Judi Jones becomes instant leader

Judi Jones has assumed the office of Associated Student Body President which was vacated by Juan Torres, who was elected A.S.B. vice president last spring, due to the leadership role on September 30.

Kevin Gallagher was appointed to the office of vice president by the student senate on October 4th. Mr. Gallagher has served on the Student Senate as a senator at large for the past year.

Juan Torres, who was elected to the position of student body president last May, was relieved of his office by administration officials because he failed to meet the necessary requirements of the office.

The State College election code stipulates that certain requirements must be met in order for students to continue in office. In other student government developments, Raleigh Strader has resigned his position as pro tem of the student senate, citing personal reasons.

Mr. Strader, as pro tem of the senate, would have assumed the office of vice president had he not resigned. Mr. Strader was acting vice president for four days before his resignation became final and the student senate appointed Kevin Gallagher to the office.

Judi Jones, who is a senior political science major, is the first woman student body president of Cal State San Bernardino. The only other woman student body president in the California State College and University system is Bonnie Sharpe at Fullerton State University.

Judi Jones has some definite plans to help the students of Cal State get more value out of the money they contribute to the Associated Student Body.

Judi will also attempt to promote legislation that will give students a greater voice in campus affairs.

The incorporation of the Associated Student Body and of the Student Union will give the students more power to decide how their funds will be spent, according to Ms. Jones.

Judi feels that graduate students should be able to hold class offices and have a greater say as to how their A.S.B. fees are used. The present student body constitution has to be amended in order for this to happen. Ms. Jones emphasized.

Ms. Jones hopes to take an active interest in all student publications to ensure that any publication that is funded with A.S.B. fees be relevant to the entire campus community and not just one small segment.

Judi has extended an open invitation to all students to come by the A.S.B. office and personally talk over any suggestions they may have to improve C.S.C.S.B.

VA rep on campus

Many benefits and services are available to the veteran at California State College, San Bernardino. In fact, veterans are not always aware of how extensive these are, says Cal State’s Brian Flescher.

In his new position as outreach coordinator of the veterans program at the college, he’s out to remedy the situation.

In order to get as many present and former servicemen and women as possible, he will visit military bases, veterans hospitals, junior colleges and industrial plants as well as conducting personal interviews on campus.

Services available through Cal State include academic and career counseling, job referral, information and assistance related to vocational training, medical services, loans and insurance.

For the first time, students also will have the on-campus services of a representative of the Veterans Administration to help with problems related to VA benefits. Wayne Painter, a veteran of 71/2 years of military service, is assigned to Cal State, San Bernardino full-time to assist the 650-700 veterans enrolled there.

The veteran with no dependents who is a full-time student receives VA benefits of $220 a month. Additional allowances are made for dependents. Part-time students receive proportionately less. An additional allowance of $50 a month also is available when special tutoring is needed by the veteran.

Flescher stresses the importance of good academic counseling.

"The initial advisement interview is of crucial importance in successful completion of any degree or any professional training," the veterans officer added.

Through good counseling, he believes, veterans can learn how to use their benefits to best advantage. Flescher himself was able to complete his master’s degree within the VA benefit period, with three months left.

Students now have ten years, instead of the former eight, in which to complete the 36 months of study financed by the VA. The period starts from the date of entrance into an educational institution following discharge.

Flescher joined the Cal State staff Sept. 1. He was in the Air Force for five years, joining after graduation from Fontana High School. He served in Japan, Vietnam and Germany as a medical service specialist. Following his discharge he attended San Bernardino Valley College and then the University of California at Riverside where he received his bachelor’s degree in social sciences.

He was awarded his M.A. in psychology from Cal State this summer.

The veterans affairs office presently is located in Mojave House in Serrano Village, the on-campus housing complex at Cal State.

SBVC Speakers

The Politics Department at San Bernardino Valley College will present two speakers this week. Thursday, October 17, State Senator Mervyn Dynally, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, will speak at 9:30 a.m. in the Auditorium.

Friday, October 19, Allister Matheson, Deputy Director of Public Relations for UNICEF and an African expert will speak at 11:00 a.m. in LA 100.
Clear differences on the appropriate public policy concerning marijuana use are emerging in the dam controversy for statewide office in California.

A recently completed survey of Representative and Democratic candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, and U.S. Senate conducted by the National Organization for Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML) reveals that marijuana attitudes differ sharply among party lines, with all Republican candidates favoring retention of strict federal "penalties" for marijuana use and Democratic candidates favoring either full decriminalization or reduction of penalties to a misdemeanor or civil fine.

"It is most unfortunate that marijuana is taking on a partisan air," commented Gordon Brownell, Est Coaordination for NORML and himself a member of the California Republican State Central Committee. "The need for marijuana law reform is increasing by being recognized by Republicans and Democrats alike in most parts of the country, as demonstrated in Oregon where a campaign of agitation by a California Republican Governor last year enacted the nation's first decriminalization measure.

In the California Governor's race, Republican candidate Houston Flourney responded to a NORML questionnaire by stating that he favored continued federal penalties for all marijuana offenses, including simple possession of small amounts for personal use. "I agree to contact with Law Enforcement Agencies regarding the marijuana issue as well as with the citizens of this state," Flourney wrote.

PROTECT ME FROM THE NARCS.

"The project will create an 85-mile sketch of the river, . . . from the Stanislaus - Vote Yes! " and "Save the Stanislaus - Vote No."

Briefly put, the federal government wants to build the New Melones Dam, a massive, 62-story-high, rock-filled structure that will create a lake and flood a major section of the Stanislaus River. Half-a-million acres of land, some of which a signed petition and a qualified initiative don't want to see that happen.

As another added twist, construction on the dam has already begun.

Titled the Wild and Scenic Rivers Initiative, the initiative adds a specified portion of the Stanislaus to the state's protected rivers. The Stanislaus is one of the nation's major bodies of water. The Stanislaus, Tuolumne, and Merced rivers comprise the Stanislaus - Vote Yes! - An estimated 430 million waterfowl will be controlled.

Also in issue is the amount of water to be stored behind the dam. While the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Control Board has approved water uses for the dam's full capacity, it has also restricted the amount of water to be stored until such time as the counties involved are prepared to use more.

Both sides have seized the ruling as part of their own purposes. Some of those against Proposition 17 emphasize today's water use patterns, only minor portions of the white-water stream will be affected by the dam. And other supporters of the initiative rather reasonably argue that "ancient" dams are being removed.

If voters are uninformed with these arguments, they may be equally uninformed when they learn that Yao and every other who states this position will in no way legally change the federal government's authority to go forward with the project. However, as Legislative Analyst Bob Martina points out in his explanation of the initiative, "... an indication by the state's voters that they want the river preserved in a wild status may have a much greater effect on the federal government's decision."

In short, if the voters decisively support Proposition 17, the fate of the river might just pick up and take their hands not in the actual water, but in the water.

There is an even sharper difference between the candidates for U.S. Senate, where incumbent Democratic Senator Harris has stated that "in view of my conviction that criminal penalties for personal marijuana use are unjust, I will support legislation to implement the recommendations of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse that private use and possession of marijuana be decriminalized, including transportation and possession of small quantities incident to private possession and use." It's clear that "the Stanislaus is the most popular white-water recreation river west of the Mississippi.

If you prefer to raft or sail from Camp Nine to Parrott's Ferry, strongly support felony penalties for marijuana use and his Democratic opponent, State Senator Mervyn Dymally of Los Angeles favoring full decriminalization.

Citing "substantial circumstantial evidence that there were side effects of which we ought to be wary," Harmer points out that he has "had to study resisted all attempts to liberalize the marijuana laws."

CRIME IN THE DORMS, HELL THIS IS TO PROTECT ME FROM THE NARCS.
The Activities Office, located in Student Services 116, and its sub- unit, the Office Center, Office Center, 3C, is dedicated to the personal and group development of students. Student development occurs in many ways. Intellectual growth, physical health, social awareness and self awareness are some of the developments that students go through while attending college life.

The Activities Office aids students in their intellectual growth by working with academic students in the planning of various programs sponsored by these groups; coordinates the efforts of student groups and student organizations in bringing a variety of lectures who compliment the academic process; sponsors various events that ingroup classes that are of concern to the student; and helps students to understand the academic process and encourages here at Cal-State.

In such a physical growth, the Activities Office is involved with several organizations that plan various social activities and leisure time programs. Such activities as camping trips, water sports, skiing and hiking adventures are a few of the many events that are planned by the Activities Office that students can get involved in. Social awareness is brought about by students involving themselves with other student organizations and the Activities Office Committee. This interaction is facilitated by the Activities Office's involvement with the Associated Students. The Activities Office and the many social programs they sponsor for the student population in the community. Student organizations also provide a variety of social events for their members as well as the campus community. Part of the responsibilities of the Activities Office is to help these groups in the planning and implementation of their programs.

Self awareness is brought about by being involved. It is through involvement that an individual can realize his potential and get feedback on their perceptions of self. This feedback helps a person realize his strengths as well as his weaknesses and therefore helps to understand himself a little better.

The Activities Office provides students with a starting point regarding their interest in getting involved in student government. Whether it is to become involved in a student organization, Associated Students, campus programming or just finding out what's happening on campus, the Activities Office is the place to start.

Listed below are a variety of functions that the Activities Office is involved with. You are cordially invited to come in to the Activities Office and get involved in campus life. The Activities Office is here for YOU.

Professor John M. Moite
Economics Professor.

Faculty Profile

Leonard M. Moite

Leonard M. Moite, Assistant Professor of Economics, has returned to CSCSB after a four-quarter absence to complete requirements for his Ph.D. at UCLA. He is currently writing his dissertation and expects to complete it next year.

The subject of his dissertation is “Land Tenure, Population and Labor Allocation in a Provincial Economy.” He expects it to be a mathematical model of growth that specifies the changing structure of property rights in the Central Province of Kenya and their effects on population and labor allocations.

Moite received his B.A. and M.A. at Western State University, City University of New York. A native of Kenya, Moite came to the United States on a one-year scholarship. He then completed the rest of his education by working his way through school. Moite stated that in Kenya to work your way through college is unheard of. College is considered a full-time occupation and one cannot both work and attend school. He stated that this country is one of the few, maybe the only one, where your work can provide your education and living expenses. One of the jobs he held to pay for his education was as a bus driver. He would run the streets in New York City.

Discussing economics Moite said “My own country, any country, no country can continue to stand on the long term basis from elsewhere. Self-sufficiency is necessary for basic survival.” He continued, “The problem of self-sufficiency is growing in urban areas now. It is being faced in all countries.”

Currently Moite is teaching Economics Principles, Price Theory and in the words, “A rather unpopular Mathematical Economics Courses.

EOP students wanted

Cal State, San Bernardino is actively recruiting more students for the EOP Program (EOP) for the fall quarter, announced Dr. George Rivera, chairman of the Activities Office. Dr. Rivera announced that the EOP program had financial aid and openings for more students because both funds and slots are available for the off-campus housing service.

The EOP program provides financial aid for students who may not have had the opportunity to attend a four-year college. Students must have taken some college classes and have a starting point regarding their interest in attending college.

“It is important that students want a chance to attend a four-year college and are willing to make the financial commitment to do so,” explained Rivera. “Sometimes, these students are willing to make a chance to make the financial commitment.”

Consolation, all students are eligible for the EOP program. Students must have taken some college classes and have a starting point regarding their interest in attending college.

The EOP program aids students in getting involved in college life. The activities available to students include:

- Financial aid
- Housing
- Counseling
- Tutoring
- Specialized programs

Financial aid is only one part of the program. In fact, some EOP students do not require the state funds.

Dr. Rivera urges prospective EOP students to contact him or Rudy Johnson, director of special services for EOP, immediately if they are interested in enrolling in this fall. Realistically, there is a limit to the funds and the number of openings available.

However, there is a certain amount of paperwork which must be completed in order to be eligible. The interested student must submit an application for admission to the college (accredited by the WASC, $25 fee), one letter of recommendation from a former teacher or counselor, an official transcript, a statement of financial need and a financial aid application.

In recent years, the number of students who have attended the school has increased. This increase is due to the effort of the Activities Office and the Associated Students. The Associated Students have increased the activities available to students, the number of activities available to students and the number of students who have attended the school.

Senate meeting highlighted

A.S. Senator at Large, Kevin Gallagher, was elected to succeed resigning President Pro Temp of the Senate, Raleigh Strader, last week.

Strader announced his resignation at a regular meeting of the Senate held Oct. 4. He cited heavy class schedule and the need for part-time employment as the basis for his decision.

Gallagher won the vacant position by a 4-1 margin in a secret ballot election held among the senators during the same meeting.

He has planned to attend the coming year as the establishment of a free legal aid service for students through the San Ber­

Drama department's new production of "The Prodigal Son" will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 16 in the Student Union auditorium. The play is directed by Sheryl Guidry and stars Mel Johnson, A.S. president; Terence Duggan, A.S. vice president; and Sherry Vasichek, A.S. secretary.

The play, which is a modern interpretation of the Bible story, tells the tale of a younger son who is given his share of the family's inheritance. He goes off to spend it in sin and ends up in a pigsty. When his father dies, the younger son must return home to seek forgiveness.

The play is the first production of the Drama department's new theater program. The program is part of the university's efforts to expand its theater and music programs.

SPORT SHORTS

The intramural sports season is upon us and Joe Long, the intramural sports coordinator at Cal State, San Bernardino says there are still openings and plenty of time to sign up.

"We especially want women to try out. They haven’t too much in the past so we’re trying to get more to come out this season."

"What can be expected from some of the teams this season?" Long was asked.

"In men’s flag football, last year’s champions are back, the Los Carnales and also, the Mickey Mouse Club, which finished second last year, is back. The Jockettes in women’s flag football finished first last year but I don’t know if they are around this year. I haven’t seen too many of them."

The aim of the CSCSB Intramural Program is to provide an opportunity for each member of the college to participate in his or her favorite recreation-oriented activity. A comprehensive schedule of events is planned each year, ranging from team sport competition to informal participation by both groups and individuals. New activities are added each year by the staff, often the result of requests by interested students.

Participation in the intramural program is voluntary and the college assumes no responsibility for injuries received during intramural activities. Everything possible is done to avoid accidents and injuries, but students are urged to provide their own insurance. Information regarding student accident insurance is available at the Student Health Center.

If an individual is interested in joining a team, working as an official, or wants to learn more about the program, that person should talk to Mr. Long in room P.E. 124. Detailed information regarding each event and the respective sign-up sheets are posted on the bulletin board opposite the equipment room, also in the P.E. building.

CSCSB to host seminar on election reform

October 24, a one-day conference focusing on reform in the campaign-election process, ranging from the impact of Watergate through Proposition 9 will be discussed by politicians and political scientists, announced Dale E. Wagner, assistant professor and conference coordinator.

Congressmen George E. Brown, Jr., of California and John R. Schmitz, candidate of the American Independent Party who received some electoral votes in the 1972 election and John Schmitz, candidate of the American Independent Party will be present.

Representatives of Common Cause, the People’s Lobby, major and minor political parties, labor and business and a political campaign consultant will also participate.

Invitations have been extended to candidates for major state-wide offices and replies are being awaited, Wagner said.

Discussion groups are being planned and although the program details are not yet finalized, the following panel sessions are contemplated:

(1) An Overview of National Electoral Reform Priorities.
(3) Proposition 9 - Landmark Reform or Unconstitutional Loophole Initiative?
(4) State and Local Electoral Reform - New Approaches.

Only a nominal registration fee of $1.00 will be assessed in order to encourage the widest possible representation of faculty and students from Southern California. Refreshments will be provided during the morning and afternoon sessions.

The conference is being sponsored by the Political Science Department and will begin at 8:00 a.m. in LC 500.

We need mattresses

He has to be policeman, mother, father, counsellor, confessor, and recreational leader. Ron Zimmerman, senior psychology major, is a house resource person, a precious term for dorm mother, at the Waterman house in Serrano Village. Zimmerman describes his function as "communicative," whereby the residents can feel free to discuss their problems, whatever they may be, with Frank. I found the atmosphere at Waterman inactive and very quiet. Ron Zimmerman explained the inactivity to me. "Mine is the more academic oriented house." I asked Ron how he could make such a general statement and he replied simply "by the residents." According to him, Waterman people are "undeniably the best residents in Serrano!" although he contended that the interview said there was no rivalry between houses. Zimmerman defines a "good" resident as "energetic, obeys the rules, lacks idleness, and has a sense of cooperation and mutual consideration for the other's rights."

For people who are sports on their trains, Serrano Village seems to be the place. Ron told me that after dinner volleyball is a nightly occurrence and the dorm students are planning to participate in intramural sports. The recreation room is equipped with ping pong tables. Zimmerman enjoys the free activity in the dorms and he says there are no barriers between males and females living in the four co-ed dorms. He said that co-ed living "facilitates a group atmosphere where knowledge is shared in an informal manner."

I talked to a few residents about dorm life and although they cannot be considered a good sampling of opinions, I thought their comments were all on the good side of dorm living, but then why else would they be living there? "It seems like the place to get involved with people and things going on," Christopher Phelps, Badger.

"It's nice. It's fun. The only thing bad is we need more mattresses."

Free flu shots

The Student Health Center (AD-117) has announced that flu shots are available for all interested students, faculty, and staff throughout the month of October at the following times:

Monday: 9:00 - 12:00 & 1:30 - 4:00
Tuesday: 9:00 - 12:00 & 2:00 - 4:00
Wednesday: 9:00 - 12:00 & 1:30 - 4:00
Friday: 9:00 - 12:00 & 2:00 - 4:00

Facility and staff will be charged 61.00 payable at the time of service before coming to the Health Center.

Influenza protection is especially urged for those with chronic illness, especially heart or lung disease) and those particularly susceptible to respiratory infections.

Also, it is recommended that all students with a physical handicap or health problem should check in with the Health Center if they have not already done so.

Creative Arts facility

There's a group of faculty and administrators at Cal State, San Bernardino, who feel something like midwives.

After much labor and travail, they have brought to fruition a Creative Arts Building for the theater-starved campus. The state's $1.00 budget contains a $2.7 million item for the long-awaited building.

There were times, however, when the campus officials felt their labors would be fruitless.

Questions which arose in Legislative committees were overcome, with credit to the diligent efforts of Senators Ruben Ayala of San Bernardino, Walter Stern of Bakersfield, and W. Craig Biddle of Riverside and Representative Jerry Lewis of Highland, explained President John M. Pfau. The appropriation then went into the final budget.

The latest step toward realization of the building was the approval of preliminary plans last week by the Public Works Board. Now, architect Carl Masten of Los Angeles is proceeding with working drawings so that bids for construction can be taken shortly after the first of January. Occupancy is scheduled for the fall of 1976.

The multi-level building will house the Music and Drama Departments, providing each with an adequate theater or recital hall for their presentations.

The Music Department will have its own 250-seat recital hall. There will be a raised stage, sound and lighting equipment and proper directed plays, for example, can be presented here.

The exterior design of the building, predicted to be the "most acoustical drapes show the choral and instrumental organizations to their best advantage."

The Drama Department will have an experimental theater seating 150, more than double the capacity of the present house. New lighting and sound equipment, removable traps in the stage flap and increased floor space will increase the potential for future drama productions.

Within the 42,000 square foot building, there also will be faculty offices, choral and instrumental rehearsal rooms and practice rooms for individuals and groups.

The Drama Department will have a scene shop, a costume shop, a design workshop and men's and women's dressing rooms.

The second floor along the northeast wing, contains classroom for both music and drama, a cesthetic shop (for working with messy, toxic materials), faculty offices, workshop, music storage and music practice rooms. The group rehearsal rooms, the theater and the recital hall all are two stories tall, while adjoining corridors and the faculty office wing is a single floor.

Nestled within the building, yet visible throughout the hallways, are two area rooms which will have multi-use since they are protected from the elements. Noon-time group formed

The newly-formed Kundalini Yoga Club for Science and Consciousness is sponsoring a week-end workshop here on campus for those interested. On Friday, October 25, and Saturday, October 26, will be called "The Experiential Factor in the Psychology of Consciousness," and will integrate techniques of Kundalini Yoga and meditation with such psychology-oriented techniques as Guided Imagery and Transpersonal Counseling, to give the participant an experience of these altered states of consciousness, and to explore the significance of these experiences in the world today.

The workshop will be held from 9-5 on both Sat. and Sun. in room LC 27 in the basement of the library. All are invited to attend. The workshop will be run by Rama Kirn Singh Comeau and Shama Kir Singh Harvey, who have a great deal of experience in Kundalini Yoga, meditation, as well as in psychology and counseling.

The Kundalini Yoga Club is proud to announce its existence here at Cal. State, and welcomes new members and all those in any way interested. For further information, on the club or the weekend event, contact Jagi Nath Singh Glassman, 792-6702.

Registered nurses may now earn a bachelor of science degree in nursing at California State College, San Bernardino, under a new program approved this summer. First two classes were offered last year but the program swings into high gear this fall with full approval of appropriate agencies and an enlarged faculty. The nurse education program is an upper-division program for registered nurses who hold an A.A. (associate of arts) degree in nursing or its equivalent, stressed Dr. Delores A. Wozniak, chairman of the department.

The college is working on programs to bring existing diploma nursing programs to obtain lower-division credit in nursing by taking examinations covering appropriate material. They also will provide an opportunity for upper-division education courses on campus. The student without the A.A. degree admitted to Cal State as a natural sciences undeclared major.

Priority to admission is being given to candidates for graduate work in diploma nursing programs to obtain lower-division credit in nursing. In the senior year, the nurses have an opportunity to select their area of concentration either distributive or equivalent work and qualify for credit upon transfer.

Ninety percent of the students in the nursing program will be admitted to Cal State as a natural sciences undeclared major. Prior to admission to the nursing program, a candidate must be a licensed registered nurse in California, hold an A.A. degree or equivalent work and qualify for junior standing at Cal State. Nurses with the A.A. are granted approximately 90 quarter units of credit toward the B.S. degree.

The curriculum at Cal State focuses on the major course in nursing. In the senior year, the nurses have an opportunity to select in their area of concentration either distributive or equivalent work and qualify for credit upon transfer.

The Cal State program is accredited by the state Board of Nursing Education and Nurse Registration.

The growth and potential of the new program for graduate nurses was noted by the Public Health Service of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare with a grant of $100,000 to be used in program development.

Nursing courses will be offered between morning and late afternoon. A student with a regular job may enroll, said Dr. Wozniak. Ninety percent of the students in the first two classes were working in their profession.

The new program was developed because there was a demand from hospitals, community colleges and hospitals in the area for nurses on an advisory committee to plan the curriculum and to identify the areas of need.

Then the program being presented now is the result of community input and professional input," she added.

Joining Dr. Wozniak in teaching the nursing programs will be Mrs. Lynn P. Vogel, currently assistant professor of nursing at UCLA, and Miss Cynthia J. Royer, a former resident of Pomona and now a nursing student right at the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Dr. Wozniak, who earned her doctorate in administration from Columbia University, was a consultant to the Board of Regents of the State University of New York in developing an upper degree in nursing. Prior to that she taught at the State University of New York in Farmingdale, Nassau Community College and St. Catherine's Hospital School of Nursing in New York. Dr. Wozniak, who came to Cal State last September as professor of nursing, earned her B.S.Ed. from Hunter College and an M.A. and Ed.M. from Columbia University. Dr. Wozniak, a Palm Springs resident, has recently been elected to the Board of Directors of Area IV of the California Nurses Assn.

Mrs. Vogel, who has taught at UCLA for five years, holds a B.S. in nursing from the University of Wyoming and is a former nurse from the University of Washington. She has taught at the University of Utah and has been a former hospital nurse. Mrs. Vogel has taught in a variety of different settings, fellowships or grants for research projects and has an extensive list of publications. Appointed associate professor of nursing at Cal State, Mrs. Vogel holds a fellowship from the National Institutes of Health as a family nurse practitioner.

Miss R. E. Conner, graduate of Pomona High School and Mt. San Antonio College, earned her B.S. in nursing from UCLA and an M.S. from Ohio State University. She was nurse-in-charge, instructor assistant and instructor at Pomona Valley Community Hospital prior to going to Utah. Dr. Wozniak said she will be assistant professor at Cal State.

All three women have participated in conferences, published studies and held memberships in professional organizations.

Inquiries about the new program may be directed to Dr. Wozniak at the college, telephone 8-6011, extension 446.

New French program

A former speech therapist in Banning and Fontana will be the new dean of continuing education at California State College, San Bernardino beginning this fall. The new dean will be Dr. Thomas F. Patric, an educator from Oregon and Utah.

Dr. Patric, head of the department of elementary education at Utah State University, succeeds Dr. Robert L. Wells, who has elected to return to classroom teaching. Dr. West, after Okemos Forest and formerly of Redlands, was the founding chairman and dean of the education program.

Previously interested in education of the disadvantaged, Dr. Patric has a professional background including positions in elementary education. Oregon State Department of Education, federal Office of Economic Opportunity and college-level Institute for Higher Education.

He has served as a consultant for numerous schools, colleges and commissions and in 1972 was selected as one of six educators to study the German educational system to make recommendations for improvement to the German government.

Born and reared in the midwest, Dr. Patric is a native of Oregon. He earned a B.S. in education from the Oregon State University, an M.Ed. from UCLA, and his M.Ed. and Ed.D. from Oregon State University.

Elementary school experience was in the public schools of Washington, Oregon and Utah, prior to his role as an upper division program, said Dr. Patric. He served as a general elementary supervisor and as director of migrant education. His year with migrant education in Washington, D.C., was spent in evaluating education programs concerning self-paced training and developing curriculum materials and teaching methods.

While teaching at the Oregon State University, Dr. Patric was coordinator of the elementary training program for teachers of disadvantaged children. As doctoral candidate and then professor of education at the University of Oregon, he was director of the Upward Bound program and the Exchange program.

Dr. Patric has spent the last three years at the University of Utah, where he developed a new elementary teacher training program designed to help principal teachers.

Dr. and Mrs. Petrie (Darleen) have three teen-aged children.

Mrs. Petrie is an elementary teacher with an advanced degree in learning disabilities. The family will live in San Bernardino.
The Women’s Center Steering Committee meets on the third Monday of each month at 7 p.m. The task force on this committee are Childcare, Legal Needs of Women, Career Counseling, Consciousness Raising, Publicity, Political liaison and Medical and Legal Referral.

The Women’s Action Coalition, whose interest is the status of women in San Bernardino, meets every other Tuesday at the League of Women Voters. The San Bernardino YWCA, 498 N. Arrowhead Ave., has established a Women’s Center. The Women’s Center is holding a series of lectures at 7 p.m. on the second Monday of each month. Various speakers will discuss women and the problems women face.

Consciousness Raising Groups will also be held on a continuing basis. A demonstration session, which one must attend before enrolling in the ten-week sessions, will be given every three months. The next will be held in December.

Gallery to feature works of Camarata

The human figure, fashioned from intricate pencil, pen and crayon lines, is the principal subject in the drawings of Martin Camarata now on display in the Art Gallery at Cal State, San Bernardino.

Camarata, described as “a wizard of the colored pencil,” creates a variety of surprises with the looping, twisting lines of his drawings. Potatoes, manhole covers, bent forks and light switches also are among the symbols which recur in his drawings.

Camarata has exhibited in galleries throughout the country and in the Schneider Gallery for American Artists in Rome. His work is represented in many private collections both in the United States and in Europe. He is currently chairman of the art department at California State College, Stanislaus.

In addition to earning a master of arts degree from New York University, he also studied at the University of Rochester, Academia Degli Belli Arte in Rome and Albright Art School, Buffalo. The show will continue through Oct. 31. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 12 noon, and 1 to 3 p.m.

Feds dry up student loan funds

O.K. all you freaks out there who are struggling to get a college education without starving to death in the meantime, here’s a bit of spicy news to tenderize your attitude that it did during the Spanish Inquisition.

We gave $6.1 billion dollars to Pakistan which is a whole lot more than George Harrison and Friends could muster for the people of Bangla Desh, which was screwed into the ground by our $5.1 Billion. We gave Spain $2.14 billion, but the repressive government of that country still has the same mental attitude it did during the Spanish Inquisition.

We gave $4.6 billion dollars to Taiwan, which is a hell of a lot to sink into a country who’s main contribution to the U.S.is party-poppers at a cut rate.

The Jackpot of 4.2 Billion dollars went to the fascist government of Greece . . . but we got the Bobby Pins.
