal Studies

Coming in the future are these bachelor programs:
---Criminal Justice
---Health Science
---Nursing

Master's programs awaiting approval:
---Administration
---Psychology

They will join MA degrees currently available in elementary and secondary education, areas in which the college presented its first degrees at commencement this year.

The college received word on June 11 that it will be able to offer the Recreation minor in the forthcoming academic year. This program should be of particular interest to current and prospective elementary and secondary school teachers as it will provide a background for students in recreation and leisure studies and prepare them for employment in the areas of recreation leadership and programming.

More information on these programs is available from the college.

YES, I am coming to the Alumni Cookout on July 28th.

ALUMNI COOKOUT at college P. E. area, 2 p.m. July 28.

"Future Shock," movie in PS 10 9a.m., noon, 7p.m. Jul 31.

Record study

In one of the largest summer study enrollments in college history, 760 students are signed up for over 80 summer sessions, courses and workshops. This is a 25 per cent increase over last year's registration.

Only three classes, the least amount ever, were cancelled due to low enrollment. Fred Roach, dean of Continuing Education, states that registration will continue up until the beginning of the last one-week class, Aug. 6, including three-week courses beginning July 9 and 30 and short courses on July 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6.

Alumni event is July 28...

Shades of the original campus cookouts will reappear at the Cal-State P.E. area on Saturday July 28, as the Alumni Association stages its summer social.

"We wanted to provide the alumni with a chance to visit with past classmates," said association VP Konnie Sheeran, "and give their families something different to do on a Saturday afternoon."

Participants should bring their picnic meals, as well as eating and cooking utensils. The association is providing charcoal fires for the communal barbeque pits, soda and beer.

Activities begin at 2 p.m. Swimming, volleyball, baseball and special games for children are planned. Parking is available at the P.E. area.
