TIM PRINCE OFFICIALLY ENTERS CONGRESSIONAL RACE

Prince outlined the key proposals in his forthcoming campaign: invest in education and the elimination of the No Child Left Behind with an education program with greater input at the local level, including teacher expertise; the healthcare plan for 45 million people without medical services; program to aid families losing their homes to foreclosures; solution to closings in the Iraq War; creating jobs for million of workers due to the recession; need to invest in American workers, not outsourcing jobs, and spend precious dollars on ramping up a preemptive war.

Prince stated that the American people need to provide moral leadership in the world starting with Iraq, where we should be drawing down troops, not escalating the war. He also stated the need to end the addiction to foreign oil.

In 1990, Prince was born and raised in San Bernardino and graduated from San Bernardino High School in 1993 with Highest Honors. He attended the University of California, Berkeley, graduating with Highest Honors and Distinction in Scholarships.

Prince, the son of Ralph H. Prince, who was elected seven times as City Attorney of San Bernardino (the longest tenure in the city's history), attended the University of California, Hastings College of Law, again, receiving scholarships, including the Lewis King Scholarship and Leonard Family Scholarship. He also worked at various jobs to support his education. He served as law review editor and earned his Juris Doctor in 1990. Thereafter, he served under Judge Marcus Kaufman.

Prince has practiced law for 15 years, previously with Borror, Dunn, Judge Marcus Kaufman.

JOY FLINT-DEDICATION TO NURSING FOR FIVE DECADES-PLUS

Flint began her career as a student nurse in 1951 in the former county hospital on Gilbert Street. At that time, San Bernardino School of Nursing, had a campus on the hospital grounds where the students taught academic classes. Students worked in the medical units in the evening and weekends. "We also worked extra shifts for ten dollars and baby sat for the physicians," she said.

Flint’s first job was on the night shift in the medical surgical unit. She recalls taking care of 20 patients with a co-nursing attendant. "Nothing was disposable. We reused every thing including catheters, NG tubes, used needles were sterilized and sharpened on a pumice stone, and we did what was necessary," she said.

At that time, there was a chief resident doctor, three surgical residents, three medical residents and 13 interns, 500 patients including the TB wards and burn patients.

Since then Flint has worked every unit except ‘labor and delivery.'

In 1967, when Flint was head nurse in the medical unit (in the former county hospital), she was asked by then Director of Nurses Mrs.

A large audience of San Bernardino County political activists, friends and family, with the background music of Chris Davis, practices that are currently under Congressional District. We have had months of deliberation and consulting with my family, I am officially announcing my candidacy for the 4th Congressional District at The Mitten Building in Redlands, currently held by Congressman Jerry Lewis, R-Redlands.

In addressing the highly charged audience, Prince stated, "After many months of deliberation and consulting with my family, I am officially announcing my candidacy for the 41st Congressional District. We have had an incumbent that has held this office for too many terms, and he has tainted the position with questionable ethical practices that are currently under scrutiny by the office of Attorney General in Los Angeles."

Prince alluded to the alleged charges and public statements regarding Congressman Lewis’ legislative practices on earmarks and legislative scrutiny by the office of Attorney of San Bernardino (the original San Bernardino County Hospital on Gilbert Street. Photo by IEDH.

Since 1951 to the present time, Mrs. Joy Flint has dedicated decades, in fact, 57 years in the nursing profession: student nurse, staff nurse, manager, supervisor and assistant director of nursing.

Throughout her nursing career, Flint has portrayed a symbol of what the nursing profession represents: caring for the total welfare of the patient and a role model for co-workers and the many who have worked under her supervision.

“When I think of Joy Flint, words like passionate, committed, high standards, mentor, sense of humor, and other words come to mind. The ‘status quo’ of nursing was not acceptable to her, and she challenged her peers and supervisors to see more, do more, and believe we had the power to make a difference. When nursing was just beginning to break out of its traditional mold, stretch its wings expand its scope-she was one step ahead and willing to navigate the waters,” Debbie Lamb, RN said.

“Her caring, love, knowledge, and skills as a nurse come to mind. She was a nurse in the true sense of the word. She not only knew her patients, but also knew their families and every detail of their lives. She was a true professional and a leader. She was a nurse and a mentor. She was a leader and a teacher,” Debbie Lamb, RN said.

“Joy was always there for her patients, ready to help them in any way she could. She was a true friend and a caring person. She will be missed by many,” Debbie Lamb, RN said.

"When it came to make a reality what had been a dream, 'a new hospital', Joy was there—leading the transition team, carefully planning, guiding, and directing. When the last patient arrived in 1999, and opened for business, she went with relief, and a sadness for an 'old abandoned friend' (the old county hospital), but mostly with pride.”

JESUS ANDRADE JOINS ASSEMBLY CARTER'S STAFF UNDER THE PRESTIGIOUS JESSE MARVIN UNRUH FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

Jesús Munguia Andrade was working with high school students in a college outreach program when he learned the importance of a bill sponsored by District 62 Assembly Member Wilmer Amina Carter that was recently signed into law.

Andrade, who has chosen to become a legislative aide under the Jesse Marvin Unruh Fellowship Program, advised students on completing the A-G academic requirements necessary to gain admission to the UC or Cal State system. Carter's legislative efforts will require schools to notify in writing to parents and students of the A-G requirements.

Andrade said the law will help many students and families. "Students and parents need to understand what it takes to get into college. Sometimes it's too late to try to do all the academic requirements and for that reason alone they might end up not going to college at all," he said.

Andrade, 24, a 2007 graduate of Cal State Sacramento, was one of 18 people selected for the fellowship are the cream of the crop. "The people selected for the fellowship are the cream of the crop. I am honored that Andrade chose me to be his mentor, and also excited to have one of the best and brightest in the state," Assembly Member Carter said.

Gabnor, to open the burn unit. "Although initially reluctant about changing shifts, I felt this was a new concept and accepted to start the new burn unit," she said.

Flint took an orientation class, picked up policies and procedures from Orange County hospital and started the first burn unit with five patients. She served in the burn unit for approximately five years and thereafter appointed assistant director of nursing.

In 1990, the burn unit was named the Inland Counties Regional Burn Center and recently was renamed the Dr. Edward G. Hirschman Burn Center. The Burn Center is a 14 patient-bed capacity with state of the art advancements including inhalation equipment and improved medications. The average stay for patients is nine days, with additional outpatient care. The annual patient care averages 400 to 500, serving Riverside, San Bernardino, Inyo and Mono Counties.

Andrade and her husband, Bob, have been married for 50 years and parents of David, Debbie, Denise, and Dawn, 10 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

In 1998, Flint retired and the family moved to Palm Springs. She continues to frequently work on an on-call basis. "Although the hospital has changed, nursing has changed, ARMC is my home away from home."

LEASE OPTIONS: HOW THEY HELP BUYERS AND SELLERS

(NAFS)—In the current real estate market, the door has been closed to homebuyers who need 100 percent financing or don't have a large down payment. This means about half of potential buyers no longer qualify for a home loan. It also means that sellers have fewer qualified buyers for their homes.

One thing that is helping both home sellers and home buyers in this difficult market is the lease option. Using the lease option strategy could help people to buy or sell their home in this difficult market.

What is a Lease Option?

A combination of contracts that gives a tenant/buyer the choice to purchase a property at an agreed upon price within a specified time frame.

In a slowing real estate market lease options help homebuyers buy and home sellers sell.

Benefits to Buyers

• Occupy a property with very little capital.
• Use the lease option term to improve credit scores.
• Move into the home they desire without traditional financing.
• Helps lenders make more favorable loans.

Benefits to Sellers

• Sell their home without drastically lowering their sales price.
• Attract more buyers even in a slow seller's market.
• Collect a higher than average rent for their property.
• Get their mortgage or most of their mortgage paid during the lease option term.
• Avoid foreclosure, save their credit and their equity.

If you own a home and want to sell, or if you are looking to purchase a home but are having a hard time getting financing, it might be a good idea to learn how lease options work. Visit www.OptionPros.com or call (800)824-0479 to learn more.

HELPING CHILDREN IN CRISIS

By Ernie Allen

(NAFS)—Millions have already seen Ben Affleck’s powerful film “Gone Baby Gone,” based on the novel by Dennis Lehane (http://www.gonebabylone-the movie.com/). Many of them left the theater discussing and debating what they had just witnessed. It is a riveting police thriller but it is more than that. It portrays the moral and ethical dilemmas often faced by those trying to help children in crisis.

Do we do the “right thing” for a child? Or do we do what is required by law? It is a heart wrenching decision. Some reviewers called the film’s ending "unbelievable." Yet this is a dilemma faced every day by child welfare workers, law enforcement, judges and others across the country.

Is it in the best interests of a child to be taken out of an abusive, neglectful home and placed in one that is more caring and nurturing? Obviously. Yet what about taking a child from a poor family and placing him or her in a home that offers greater economic advantages and opportunities?

We are a nation of law, not emotions.

These dilemmas are faced by America’s Child Protective Service (CPS) workers every day. Often, our child welfare systems appear to be overwhelmed with the sheer magnitude of the dilemma. Yet without the rule of law, often, these decisions would be made on the basis of personal biases or emotions.

Judges and CPS workers must make decisions based on the risk of immediate harm to the child. A child cannot be taken away from his parent and awarded to someone else simply because of higher socio-economic status or the fact that they live in a nicer neighborhood. All parents have rights, including those whom we view as not as fit. Without CPS standards, we run the risk that children will be placed arbitrarily into situations with others whom society views as better able to provide for the child.

A fictional account of child abduction raises important ethical questions about child protection.

Ben Affleck and I spoke early in the process. I visited with him on the movie set. He wanted to be sure that the underlying elements in the film were fair and realistic. He wanted to understand child abduction and the types of victimization experienced by so many children. He worked tirelessly to make this fictional account of a child abduction and its aftermath as rooted in reality as possible. And he did a magnificent job.

Yes, it is a work of fiction, but it raises moral and ethical questions regarding the care and protection of America’s children that we must talk about as a nation. Fundamentally, it reminds us that there is no right way to do the wrong thing.

EXPRESSES CONCERN REGARDING THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE OKLAHOMA TAXPAYER AND CITIZEN PROTECTION ACT OF 2007

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK - The National Council of La Raza (NCLR), the largest national Hispanic civil rights and advocacy organization in the U.S., expressed deep concern about the impact of new state laws which appear to target illegal immigrants, but also have severe negative consequences for the entire Latino community.

Of particular concern is a law in Oklahoma which was implemented in late 2007, the Oklahoma Taxpayer and Citizen Protection Act of 2007. On January 24, in Oklahoma City, representatives from NCLR and its Affiliates will join Oklahoma state officials, parents, and other community leaders at a town hall to discuss the impact of the law and policy alternatives that address the real needs of all Oklahoma residents.

“We are a nation of laws and a nation of immigrants; however, laws like the one enacted in Oklahoma do more harm than good. They encourage treating all Hispanic people in the state as suspects and weaken havoc on our civil rights,” said Janet Murguia, President and CEO of NCLR.

The new Oklahoma law appears to be part of a trend at the state level. According to the National Conference of State Legislatures, more than 1,500 bills related to immigration were introduced in 2007 and more than 200 became law.

“While the failure of Congress to pass comprehensive immigration reform left a vacuum that states understandably feel obligated to address, the nation’s immigration problems will not be solved with a patchwork of state-level policies,” added Murguia.

“Too many states have passed laws that are costly, are practically impossible to enforce, and create a hostile atmosphere for all Hispanics by treating them as if they are in violation of the law by virtue of their ethnicity,” continued Murguia.

“As a nation of laws and a nation of immigrants; however, laws like the one enacted in Oklahoma do more harm than good. They encourage treating all Hispanic people in the state as suspects and weaken havoc on our civil rights,” said Janet Murguia, President and CEO of NCLR.

REP BACA VOTES TO EXPAND COLLEGE ACCESS, LOWER EDUCATION COSTS

WASHINGTON DC — Congressman Joe Baca (D-Rialto) today joined a bipartisan majority in the House of Representatives to vote for final passage of legislation that continues this Congress' efforts to make college more affordable and accessible for all Americans. The College Opportunity and Affordability Act (H.R. 4137) passed by a vote of 354 - 58, and helps to reform our nation's higher education system so that it operates in the best interests of students, boosts American competitiveness, and strengthens our future.

"With today's legislation, Congress continues its historic investment in higher education for all Americans," said Rep. Baca. "Recent reports show that college tuitions and fees have skyrocketed by 31% in the last five years. This bill addresses these rising costs by strengthening college readiness programs, ensuring that our states maintain their higher education funding commitments and holding colleges accountable for their price increases."

The College Opportunity and Affordability Act reauthorize the Higher Education Act through the year 2012. It ensures more qualified students can attend college by simplifying the federal student aid application process. The legislation also begins to address the issue of rising college costs by encouraging colleges to use innovative strategies to contain costs and fees.

"A college education continues to be the best path to success in America," added Rep. Baca. "After years of rising education costs, our low and moderate income families deserve a helping hand to make sure the doors of opportunity remain open to them."

In addition to addressing rising college prices, the College Opportunity and Affordability Act also builds on this Congress' commitment to invest in minority students. The legislation focuses on expanding college access and preparing minority students for competitive and innovative jobs, a key part of strengthening our workforce and our economy. H.R. 4137 will:

• Expand need-based aid for minority students by making Pell Grant scholarships available year round.

• Strengthen work-study programs that help colleges and universities pay the wages of eligible undergraduate and graduate students who are willing to work part-time to pay for tuition;

• Expands authorization levels for Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and creates a new graduate program for Hispanic-Serving Institutions; and

• Creates new partnership programs for Minority-Serving Institutions to help attract young students into science, engineering, technology, and mathematics fields.

"As our Inland economies continue to struggle, now more than ever it is important we commit ourselves to making college more affordable and accessible," concluded Rep. Baca. "I will continue to work so that every capable student has an equal chance at an education, no matter their income level or skin color."

LATINOS URGE TO GET AN EYE EXAM DURING GLAUCOMA AWARENESS MONTH
EyeCare America Campaign Raises Awareness that Latinos Are at Higher Risk for Glaucoma.

To commemorate National Glaucoma Awareness Month, EyeCare America in partnership with the Braille Institute and the California Academy of Eye Physicians & Surgeons launched an educational campaign called "California Latinos to get glaucoma eye exams as part of their New Year's resolutions.

This statewide campaign will promote early detection and treatment of glaucoma by raising awareness of risk factors, providing educational materials, and facilitating access to free eye examinations for uninsured eligible callers who will be directed to call a toll-free, year-round Glaucoma EyeCare Program helpline 1-800-391-3937

Almost 75% of Latinos with glaucoma are undiagnosed, according to the Los Angeles Latino Eye Study. Additionally, 76 percent of Latinos do not know that their ethnicity is a risk factor for glaucoma, according to The National American Health and Eye Disease Survey, conducted for The American Academy of Ophthalmology.

Glaucoma is a group of diseases that can damage the optic nerve of the eye. Primary open-angle glaucoma (POAG) is the most common form. It often has no warning signs and, if left untreated, can result in permanent vision loss or blindness. An estimated 6.7 million people have gone blind due to glaucoma, making it the second leading cause of blindness worldwide.

The EyeCare America campaign is being launched in partnership with the Braille Institute and The California Academy of Eye Physicians & Surgeons. For more information, including free educational materials and eye examination referral information, please visit www.eye-care.org.

HELPING GRANDPARENTS AND OTHER RELATIVES RAISE CHILDREN
(NAPS)—According to the 2000 U.S. Census, more than 4.5 million children are living in households headed by grandparents, with 2.4 million of these grandparents taking primary responsibility for their grandchildren's basic needs. And the issue of grandparents raising grandchildren is expected to increase in coming years.

Yet for many grandparents, finding out where to go for help has been easy; it can be difficult to locate information about the range of support services, benefits and policies available to grandparents raising children and other relatives in their caregiving roles. Fortunately, that changed in 2000 when a group of child and aging advocacy and research organizations developed the first edition of "GrandFacts: State Fact Sheets for Grandparents and Other Relatives Raising Children.

The fact sheets are designed to help relatives caregivers find out about resources in their states, and to reassure them that they are not alone. They are updated annually, and collectively compiled, edited and published by the AARP Foundation. The Brookdale Foundation Group, Casey Family Programs, Child Welfare League of America, Children's Defense Fund and Generations United.

According to Barbara Kates, director of the Maine Kids-n-Kin program, Families and Children Together, the fact sheets are one of her best and most relied upon resources. "We often get calls from grandparents who are concerned about their grandchildren out of state. It's great to be able to refer them to the State Fact Sheets so they can find out who is in that state can help them." They are available in English and Spanish, and provide helpful state-specific data and information on services and policies for grandparents raising grandchildren and other relatives raising children in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. They include:

- A list of selected state and local programs, services and other resources;
- A brief description of state foster care policies;
- Information about key public benefit programs;
- References to selected state laws; and (NAPS)—Americans say they have taken news about sodium to heart. But have they taken steps to protect their health?

More than 90 percent of people recently surveyed identified high blood pressure as one of the biggest health problems caused by high sodium intake. However, only a quarter of those surveyed were concerned about the level of sodium in their diets.

Their lack of concern could lead to a host of health problems, as high sodium intake has been linked to increased risk for heart disease, high blood pressure and stroke.

A Growing Problem

According to the National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey, Americans consume 3,375 milligrams of sodium daily, which is 40 percent more than the recommended daily allowance called for by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Smart Solutions

The good news is that there are plenty of ways to reduce the sodium in your diet without cutting out taste or favorite foods.

For instance, Orville Redenbacher's recently introduced SmartPop! 30% Less Sodium. All of the line's flavors contain 30 percent less sodium and are 94 percent fat free. Plus they are 100 percent whole grain and have zero grams of trans fat. Snackers can choose from Butter, Kettle Korn, Movie Theater Butter and Organic Butter—a far cry from the bland snack foods often associated with lower sodium diets.

"The most common problem I hear about many lower-sodium snacks is they simply do not taste as great as their full-sodium counterparts, but sometimes, due to health concerns, consumers might not have any other option," says Carolyn O'Neil, registered dietitian. "What makes the introduction of SmartPop! 30% Less Sodium so great is that they have found a way to provide a lower-sodium, health-conscious snack that popcorn lovers want because the product tastes the same as the original—if not better." The company even has a money-back guarantee that its new lower-sodium variety tastes as good as original SmartPop!

Another way to reduce the amount of sodium you eat is to replace table salt with pepper, lemon or even garlic powder. Just a dash of the low-sodium seasonings adds a distinct flair to foods, without putting your health at risk.

Finally, eat fresh fruit and vegetables and read the labels on canned foods. While there are lower-sodium varieties, canned foods tend to be high in sodium—even canned vegetables.
