Independent Poll Charts Gains for Indians

October 23, 1998 - In the latest state­wide survey, more than 59 percent of California voters said they would vote YES on Proposition 5, marking the highest levels of public support to date for the ballot measure which would prohibit Indian gaming on tribal lands.

The survey, by the Election Connection, an independent public opinion poll by some of the state’s leading TV and radio stations and newswapers, reflects a steady climb in voter approval for the Indian Self Reliance Initiative, which has shown solid support among California voters since qualifying for the November ballot.

The 44,000-member Police Officers Research Association of California (PORAC), San Francisco district attorney Terrance Hallman and California Police Chiefs Association former president Leslie Sourisseau, as well as Service Employees’ International Union (SEIU) local #790 also joined the growing list of organizations in support of the Indian gaming initiative.

By contract, opposition to the measure has dropped to its lowest mark - 17 percent - since polling began on 1998 ballot issues.

Findings indicate opposition to the measure plummeted 13 points in August.

The Election Connection’s previous point in September, “79 percent of the voters surveyed said their ‘minds were made up’ on this issue,” said Californians For Indian Self-Reliance/YES On 5 campaign chairman Ken Ramirez. “Weeks of multimillion-dollar-spending on negative, anti-Indian advertising has not made a dent with California voters.” The overwhelming support for Prop 5 continues in the face of a staggeringly expensive scare campaign being waged by Nevada casinos that fear competition from limited, well regulated Indian gaming. It is genuinely gratifying to know that California voters aren’t going to let the Nevada casinos’ deal away the truth.”

“We support Proposition 5 because Indian gaming is one of the most heavily regulated forms of gaming in this state with oversight by the FBI, the National Indian Gaming Commission, the Department of Justice, the IRS and the Department of the Interior as well as the security and surveillance measures instituted by tribal gaming management,” said PORAC president Steve Craig who heads the largest police association in California.

Law enforcement organizations and individuals supporting Proposition 5 include the San Bernardino Police Officers’ Association, Riverside Police Officers’ Association, San Bernardino County Safety Employee’s Association, the Correctional Peace Officers Association, former Department of Justice Organized Crime & Racketeering special agent Felix Rocha, and retired national Indian Gaming Commission senior field investigator Karl Olson.

Other unions supporting Prop 5 include Construction and General Laborers’ Union Locals #220, 291, 389, 591; Communication Workers of America (CWA); Contra Costa Building and construction trade council; Hod Carriers and Laborers #783; Laborers’ International Union Of North American locals #73, 261, 294; and Laborers Unions locals, #139, 185, 507, 550, 652, 802, 882.

Law enforcement, labor, community, education, ethnic and business leaders totaling more than 235,000 have signed on as supporters of Prop 5 making it one of the largest citizen organizations in California.

Proposition 5, on the November 3rd ballot, allows California Indian tribes to continue the types of gaming currently found on reservations. The measure provides for revenue sharing with non-gaming tribes for economic development, community services and cultural preservation and with communities statewide for emergency services. The measure also provides for new state regulatory authority beyond existing restrictions imposed by numerous federal agencies.

Gang/Narcotics Hotline

The San Bernardino Police Department’s “A” Team has created a Gang/narcotics Tele hotline. The number is (909) 384-5719.

Citizens are encouraged to call this telephone number 24 hours a day to leave confidential information on gang and narcotics related activity. This telephone number has been set up so that it can accept calls in both English and Spanish.

Gil Navarro, Candidate for San Bernardino Valley Municipal Water District, Division 3

Gil Navarro, an education consultant, is a candidate for the San Bernardino Valley Municipal Water District, Division 3 in the elections on November 3.

As an advocate for education, specifically in the areas of disciplinary procedures and discriminatory practices in the public school systems, Navarro, who is knowledgeable with the state education code, has represented parents and students before expulsion boards.

Navarro became a single parent of three sons, Damon, Derrick, and Joe, when his wife died of cancer. He became interested in the education of his sons, and involved in the procedural process when his son was issued a severe punishment from the school.

Navarro is a member of the California Parents Association (paid advocate), Mexican American Political Association and its San Bernardino Chapter educational director, Mount Vernon Avenue Pride Association (president), Jurupa Community Pride Association, and the Kiwanis Club of Greater San Bernardino.

Navarro's areas of concern regarding challenges in water resources management are: water quality management in the Santa Ana River; reclaiming waste water; baseline feeder water transmission system; exchange plan; water storage and recreation; Seven Oaks Dam; education and conservation and high water table.

Pam Bailey-Shimizu is a candidate for the San Bernardino Municipal Water District, Division 5.

Proposition 9 would be a big step backwards for California...

All we'd have to look forward to is higher electric rates and higher taxes.

It's rare that a ballot measure comes along that creates so much opposition from so many different people and groups.

But Proposition 9 would be such a big step backwards in so many ways it's not surprising it has drawn so many opponents.

Some are concerned about the negative impact of Proposition 9 on electric rates. Others are concerned about the huge taxpayer costs resulting from Proposition 9. And still others worry about the fact that Proposition 9 threatens funding for environmentally friendly energy sources.

The bottom line is, Proposition 9 is a backwards step in many, many ways. Between now and the election, look into the facts. When you do, we think you'll join us in voting No on 9.

Diabetes - What Can We Do About It?

November is National Diabetes Month. Diabetes is a major medical, personal, and public health problem in Riverside and San Bernardino Counties and across the country. Diabetes occurs when the body does not make enough insulin or when the cells cannot make use of the available insulin. Insulin is a hormone that allows the body to use the sugar that we eat.

There are different types of diabetes. Type I, or insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus (IDDM), results from the inability to make insulin. Living with this condition requires adjustment in diet and exercise, regular insulin injections and self-testing. Non-insulin dependent diabetes mellitus (NIDDM) or Type II, may be a completely different type of diabetes. It usually starts later in life and is often associated with obesity. Individuals with this condition can lead long lives without complications if they control the diabetes through weight management, healthy eating, physical activity, and by following treatment plans (Kaplan, 1993).

According to the California Diabetes Control Program (CDCP) for 1997, there were about 3,000 Californians who die of diseases related to diabetes. The CDP reports that in San Bernardino County there are about 47,000 diagnosed cases and another 47,000 in Riverside County. In San Bernardino and Riverside Counties, Latinos account for over 25,000 diagnosed Type II diabetes. Older Latino women have the highest diabetes prevalence rate at 18.3%.

It is estimated that for every two people with diabetes, there is another person who has diabetes and does not know it. Uncontrolled diabetes can lead to serious complications that include heart disease, kidney disease, amputations, eye problems, and problems in pregnancy. Some of the signs and symptoms to look for are:

- Excessive thirst
- Frequent urination
- Extreme fatigue
- Unexplained weight loss
- Nausea
- Blurred vision
- Slow healing cuts
- Recurring infections

What can we do about diabetes? There are some risk factors for diabetes that we have no control over such as family history of diabetes or your ethnic group. The good news about Type II diabetes is that we can prevent getting Type II diabetes by maintaining a healthy lifestyle, even if we have a genetic tendency towards diabetes.

The more we realize that we can do something about preventing and controlling diabetes, the better the outcome. One study measured the effect that the feeling of helplessness had on young people with diabetes. The results concluded that helplessness was associated with poor control of diabetes. In addition, those who felt that the outcomes of their condition were unrelated to their own behavior were also significantly more depressed (Kaplan, 1993).

How can Type II diabetes be controlled or prevented? Evidence suggests that Type II diabetic patients benefit significantly from healthy eating and exercise. Individuals who are physically active and maintain an ideal body weight can prevent or delay the onset of diabetes.

The risk for developing diabetes doubles for every 20 percent that the body exceeds its normal weight. In the Southwest United States, the Pima Indians have the highest rate of diabetes for any known population. In the Pima Indians as with other groups, the rate of diabetes appears to occur simultaneously with obesity (Kaplan, 1993). Last week experts at the American Dietetic Association’s annual meeting in Kansas City stated that “Obesity is the No. 1 malnutrition problem in the United States. As obesity continues to rise, the average man now weighs 25 pounds more than men of his great grandfather’s generation” (San Bernardino County SUN, 10/23/98).

Eating foods that are high in complex carbohydrate and fiber reduces blood sugar levels and increases control of Type II diabetes. The California Nutrition Network recommends that we eat fiber-rich foods such as fruit, vegetables, and whole grains, such as whole wheat bread and brown rice. These foods are naturally low in fat. Reducing the amount of fat in the diet helps maintain a healthy weight. The key to healthy eating in controlling or preventing diabetes is balance and moderation.

In the Pima Indians as with other groups, the rate of diabetes appears to occur simultaneously with obesity (Kaplan, 1993). Last week experts at the American Dietetic Association’s annual meeting in Kansas City stated that “Obesity is the No. 1 malnutrition problem in the United States. San Bernardino - Three local ethnic community groups were recognized by County Superintendent Barry Pulliam Wednesday for their contributions to the children of San Bernardino county and to the communities in which they thrive.

The African American Advisory Committee, Hispanic Advisory Committee, and Latino Internet Committee received Pulliam's appreciation for their advisory roles which, among other things, helped to promote minority teacher recruitment countywide, and initiate free California Basic Educational Skills Test (CBEST) preparation workshops to all prospective teachers.

The groups also provided input on a wide variety of topics including welfare reform, charter schools, and after school programs. In addition, the Latino Internet Committee hosted technology seminars in the East Valley and West End as an outreach to introduce the Latino community on the benefits of the Internet. This committee was also instrumental in developing a website for the Inland Empire Hispanic Chamber of Commerce as an outreach to the Hispanic business community.

County Board of Education members as well as assistant superintendents for the San Bernardino County Superintendent of Schools were present for the honors bestowed on these groups.

Michael Townsend (r), chief of staff for Assemblyman Baca, presents Barry Pulliam with certificates of appreciation for each of the three groups being honored. The presentation on behalf of Baca was in recognition of the groups' support to assure quality education and for their outstanding service to the community in the development of meeting student's educational needs.

The Healthy Families Program

Beginning July 1, 1998, California's new Healthy Families program will join forces with Medi-Cal for Children to provide low-cost and no-cost comprehensive health care coverage to the state's most vulnerable population - low-income, uninsured children under 19 years of age. This effort is funded in part by a federal allocation of state grants known as the Children's Health Insurance Program. The Healthy Families Program is managed by the Managed Risk Medical Insurance Board (MRMIB), which will subsidize commercial health insurance coverage through a purchasing pool for an estimated 500,000 children who currently do not have insurance.

Healthy Families is California's new health care coverage program for low-income, uninsured children. The program offers medical, dental and vision coverage, for a small premium, to children who are one year old up to age 19 and whose families earn too much to qualify for no-cost Medi-Cal but do not earn enough to afford private health care coverage.

- They are not eligible for no-cost, full-scope Medi-Cal;
- They have not been covered by employer-sponsored insurance for the preceding three months.

Benefits

Full coverage for hospitalization, physician, medical and surgical services, as well as prescription drugs. Dental, hearing and vision coverage. Affordable monthly premiums, ranging from $4 per child to a maximum of $27 per family.

Co-payments of $5 (no co-payment for preventive care services).

Ontario - Jet Fuel Money for Ontario and the County

Joe Baca (D-San Bernardino) presents a $500,000 check to Ontario Mayor Gus J. Skropos. Assembly Member Baca authored a new law redistributing local jet fuel sales tax revenues back to the cities and counties where the fuel is pumped. On the right of Assembly Member Baca and Major Skropos is Assembly Member Fred Aguiar (R-Chino) who worked with Baca in the bi-partisan effort. Ontario will receive $500,000 in 1999 alone in jet fuel tax revenues. San Bernardino will net roughly $200,000 next year.

Bond Issue Would Build Soc. Sci. Cl. Building

A general obligation bond issue, Proposition 1A, on the Nov. 3 ballot includes more than $40 million in appropriations for Cal State, San Bernardino, including a $32.4 million building to house the School of Social and Behaviorial Sciences. Currently serving one fifth of the declared majors at the university, the school has academic departments housed throughout the campus.

The new building will add 12 classrooms, ranging from 25 to 150 seats, and 13 teaching laboratories with 267 computer stations. Another computer lab will be self-instralucional with 34 stations in which students can complete class projects. Additional graduate research laboratories will support the growing programs in criminal justice, social work and psychology.

The expanded instructional space is "a major need on the growing campus," notes school dean, John Conley, indicating that school faculty are scattered across campus in three separate buildings. With the new building, all but 25 faculty will be housed together giving students more opportunities to interact with faculty across disciplines.

Construction plans call for 138,700 gross square feet in new space and the renovation of some existing space, particularly for laboratories on campus. The increase in lecture and lab space would help the university serve nearly 1,500 more students and expand faculty offices by 53.

The class room complex in just one Cal State project that would be funded by passage of the bond issue that would build facilities for K-12, the community colleges and the UC. More than $20 million to renovate the Biology and Physical Sciences Buildings, both erected in 1967, and some $7.2 million in telecommunications facilities also is provided for Cal State.

Cal Poly Admissions Day

Cal Poly Pomona’s Student Outreach and Recruitment will be holding its 1998 Admissions Day, for all high school seniors who have at least a 3.0 GPA and are on track with the CSU subject requirements. Student will receive an admissions decision on the spot and have the opportunity to attend workshops on the Educational Opportunity Program, financial aid, and choosing a major. Tour the campus. Visit with faculty, staff and students. Reservations are required.

This will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 11, 1998 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m at University Union (Building 35) at Cal Poly Pomona, in Pomona (at the junction of the 10, 210 and 57 freeways).

Students Named Semifinalists in National Scholarship Program

Bloomington High School senior Luis Cardenas and Colton High School senior Brian Kim were named semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship program, while Colton High classmates Samuel Juarez and Joe Ramos were chosen as scholar finalists in the National Hispanic Recognition Program.

Cardenas and Kim are among 15,500 semifinalists nationwide from nearly 1,2 million students who took the Preliminary Scholastic Achievement Test (PSAT) in October 1997. The semifinalists are the highest scorers in each state and represent less than one percent of each state’s high school graduating class.

The 17 year old son of Blanca Cardenas of Fontana, Luis is active in football, swimming, tennis, track and cross country at Bloomington High. He also is a member of the KEY Club, California Scholastic Federation and Academic Decathlon and Mock Trial teams. After graduating, he plans to enroll at Stanford University to major in environmental studies. He eventually wants to help underdeveloped countries with water and sanitation is-

ues. In addition to being named a semifinalist in the National Merit Scholarship Program, Cardenas has passed five Advanced Placement examinations and intends to take four more exams in May.

Juarez and Ramos were named scholar finalists in the National Hisnpanic Recognition Program, two of 3,000 identified nationwide. More than 150,000 Hispanic students took the Preliminary Scholastic Achievement Test to qualify for recognition in the program.

Juarez, 17, the son of Sam Juarez and Celine Garcia of Colton, is a National Honor Society member and player on the school’s varsity football and badminton teams. He is active in The Rock Christian Center Youth Group, outside of school. After graduation, he has plans to enroll at the California Institute for Technology (Cal Tech) to study electrical engineering.

Ramos, also 17, is the son of Joe and Ertlinda Ramos of San Bernardino. At Colton High, he is active in the National Honor Society and the tennis team. He works part time at Blockbuster Video in Colton and plays hockey on a traveling team. Ramos is undecided about his choice of college of major.
Los Angeles, CA - For the first time in over a century, a Latino may gain statewide office in California, as an unprecedented number of Latino candidates are running for top statewide positions, according to the 1998 Latino Election Handbook, recently released by the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials (NALEO) Education Fund.

The Handbook reports that four of California's six statewide races involved Latino candidates. Cruz Bustamante (D), California's first Latino Speaker of the Assembly, faces State Senator Tim Leslie (R) in the Lt. Governor contest. San Mateo county Board Supervisor Ruben Barrales (R) is challenging incumbent Controller Kathleen Connell (D), and Barrales' candidacy is viewed by some as part of the growing presence of Latinos in California Republican politics. Assembly member Diane Martinez (D) is challenging incumbent Controller Quackenbush (R) for Insurance Commissioner, and Santa Ana schoolteacher Gloria Matta Tuchman (who co-authored the anti-bilingual education initiative, Proposition 227) will face incumbent Superintendent of Public Instruction Delaine Eastin.

The term limits which apply to California's state legislative seats have created a musical chairs atmosphere among state legislative races, opening new seats for Latinos and encouraging incumbents to run for higher office. Additionally, in the State Assembly, the political facade of California's heavily Democratic Latino delegation is changing, as several Latino Republican candidates are running in extremely competitive races, including Walnut council member Robert Racheco's (R) contest against West Covina Council member Charlene Zettel (R).

The growth in number of actual voters in California was more than modest (an increase from 1,135,000 to 1,290,920), and the Latino share of actual voters grew from 9.6% to 11.7%. With respect to voter turnout among the eligible population, the turnout rates of non-Latino voters decreased between 1992 and 1996; however, the Latino rate increased slightly.

"The large voter turnout among Latino naturalized citizens suggests that Latino immigrants believed that issues critical to their families and community were at stake during the election, and they wanted to make sure their voices were heard," stated Vargas. The NALEO Educational Fund is the leading organization that empowers Latinos to participate fully in the American political process, from citizenship to public service. The NALEO Educational Fund is a national non profit, non partisan organization whose constituency includes the more than 5,400 Latino elected and appointed officials nationwide.

Cal State, San Bernardino Gains 300 Students

Cal State, San Bernardino's fall enrollment stands at 13,601 a two percent increase over fall of 1997. When the university population was 13,280, reports Don Kajcienski, Associate Vice President for Enrollment Services.

The greatest growth in new students is in the freshman class, Kajcienski notes, with nearly 1100 new freshman. It's one of the largest freshman classes in recent history, he adds. Students are taking more course units, which is boosting the full time student equivalency (FTES) ratio on campus as well. Nearly 10,682 full time equivalent students on campus this fall is a four percent growth over 1997. The FTES formula is used by The California University System for budgeting purposes. Enrollment records are still being reconciled, but essentially the new figures are considered "census" data as of Oct. 14, the last day to drop a class, and the official count for fall 1998.

"Providing Opportunities To Begin Again" is the theme of the Inland Empire Job Corps Center (IEJCC) in Muscoy for the twentieth anniversary celebration and open house to be held on Friday, November 6, according to JoAnne McDougall, Director.

The 20th anniversary of the Job Corps Center in San Bernardino is a great occasion for many of us, including staff and trainees, the City of San Bernardino and the region. We are proud that many of our young people have graduated throughout these many years and just as importantly, developed into responsible citizens, "Chavira stated.

McDougall said that most of the trainees did not complete high school or needed added training beyond their high school trend has been manifested throughout California.

The anniversary theme was the brain-child of the trainees because many felt that this Center was the beginning for opportunities to train and be prepared for the "real world."

The Job Corps is funded through the Department of Labor. The Region IX Office of the Job Corps in San Francisco coordinates the Job Corps Centers in California, Hawaii, Arizona and Nevada. The Region is responsible for monitoring the performance and compliance for each Center.

The local Job Corps Center is operated by Management and Training Corporation.

The JEJCC was started in 1978 when the original Fremont Junior School was purchased from the San Bernardino City Unified School District.

Community leaders approached the Department of Labor, stating a need for a vocational and academic training program for disadvantaged youth ages 16 to 24 years of age. Initially, there was strong opposition in having youth live in dormitories at the Center.

The anniversary celebration and open house will be a featured speaker at the event, the Inland Empire Job Corps Center is a partnership of Inland Empire colleges and universities, in- cluding the San Bernardino Community College District; Corrina Aleman, secretary; Holly Clements, treasurer, and Dan Martinez, vice president. Our main purpose is to help students in any way that we can," stated Chavira. Over the past three years, the organization awarded about 12 scholarships to SBVC students and six to Crafton Hills students. Last year, four scholarships of $200 each went to SBVC students and two to CHC. The association raises money through such events as its recent Sept. 16 Mexican Independence Day Scholarship luncheon featuring an historical overview of Mexico's struggle by David Gomez, SBVC adjunct English instructor. The new officers stand in front of a painting by David Rosales, Inland Empire artist and instructor at SBVC.

Bill Signed to Fight Teen Alcohol and Drug Abuse

SACRAMENTO - The California Adolescent Alcohol and Drug Treatment and Recovery Act of 1998 has been signed by Governor Wilson on Sunday, September 27, 1998.

AB 1784, (chap. 866) by Assembly Member Joe Baca, focuses on the growing problems of alcohol and drug abuse documented among teenagers in California ages 12 to 17. "It's about time we take care of our youth, it's a program long overdue," Assembly member Baca said.

"A whole generation, regardless of their economic background, is at risk right now," said Assembly Member Baca. "We have a totally unacceptable situation where it costs upwards of $20,000 to get a young person into a private treatment facility. Average families can't afford this. As a consequence, we have hundreds of youths across California that are falling into substance abuse and without any early intervention."

"We secured roughly $5 million in the new budget to start this program next year," the assemblyman said. "AB 1784 will set the stage. Law enforcement, drug and alcohol counselors and others are all agree we must focus on prevention and intervention to help our kids. We begin to lose the fight when our children face incarceration."

"This is an important step forward for our youth and our communities," he added. "We need to address the needs of both! We worry about textbooks, computers and our kids' education, but we have an opportunity to make history in California by establishing the first substance abuse program that helps our children on the road to recovery. Drug and alcohol abuse knows no social or economic boundaries!"

AB 1784 has received strong support from the Ca. Hispanic Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, Inc. California Probation, parole and Correctional Association, California Primary Care Association, California School Nurse Association, and 14 other statewide and community based organizations.

High Tech Training Center

Sacramento - October 13, 1998 - high paying, high tech jobs in the Inland Empire will be the focus of a groundbreaking on Thursday, October 29, 1998 at 10:00 a.m. at Norton Air Force Base. Assembly member Joe Baca will be a featured speaker at the event, to launch a new regional high tech training center.

The center, based at the former NCO Academy at Norton, will offer high tech training and retraining to employees of companies in the Inland Empire. This new training center is the result of a collaboration between San Bernardino Valley College, Cal State San Bernardino, Chapman University, San man, and the Inland Empire Job Corps. The center will help create high paying, high tech jobs for the Inland Empire.

"I am pleased that we are investing in the future of the Inland Empire," stated Assembly member Baca. "This center will help us create high paying, high tech jobs for the Inland Empire."

UCR University/Eastside Community Collaborative AmeriCorps Project is recruiting for prospective AmeriCorps members.

The University/Eastside Community Collaborative AmeriCorps Project is currently recruiting exceptional individuals to become AmeriCorps Members. Service begins in October and ends on August 31, 2006. Full-time members shall contract to serve 1700 hours of service, averaging 40 hours per week, Part-time members shall contract to serve 900 hours of service, averaging 21 hours per week. All members will serve as tutors to high-risk children at the elementary and middle school level. Some members will serve as recreational and fine arts instructors. All members will be involved in serving local community based organizations on a variety of service activities throughout the year, including summer camps in the summer of 1999. The goal of the UECC AmeriCorps project is to provide a safe place to children, provide academic support to children who are not performing at grade level, and support local community based organizations in their efforts to provide a safe haven to children of the community.

If you are someone who can dedicate 12 months of your life to full-time service or 10 months to part-time service, very enthusiastic, highly responsible, can take on any challenges, be a good role model and has a strong desire to work with high-risk children, then UECC AmeriCorps is for you. Full-time and part-time positions are available. Monthly living allowances are provided. Educational scholarships are awarded to members upon completion of service ($2,363 - $4,725.00).

The Riverside Community College Art Gallery will showcase three dimensional constructions by illustrator Maria Rendon from October 19 through November 20.

Rendon, a native of Mexico, received her BFA in illustration from Art Center College of Design in 1992. Her commercial work—editorial, publishing, corporate, advertising—has appeared in Bloomberg, Business Week, Discover, Harper’s, Los Angeles Times Magazine, Money, Magazine, Smart Money, Wall Street Journal, Worth, and other general interest and specialty publications.

Rendon recently illustrated Touching the Distance, a children’s book of Native American riddle-poems by Brian Swain that Harcourt, Brace & Co. of New York published this year.

“I see both illustration and personal work as an opportunity to explore new ways of communicating visually,” Rendon said.

In her work, Rendon puts together all types of material (wood, metals, glass, paint, found objects, crafted objects) to convey meaning. To give added importance to ideas, she often uses openings or windows as containment or sheltering devices.

Rendon says she loves “making objects...getting an idea in my head and through many types of exploration, creating an object out of it.” By combining elements and techniques from her personal artwork and illustration she seeks to create an artistic language that works in both areas.

The Art Gallery is located in the A.G. Paul Quadrangle on the Riverside City College Campus. Hours are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Wednesdays from 5 to 7 p.m. The gallery is closed on the weekends and on school holidays.
