A journalism workshop was created with Dee Conley as its chairman. The purpose of the workshop is to improve the quality of the paper's journalism by giving it a greater degree of support. Sessions are held twice daily, at 11 a.m. in L-114, and at 1 p.m. in the Pawprint office.

At these sessions, the fine points of journalism and newspaper organization will be discussed. Plans are being made for asking guest lecturers from local papers to speak regarding student publications and the news media in general. The workshop is open to anyone interested in journalism.

The Pawprint is currently being reorganized, and a new staff members are needed. The paper is an entirely voluntary effort, and those interested are invited to participate. They may do so by contacting either Ben Jacques or Dee Conley.

Smog
People's Lobby Signature Drive

The People's Lobby drive to end smog is taking more definite form as a result of 25 signature drives made. This weekend the initiative drive gained the support of California State College, Bernardino's faculty with four professors actively gathering signatures at super-markets.

Ten members of the student body are actively involved in the weekend signature-gathering work. The general intent of the People's Lobby drive is to end smog by placing the burden of smog control on industries which are responsible for the emissions and on automoblie manufacturers, which produce smog-emitting automobiles.

Specifically they intend to do this by bringing to the voters two initiatives: a constitutional amendment guaranteeing the citizen to a clean environment (land, sea and air), and a piece of legislation giving a five-year program for bringing the smog level down to one percent of its present level.

Several lawyers have attested to the legality of the two documents.

Trustees Pass
Student Press Guidelines

In most cases, this would entail the appointment of campus "editorial boards.

The first five of the six resolutions were passed in committee.

The resolution removed from the recommendation concerned the directive by the Chancellor that all campuses follow the nine-point policy.

However, the fifth resolution was allowed to stand. This directed that campuses adhere to the Code of Ethics of Columnists and Journalists of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the Statement of Policy of California Newspaper Publishers Association.

Earlier, a brief pool of campus editors was taken by GAVEL.

Student Power
Should Students Affect CSCSB Policies?

Should students be represented on the Faculty Senate? Serve on important college governing committees such as the Senate Committee on Curriculum? If so, what should their role be?

Questions on these matters will be asked students next week in a questionnaire prepared by the Ad Hoc Group. The fiery Ad Hoc Group, the Student-Faculty Policy-Making, according to Professor Elliot Barkan, chairman.

The questionnaire will focus on student representation to the Faculty Senate and to three standing committees – the most sensitive ones, says Barkan. These three committees are Tenure – Promotion; Tenure, Curriculum, and Admissions; and Academic Standards.

For several months this ad hoc committee has been studying what part students should have in faculty in determining college policies and decisions affecting them.

Besides deciding whether or not students should serve on decision-making bodies and the nature of that possible representation, procedure for electing students to the governing bodies would have to be decided.

The committee's present study is, further, a part of an overall analysis of all College governing processes – administration, faculty and student.

By questioning students about these matters, the ad hoc committee hopes to realize the feeling most students as well as faculty members have about College decision-making, an important consideration for recommendations the ad hoc committee will be making to the Faculty Senate by February 1, 1970, according to Barkan.

The committee's under study presently work in the following manner: the Retention – Promotion – Tenure (RPT) committee functions on three levels, departmental, divisional, and College-wide (as does the Curriculum committee), basing its recommendations on the instructor’s service as a researcher, teacher and on his service to the College, such as membership on committees. At present only tenured, full professors serve on the RPT committee. Final decisions are made by the President.

The Curriculum committee initiates and reviews curriculum and instructional policies, including new courses, new majors, senior seminars, and general studies programs. The Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards acts on admissions policies, probation, disqualification and readmittees, grants for scholarships and financial aid, and procedures and practices for grading, auditing, class hours and challenging.

As of today, the ad hoc committee members are: students – Al Coffeen, Joe McKee and Josh Sager; faculty – Professor Elliot Barkan, Clark Mayo and Gerald Scherba.

Should Grass be Legalized?

By NANCY SAUNDERS

I am gradually becoming tired of searching my soul for topics of current interest for this column. By current I mean matters of pressing importance to most students (not that many are concerned anyway). The use of marijuana is not restricted to any certain time period; and is not confined to sporadic bursts of interest, although a friend recently suggested to me that one day in the week be set aside for weed-smoking activities (ORGY, PORGY, PADDING AND PIE, EVERY TUESDAY WE'LL GET HIGH). He dreamed that the Board of Trustees is considering CSCSB as the site for intensive research into drug use, with students at the logical guinea-pigs for psychodelic experiments. I suggest that Chancellor Dumbke volunteer himself first.

"OPINION... MARIJUANA
"Do you think that marijuana should be legalized?"

BILL MADDUX senior-political science: "I think that prohibition of marijuana usage by the U.S. government represents the same type of misunderstanding and insincerity which surrounded alcohol prohibition. One of the less turned-on nationwide magazines, those in Hue. We ought to enlighten those who have never had any painful experience with the Vietnamese Communists. I mean the narrow-minded ones who are unable to see the dangers of Communism to all mankind. They are the Senators and Congressmen who stand for defensism, the people who will organize a demonstration against the self-defense efforts of the South Vietnamese people and their allies against aggressive communism. I only ask the Americans to have the courage (continued on page 4)

PLAYBOY, currently estimates regular marijuana users to be more than 17 million. There have been quite a number of clinical and other research studies of the effects of the drug (which is not addictive nor does it cause euphoria; read TIME, or TIME, or TIME, or TIME, edited by David Solomon) which have shown that even prolonged usage of the drug does not cause any physical damage — and the only possible psychological damage — which the user often re-evaluates later, I think it should be legalized."

MARY CORREA, freshman philosophy: "I don't think it should be legalized because it can lead to use of dangerous drugs that can completely ruin a person. It can lead to heroin addiction, and if everyone could smoke it young enough, it would be more susceptible. They don't realize the real dangers of drug use. Marijuana is not really bad, but the fact is that it can lead to heavy use is its drawback." DAVE LOCKWOOD, freshman microbiology: "I don't think it should be legalized. The overwhelming majority of the people do not want it legalized, based on the fact that those in the drug use, any more than chocolate milk does. They say that a large percentage of heroes who've been addicted started with pot, well, a large percentage of people have probably smoked like a drug, so the smthung leads to heroin addiction."

KATHY MCDONALD junior sociology: "I think marijuana should be legalized, but not so that people could use it without any restriction, it should be legalized, but not so that people could get it easier. It should be legalized to get rid of organized crime and the black market control over it. I also think that alcohol is legal, so why do we need to both of them, because they think they can get away with something. If it is legalized they won't take the attitude and think it to be such a big thing."

RAPE: It was noted that many campuses already adhere to the policies regarding rape. Most are also in agreement to the Canons of Journalism, as they have been used in the past.

Objection was raised, however, to the use of the word "control." The word "control" was completely eliminated from the resolution passed. "Methods of control" was suggested for "methods of control," as an example.
Harper Appointed to Head Constitutional Revision Committee

By MARY WHITBY, Senate secretary

Under new business the following five items were discussed: Tom McBride was appointed as Senate Parliamentarian; Mike Ross submitted a resolution to change the wording to the document concerning standing committees. This change now allows new members to be appointed at the expiration of terms at the end of the current school year — it read before that members were appointed indefinitely to a standing Committee.

The Senate approved the appointment of Tom Fitzpatrick and Roger Wade to the Judicial Committee. Mike Ross was appointed to the Appropriations Committee to fill the vacated seat, and Roger Wade to the Judicial Committee. The Harper and Clark Constitutional Revision Committee to fill the vacated seat, and Roger Wade to the judicial Committee.

It was decided by the Senate that there is a definite need for a Constitutional Revision Committee. Senate President Martin Brown appointed Ken Harper as Chairman to this Committee. It was decided that Ken would select the members of the Committee from students who express a concern and a desire to revise the Constitution of CSCSB.

Under Old Business it was stated that the Financial Office had received over five thousand signatures, and in precincting the initiative to the Senate little chance for gathering signatures.

The Senate approved the by the Appropriations Committee. The Harper and Clark Resolutions were further discussed — especially the 45th page from the document.

Under new business the following five items were discussed:

- Authorization of Senate to pre-register students for the winter quarter.
- Approval of the 1969-1970 budget. This item will be discussed next week.
- Approval of the appointment of Tom Fitzpatrick as Senate Secretary for the year 1969-1970.
- Approval of the appointment of Tom Fitzpatrick as Senate Secretary for the year 1969-1970.
- Approval of the appointment of Tom Fitzpatrick as Senate Secretary for the year 1969-1970.

Senator absent: Marty Mccleland, Jr. Class.

Saturday night's concert, featuring Fair Beall, Middle Earth, and the Youngbloods, was a financial failure but really good time for those who bothered to come. A crown of an estimated 1,000 did attend; and, surprisingly enough, only a small minority of those were CSCSB students. Nevertheless, the atmosphere was pleasant and the music good. Fair Beall, composed of a girl lead and several guys, was slightly reminiscent of Janie Joplin (Big Brother and the Holding Company). Their songs sounded original, though, and the crowd seemed to think they were fine. Middle Earth, considered by some to be the highlight of the night, did a heavy rock thing and even made Elvis Presley's "Hound Dog Man" sound better than he did. At this point in the concert many people began to dance and really came on to the sound.

The Youngbloods performed in conclusion and seemed tame compared to Middle Earth. They produced a polished, mellow sound that seemed quite professional. Many people left during their performance, which may be indicative of any number of things, but the Youngbloods were beautiful and the response favorable.

At this point it is only speculative as to whether or not CSCSB will sponsor any more concerts. Had this one been more profitable, things might be looking better. But looking better...

Review
"Young Blood" Concert Produces "mellow sounds"

By NANCY SAUNDERS

AB President Barry Thompson recently expressed his satisfaction with the outcome of last Saturday night's Youngbloods concert. Thompson said that in spite of the disappointing crowd of only 800-900 the show as not a failure and the ASB had "learned a lot." He emphasized that this was the first time the ASB had sponsored a concert and that they had expected to lose about $500 in financial failure but a really good time for those who bothered to come. A crown of an estimated 1,000 did attend; and, surprisingly enough, only a small minority of those were CSCSB students.

Though Concert Loses Money
Thompson Terms It Success

ASB President Barry Thompson recently expressed his satisfaction with the outcome of last Saturday night's Youngbloods concert. Thompson said that in spite of the disappointing crowd of only 800-900 the show as not a failure and the ASB had "learned a lot." He emphasized that this was the first time the ASB had sponsored a concert and that they had expected to lose about $500 in the new experience. They had lost, however, more than expected. He said the loss for the ASB amounted to about $1,800, and a similar amount had been lost by The Portable Head, who had produced the show.

Thompson gave as possible reasons for the poor attendance the competition with upcoming events at the Orange Show Grounds, confusion resulting from the mis-spelling of Eric Burdon's name on handbills, and the inexperience of the ASB in sponsoring the show. He said he was pleased with the cooperation of those in charge and said a future concert was being planned for the winter quarter.

Sincerity of your convictions.

The silent majority are the American people. The latest Gallup polls show that 77% of the public approved of the way President Nixon has been handling Viet Nam. They are also schools like the College of Orlando, which did not allow classes to be cancelled, did not issue an official statement supporting the moratorium, but not have a local rally, and did not allow students to create posters supporting the moratorium.

The students are like the ones at Florida Technical University and the College of Orlando, who organized and supported a blood donors campaign for veterans wounded in Viet Nam. William G. Caldwell, Dean of Student Affairs at the College of Orlando says: "The College of Orlando, following its long known concepts of Christianity and patriotism, dealt with the moratorium in its own way, and has followed the middle of the road in its teaching while supporting our government and the American way of life."

Think about this...most of the national coordinators for the moratorium have been identified with Communists or admit to being Communists. Now, if you believe in peace — after you finish your demonstrations — leave and continue the demonstrations on the streets of Moscow, Hanoi, Peking, Cairo, and Havana. This way you might show all of us your real purpose and the sincerity of your convictions.
