STATE COLLEGES GAIN IN MINORITIES EMPLOYMENT

From 1965 through 1970 the California State Colleges have nearly doubled in the proportion of ethnic minorities employed, according to Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke. The information was obtained from the Colleges' Sixth Annual Employment Survey.

The report shows an increase in total ethnic minority employment from 6.4 to 12.6 percent but does not reflect the changes in specific occupational categories. Within some classifications the increase is even greater, such as faculty members, from 3.2 to 9 percent.

Recognizing that a great deal of work remains to be done, Chancellor Dumke called particular attention to efforts by several campuses to broaden their recruiting bases, along with efforts to train individuals with potential ability and skills for employment within the colleges. (A copy of the report is posted in the Library.)
