College Offers New M.A. Education Degree

A master's degree program in education is now being offered at CSCSB. In order to be admitted into the program, which is designed primarily for elementary teachers, a candidate must have a valid teaching credential or have had teaching experience and possess a bachelor's degree with a minimum 2.5 GPA in undergraduate work and a minimum 3.0 in education course work. The M.A. requires a core of nine courses of five graduate level education classes and four electives. The Department of Education also has plans underway to begin as soon as possible a master's degree for secondary school teachers.

Interested individuals can receive additional information from the college's Education Department.

Membership Proposal

At its next meeting the Executive Board of the Association will consider a proposed constitutional amendment which would permit persons obtaining a credential from CSCSB to be eligible for Active Membership status.

At the present time only graduates are technically eligible for membership.

Major Curriculum Changes,
New Look for 'Old' CSCSB

Following the recommendations of a special college Task Force Committee, President John M. Pfau has announced several major changes in college curriculum effective at this time.

Foreign language has been dropped as a college-wide graduation requirement, although course work and the majors in foreign language are still offered. Now only these departmental majors require foreign language courses as part of their curricula: Chemistry, Philosophy, Humanities, and English.

As part of the new look for CSCSB, the number of required general studies units has been reduced from 90 to 65 quarter units, which places the college near the average general studies unit requirements of the other institutions within the state college and university system. The new program provides more options and flexibility for students.

These changes grew out of the interim report of the Task Force which made its recommendations last spring. In the fall this committee is expected to give a final report which will reflect the group's study and recommendations on other areas of campus life.

Membership in Task Force, chaired by Dr. Al Egge, included students, faculty and administrators.

Med School Entrant

Benjamin Rodriguez, a biology major at Cal State, San Bernardino, has been awarded a full-tuition scholarship at Cornell University Medical School. He is the first CSCSB graduate to be accepted directly in medical school. After he passed the Medical College Admissions Test, Cornell University brought him to New York for an interview and offered him a fellowship which includes housing. Rodriguez has not yet chosen a specialty but he plans to practice in Puerto Rico after completion of his studies.

LIBRARY, GYM USE

Library borrowing privileges and use of the Gym facilities are available to Active Members of the Alumni Association who present current membership cards.

Since the "college use policy" was adopted last winter many members have used the offerings of these college departments. Some alumni have expressed their disappointment that the gym use is not extended to their families under existing policy. The Physical Education Department has explained that alumni are considered guests, and that guests themselves cannot bring other guests to use the facility. Alumni who wish to express themselves on this issue are invited to write to the incoming Alumni Association president in care of Doyle Stansel, Alumni Coordinator.

All alumni are reminded that alumni gym use and library borrowing privileges are limited to those who have paid dues for the current year and have been issued Active Membership cards.
