Dr. Albert Karnig to take over reins at Cal State, San Bernardino in August

The advancement of higher education is quite clear. We are very pleased that he will be bringing those qualities to San Bernardino.

Karnig, 55, has served in his current position since 1988. He is responsible for various academic activities, including programs and instruction, budgeting processes, diversity initiatives and outcomes, outreach programs and academic planning and standards.

During his tenure he has helped lead the university’s successful Higher Education reaccreditation and through revision of the university’s strategic plan, supervised the creation of several new centers, institutes and academic programs; developed new academic standards; and encouraged growth of the honors program and student retention initiatives.

The New York City native previously served from 1986-88 as vice president for academic affairs at Arizona State University, where he helped develop a five-year strategic plan for the institution.

He served on the faculty at Wyoming, ASU, Texas Tech University and the University of Texas at Austin. He has written two books and published more than 50 articles and monographs. He also has served as a National Science Foundation referee and on editorial boards of several journals. He has conducted research projects for the U.S. Department of Labor, National Institutes of Health, the Brookings Institute and other agencies.

He earned a BA Degree in Political Science from the University of Illinois, a MA and Ph.D. Degree in Political Science from the University of Texas at Austin.

Dr. Albert K. Karnig
New President of Cal State University, San Bernardino

Dr. Albert K. Karnig, provost and vice president for academic affairs at the University of Wyoming, was recently named president of California State University, San Bernardino by the CSU Board of Trustees. He will assume his new position in August, when Anthony Evans will retire from office after serving 15 years as CSU San Bernardino president.

"I am excited about this opportunity and delighted with the confidence shown in me by the CSU Board of Trustees," said Karnig. "I have greatly enjoyed my years at the University of Wyoming and leaving my colleagues will be difficult. However, I also am quite impressed with the people I met at CSU. I look forward to working with them and other students, faculty and staff as well as with the San Bernardino community. Cal-State, San Bernardino is an exceptional institution with extraordinary personnel and excellent facilities."

"Albert Karnig has the experience, personal characteristics and vision to lead CSU San Bernardino into the 21st century," said CSU Trustee Ralph Pesquera. "His strong commitment to the advancement of higher education is quite clear. We are very pleased that he will be bringing those qualities to San Bernardino."
San Bernardino - According to data released today by the California Department of Education (CDE), after declining for a decade, the 1995-96 high school dropout rate in San Bernardino county has risen to 4.7 percent. The county wide dropout rate for 1994-95 was 3.9 percent. Since June of 1986, the dropout rate in the county has experienced a steady decline of 61.8 percent. In comparison, the state dropout rate declined 56.2 percent during the same time period.

"County wide, we have experienced a slight increase in the overall dropout rate, yet it's important to note that the majority of districts in San Bernardino county had a decrease in their dropout rate from the previous year," commented Barry Pulliam, county superintendent. "In the last ten years, we have cut the percentage of county dropouts by over 60 percent. While we are pleased with these results over the past decade, we need to reexamine and reinvigorate our efforts to reduce the total number of dropouts."

Fifteen districts in the county showed a decrease in their dropout rate from the previous year. Seven districts showed an increase.

"Some of the factors which have contributed to the increase in dropout rates are the large number of students attending continuation, alternative and charter schools. Some of these schools have had a very high dropout rate that impacts the district and county wide totals, but it is not a trend we are seeing in the average district," said John Duffy, research analyst for the San Bernardino county Superintendent of Schools (SBCSS).

According to Duffy, the report shows that other state dropout rate for 1995-96 is 3.9 percent which continues a statewide 10 year decline. The prior year's state dropout rate was 4.4 percent. Fifteen districts in San Bernardino county had dropout rates below the state average and seven districts in the county had dropout rates above the state average. The national dropout rate was 5.3 percent in 1994-95, the most recent year available. Seventeen districts in the county had dropout rates at or below the national average and five districts in the county had dropout rates that exceeded the national average. County wide, there are a number of programs in place to serve students at risk of dropping out of school, according to Jane Smith, SBCSS associate superintendent for Curriculum/Instruction. Students who years ago would not have graduated, are served in a number of alternative education and independent study programs.

"In addition, our schools are providing students with more options to connect their academic studies to the world of work and help them to prepare for college," said Smith. "We need to continue these types of programs which help our students see their education is relevant and if they don't graduate from high school, their future options will be limited."

Dropout data are collected from grades 7 through 12, only data for grades 9 through 12 are presented as illustrated:

New High School for S.B.

Students in the San Bernardino City Unified School District can look forward to attending a brand new high school in the next few years. The process going, the school district is purchasing 72 parcels of land on the west side of San Bernardino, south of Base Line and west of Madison Avenue. The 210,000 square-foot school will sit on 51 acres. Cost of purchasing the land and other fees will be covered by money earned from a 1996 school bond, but the district will need to pass another bond to pay the cost of construction.

Scott Shira, director of facilities, said the land purchase is part of the enrollment growth process. The new school will serve 2,300 students and relieve cramped quarters at the district's four other comprehensive high school campuses. To cut costs and save time, the district adopted the architectural plans of the future Kaiser High School in Ontario. San Bernardino added a performing arts center and modified some of the other buildings. Construction is expected to take about three years.
A Fathers Day Message

By Dr. Ruben Barron (Deputy Supt., Instruction, Hesperia U.S.D.)

In today we celebrate a day of global and historical significance. This is a good time to reflect on the meaning of fatherhood. In prehistoric days, man’s primary role was a hunter and provider for his immediate and communal family. With the advent of agriculture, he no longer became necessary to hunt wild beasts to sustain one’s family. Whole communities settled in fertile lands where corn and other foods prospered under the guidance of man in his new role as farmer, while retaining his previous functions of provider and family protector. Later, various cultures and political regions embraced the industrial era and the information age. These periods produced great societal changes. For example, the automobile created a mobile society in which man often travels great distances to perform a variety of jobs. Dads no longer enjoy the same opportunities as their ancestors to guide their sons while working along side of them.

New and dramatic transformations in our changing society continue to modify and define the role of dads. In addition to confronting modern issues like AIDS, dads from bicultural backgrounds must deal with questions of race, like AIDS, dads from bicultural backgrounds. In California, we have many dads, including mine, who have forsaken their native country in pursuit of a better future for their children. For what dads have done and continue to do, and most importantly for who you are, I wish you esteem through a positive event.

WHAT'S NEW SUMMER FASHION SHOW AT CAROUSEL MALL

The Merchants at Carousel Mall will present a What’s New Summer Fashion Show on Saturday, June 14 at 2:00 PM in the lower level Harris’ Court. The free show will feature new fashions from the malls apparel stores. Models are volunteers from the areas local high schools. The goal of the program is to present a community event using local teens of all shapes and sizes with no modeling experience and build their self-esteem in the process.

has forsaken his responsibilities as head of the household. The fact is that times and circumstances have changed and affected everyone, men, women and children alike.

Nonetheless, dads should learn from the past to prepare youngsters for their future recognizing that while we need not repeat the past, we must neither ignore it. It is imperative to recognize that our youth’s future is different from ours and that they need different skills to attain success. For example, computer knowledge is now needed to repair modern cars, making specialized, technical training necessary. Dads must make time to converse with their children, encouraging them to express their opinions even when they differ from their own. This is difficult for those who don’t understand that it takes a strong man to be gentle. Children must be respected so they can learn to respect and should never be degraded. They need to hear their dads express confidence in their dreams and support for their plans. If this does not occur at home, it surely will elsewhere and could lead to destructive behaviors or gang activity.

Today, dads face more complex responsibilities than before. It can be any other way, since we live in a much more complex society reflected in our daily lives. Yet, after a year each day we see dads who maintain their dignity in defiance of society’s ills.

Throughout history dads have been challenged to solve new problems and they have done so heroically and often through completely selfless behaviors. In California, we have many dads, including mine, who have forsaken their jobs, homes, friends, and even their native country in pursuit of a better future for their children. For what dads have done and continue to do, and most importantly for who you are, I wish you a pleasant and memorable father’s day. Muchas gracias.

Association of Mexican-American Educators Latino of the Year & Scholarship Awards

The Association of Mexican-American Educators and San Bernardino Community College District Latino Faculty, Staff and Administrators Association held the Latino of the Year and Scholarship Awards Banquet at the San Bernardino Valley College.

Mel Albiso, AMAE President and Master of Ceremonies greeted the 225 educators, students and community activists. "More than ever, we are increasing the enrollment of our Hispanic students at colleges and universities throughout the Southwest. Our chapter makes a small but important contributions to our young people through scholarships and recognition for their educational achievements," he said.

Frank Reyes, Special Assistant to the College District President, recognized elected officials, education administrators and community persons.

AMAE was organized in 1968 by Hispanic educators to annually recognize members of the teaching profession and organize appropriate events throughout the state. The events had previously been a Mexican tradition for many decades.

In 1982, a bill sponsored by AMAE became California law and was called, "DAY OF THE TEACHER." The second day of May of each year has been designated for this celebration.

Andrew Hernandez named '97 National Veterans Small Business Advocate of the Year

Jessie Brown, Secretary, Dept. of Veterans Affairs (right) congratulates Andrew Hernandez on award.

Andrew Hernandez, owner of Arid Construction Technologies, Inc., San Bernardino, was named the 1997 National Veterans Small Business Advocate of the Year, and was honored by Congressman George Brown, Small Business Administrator Aida Alvarez and Jesse Brown, Secretary, Department of Veterans Affairs, during ceremonies in Washington during Small Business Week.

"I am extremely pleased in honoring Mr. Hernandez, San Bernardino's leading veteran entrepreneur, for his exceptional personal achievements," stated Brown. "We must never forget that small-businesses are the engine that drives our economy. It is people like Mr. Hernandez that will keep America number one."

Brown stated that Hernandez, by setting an example of dedication, integrity and innovation, creates the role model for small businesspersons across the country.

Congressman Brown, in honoring Hernandez, submitted his biography into the Congressional Record. Hernandez, 50, was born in San Bernardino, the son of Arturo and Rosalie Hernandez, and for 11 years, lived in a trailer due to his father following traveling from construction project to project, while he was foreman for the Kasler Construction Company.

The family settled in Rialto and Hernandez graduated from Eisenhower High School. He was drafted into the Army in 1966, and later served in Vietnam as an infantryman, reaching the rank of sergeant. He received the Air Medal and Bronze Star for over 100 air assaults. He later contact malaria and additionally was injured in a truck accident. Returning to the States, he discharged in 1968 and received an allotment as a service-connected disabled veteran.

Under the GI Bill of Rights, he enrolled and later graduated from San Bernardino Valley College and the University of California at Riverside, where he received a BA in Political Science and graduated with honors in 1974.

Working in construction jobs during college and deciding that would be his trade, he worked hard, reaching the position of superintendent in two years!

He decided to start his own business and within three years, had contract jobs within the $250 thousand range. ACT is in its 11th year of operation, which started with two employees, and now has 13 employees on its payroll, with a current $2.7 million child care center project.

Hernandez serves as a model for small businesses and is very active in community work, which also includes his employees. ACT donates materials and manpower to projects like the children's museum, March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon and Habitat for Humanity, and is a frequent speaker at local schools, talking to youth about the advantages and disadvantages of being a businessperson.

“I'm delighted to have been appointed president of the California State University, San Bernardino campus. Without question, I’ve inherited a remarkably fine university—with a long history of excellent academic programs and an increasingly diverse student population. Latinos represent a large sector of the region’s population and I’m deeply committed to making it a priority to increase the rate at which Latinos and others attend college in our service area. After I arrive in mid-August, I look forward to meeting with citizens throughout the Inland Empire. As I visit various communities, I’ll especially welcome input on ways to achieve our goal of enhancing educational opportunity,” said Dr. Albert K. Karnig.
