The Association

The well-known singing group, "The Association," who are returning to southern California from a Canadian tour, will appear in San Bernardino Saturday, March 5.

Their concert, sponsored by the ASB, will be held in the California Theatre of the Performing Arts on 4th street at 8 p.m. Tickets at $5 may be purchased at the box office after 6 p.m., or in advance through the Cal State activities office, Bravofroth's in San Bernardino or Gillette's Records in Riverside.

In addition to the light rock, easy-listening music of the Association, the concert will include the mime of Mark Wenzel and the comedy of Bedlam A.C. Also appearing will be the winner of a talent contest now underway at Cal State.

The mime has appeared in concert with Elton John, Z.Z. Top, B.T.O. and Cheech and Chuck. Bedlam A.C. appears on the Dr. Demento radio show, and is working as committee members in arrangements for the concert are Alfonso Silva of Thermal; and Scott McIntyre, Paula Rainberger, Tim Hambre and Doris Pollard of San Bernardino.

The Black Student Union opened Black History Week with the third annual luncheon, and its theme this year was "Black Women in America." The speakers were Lois Carson, a member of the San Bernardino Valley College Board of Trustees and Cal State alumni; Jewell Singleton, San Bernardino City School Board member; and Anne Rhodes, the city's Human Resources Director.

What makes these ladies so special? Because they were the first Black women to hold their positions in San Bernardino. They talked about the obstacles in a Black woman's life. First they stated that many Black women are alone. Second, they stated that Black women are the exception rather than the rule. Third, she is considered totally different from other women.

The women explained that Black women just don't work for money, but to open doors for others and to get experience that could lead to better job opportunities. One of the hardest things for the involved Black women to do is to keep her home together. The absent father and strange working hours makes this task rather difficult.

Singleton stated three lessons necessary for the Black woman accomplishment. The first lesson is, "Dare to be different." Take a class out of your field of study or if you are in school plan to take a class or two. Look for a job that is different and rewarding. Second lesson, "You can do it if you try." Be assertive; put forth some extra effort. Third lesson, "What's worth having is worth working." Share a remedy for hard knocks and heartaches with someone who is having a rough time. When you hear of a job opportunity, tell a friend.

It was clearly felt by those attending the luncheon that the only way that Black women are going to make it is that they help each other and know their minds and spirits nourished.

This reporter would like to give the personal thanks to the BSU for being functional on campus and to Carson and Singleton for their inspiration. Let's not wait for Black History Week to have more Black speakers on campus because they have something to offer everyone.

Feb. 22 was a noteworthy day. It was the day after the only school holiday this quarter. It was the first day the San Bernardino area received any rain for many weeks. Aldrin made history by landing on the moon. Aldrin said that, "Neil Armstrong" made history by being motionless. "Neil (Armstrong) made history by being the man to take the first step — but I made my own," he said.

Astronaut Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin was the featured speaker at the high school Science Club held here Feb. 18. Over 40 high schoolers attended.

Buzz Aldrin spoke on "Space Frontier—Past, Present and Future." The speech consisted of a science fiction story, the point of which was to demonstrate that people of today must take responsibility for the future. He ended his speech with a description of how the astronauts would perform their bathroom routines after the meeting was to have started, and it appeared that only sight of rain or there existed a concurrent motion was passed to reconvene.

The meeting held Feb. 15 was a fruitful one as far as action by the Senate was concerned.

A motion was discussed to reclassify the ASB Secretary, Linda Purden, from Clerical Assistant 2D to Secretarial Assistant 2D. This resulted in the reclassification the ASB Secretary to the Administration which was sent to the ASB Secretary, were going to show up. Whether the reason for the Senate's absence was highly-visible, the Senators were spellbound by the sight of rain. The Senator for the more available of the following actions to the Appropriations Committee for study and approval:

- A memo from Joe Long to release the remaining $600 of a funds to cover the additional $1,000 allocated to the Physical Education Department to be used in hiring a student assistant to coach and take care of the handball courts at night.

During the weeks of February 23 through March 4, special times have been designated for students to consult with School Deans and members of personnel committees regarding the effectiveness of faculty, librarians, and student affairs officers. These consultations will not take the place of the written evaluations conducted each quarter. Instead, the consultations will give the student the opportunity to provide additional or more explicit commentary than is permitted by the evaluation forms.

Schedules will be posted outside the offices listed below, and students may contact the appropriate office during the designated periods or request appointments to comment of effectiveness.

Normally when veterans are getting discharge orientation, they miss out on certain veterans benefits that they may need or wanted to take advantage of. This week I will give a quick review of those benefits and the time limit in which to use them.

G 1. education: The VA will pay you while attending a complete high school, go to college, learn a trade, either on the job or in an apprenticeship program. Maximum time entitled is 45 months. You must begin your course in time to finish in 10 years after discharge.

Tutorial aid: While attending college, the VA will pay you while entering a trade. Maximum amount of money that can be spent on a tutor a month is $60. The limit of this is 10 years after discharge.

G 1. home loans: The VA will guarantee purchase of a home, farm, mobile home, or condominium. There is no time limit in which to use this benefit.

Disability compensation: The VA will pay a veteran while carrying a permanent housebound, drug treatment is available for veterans with disabilities. Veterans who are totally disabled may apply for a waiver of these policies. Veterans who are entitled to this benefit have one year from date of notification to file a disability rating. SGLI: SGLI may be converted to an individual policy, with a particular insurance company. A veteran has up to 120 days or up to 1 year to totally disable to convert their policy.

Employment: Assistance is available in funding employment in private industry, in Federal Service and in local government. There is no time limit to use this benefit. A veteran should check with local personnel for more information.

Unemployment compensation: There is assistance available in funding unemployment payment periods vary between states. There is a limited time to apply for it. Application should be filed within 10 days after separation at possible.

Those having any questions about these benefits should contact the Veterans Coordinator or Vet Rep on Campus.
Travel-study opportunities abound

The recent trend in short term study programs has created a unique educational opportunity for both students and teachers to explore different cultures and histories in-depth. The programs are led by lecturing university professors. Optional undergraduate credit is available, graduate credit by special arrangement. The programs are open to everyone; prerequisites only by the desire to learn, experience and explore. A sampling of this year’s programs includes:

University of California, San Diego Extension Division:
Europe '77. June 26-Aug. 5. Fifth annual Humanities Tour visits England, France, Italy, Netherlands, Austria, Germany and Greece. Includes seven-day cruise to Greek Islands and Turkey. Land $1350. Flight $489.

California Northridge Extension Division:
VW camping, Scandinavia and Russia. July 2-Aug. 2. Visits Scandinavia, Russia, Poland, East and West Germany. Ideal for culture enthusiasts. Land $779. Flight $489.

University of Southern California Extension Division:
Orient Express. Aug. 3-Sept. 2. Visits Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, Malayasia, Bali, Indonesia, Thailand, Korea and Taiwan. Includes instruction and lectures by professional photographer. $148.

California State Los Angeles Extension Division:

Programs coincide, participants may take one or both. Includes instruction by professional photgrapher. Combined program $2549.

Cal State Northridge Extension Division:
VW camping, Scandinavia and Russia. July 2-Aug. 2. Visits Scandinavia, Russia, Poland, East and West Germany. Ideal for culture enthusiasts. Land $779. Flight $489.

When Betsy Evans, 43, of Riverside decided to go back to college last year so she could take on a career, not just a job, she had her doubts. "I wondered if I could study while at the emotional upheaval of a divorce. I wondered if I could still read fast enough to keep up, and I had test anxiety," she remembers.

Now a year later she says she has found she can manage her household of four teenage boys, sell her house and take finals at the same time.

Evans is one of the many Cal State, San Bernardino older students who have come back to school for new careers, additional education for existing careers or for personal enrichment and growth.

Half of Cal State's student body is 27 or older, and the growing number of these older students has prompted the establishing of an information and referral service for them, the Cal State Center for New Directions. Center director is admissions officer Cheryl Weese.

"The center sees people who are looking for reassurance that they can make it through college or who are confused and are looking for a focal point they can move out from," Weese said.

The center provides this reassurance and explores possible points of focus with the potential older student in an initial interview. The center also provides information on the College's 37 undergraduate majors and seven graduate degrees, financial aid, the child and infant care centers, campus support groups, counselors and opportunities to brush up on classroom skills in the college's Learning Resources Center.

If the potential student decides to enroll, the center's personnel will evaluate his or her transcript and help with the admissions process. All of the center's services are free.

The center also provides community speakers from Cal State faculty and staff on topics ranging from a video presentation of life at Cal State for the older student to "Techniques of Managing Stress" and "Occupational Development in Women."

"We know there are people out there we can help," Weese said. Weese may be contacted at 887-7311 or messages for her may be left with the Evening Services Office from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, 887-7520.

In the last issue of the PawPrint (Feb. 15) the above photos inadvertently appeared without captions. Various individuals indicated their curiosity as to what the occasion was. It was an ASB Fashion Show organized by Doris "Cookie" Pollard. Among models were La Nice Williams (left) and Yvonne Dix. Both photos were taken by Chi Quang.

Heart attacks reaching epidemic proportions

Prior to this century, the condition was practically unknown, and even in the 1900's only an erudite specialist could make the diagnosis. What is the origin, the etiology, of this disease, and why has it become so prevalent? We'll look at these questions for the next several weeks. Today we'll start with some history of pertinent medical research, which perhaps points out flaws in the way we conduct our research.

Atherclerosis is the term given to the disease process which underlies nearly all cardiovascular disease such as heart attacks and strokes. The common name for this condition is hardening of the arteries. In the Eighteenth Century, the period of the birth of pathology by Morgagni, autopsy studies revealed plaques, or deposits, in the arteries of deceased persons. These deposits were named atheromas from the Greek athero, meaning mucus or gruel.

Several generations later, analytical techniques and organic chemistry were applied to the study of body constituents and one of the compounds identified quite early was cholesterol. Chevreul, in 1818, identified it in human bile and named it, again from the Greek, chole, bile, and sterol. In 1843, the presence of cholesterol in atheromas was demonstrated by Voegeli.

Atheromas remained little more than a laboratory curiosity until after World War II, when the rapid increase in incidence of heart attacks made a significant impact on the thinking of researchers and the public. Since atherclerosis seemed to be the underlying cause of heart attacks, and since atheromas were part of atherocclerosis, and since cholesterol was found in atheromas, a cause and effect relationship was established. Never mind the importance of cholesterol in the body such as the fact that cholesterol occurs naturally in all tissues, that 15 per cent of the dry weight of the brain is cholesterol, that cholesterol is a starting compound in sex hormone synthesis (I mean talk about important), and that the body synthesizes about 2000 milligrams per day naturally.

No, in spite of this, an enormous research effort was generated that even with large expenditures of money and effort, has refined the ancient concepts only a little. Now, for example, we know that atheromas contain large amounts of other fatty materials as well as cholesterol; that as the disease progresses, calcium deposits give the fatty structure rigidity (hardening of the arteries); and other important facts too, but the approach seems to have failed to provide real understanding of the fundamental process underlying heart disease.

What is the problem? Scientists, after all, are only human, in cholesterol and saturated fat, some people, have found a research area, they have become recognized as experts, and they obtain large grants to perpetuate their studies. That is to say, a great deal of momentum has been established in this line of research and a lot of people like that way. Out of this, the official scientific paradigm, that is the official hypothesis that medical science promotes to explain the dietary contribution to atherocclerosis, has become one of discrediting data of cholesterol and saturated (animal) fat, and increasing the consumption of unsaturated (vegetable) fat. Hundreds of research articles can be found to support this.

But let's close this time with the thoughts of Thomas Kuhn of Princeton, who believes that most scientists carry out normal
Arlo Harris interview:

by Sydnee Moser-James

Editor's Note: This is the last in a series of interviews with Arlo Harris, Assoc. Professor of Chemistry, on the subject of drug abuse.

PawPrint: Could you tell us a little about depressants?

Harris: The “downers” or depressants are considerably worse than stimulants. The person who takes a depressant is trying to get away from something. The drug, therefore, is internally upset and in constant turmoil. Their systems function as if they were saying, “Oh, I will crawl into my little shell and then I don’t have to really talk about what’s going on.” The person who has abused the “downer” for a long time is very ill indeed. He has withdrawn from the real world and not willing or able to talk. And even if he does he probably does not want to tell you the truth. The truth hurts him. For someone to sit down and really talk about what’s going on is far too painful.

Now because the person who abuses the depressant is already upset, already in misery, he has to treat him with great caution, like a child, a small animal. He’s gone out at one set thing because he feels that “this is the source” of that with which he can’t cope. This is as opposed to the person on the stimulant who will direct his attention to anything and everything all at once because he is so erratic. People who abuse “downers” and try to commit crimes are very methodical in what they do. They may, for example, sneak up on you point blank and not worry about it because they are directing all of that at you and they don’t want to share it with anyone else. This is often what has occurred in situations where we find someone who has committed a crime. I can’t understand how that person could have done that. How could that person have methodically stabbed the victim sixty-seven times?”

People who abuse “downers” and try to commit crimes are very methodical in what they do.

The brutality of crimes committed by people who abuse depressant drugs is just appalling. It has taken a long time for us to realize that there’s a very simple reason for that. It is the after-effect. It would take a little bit of time for your eyes to adjust after you take a depressant. Many different names. Some people can handle it. Some people can’t handle it. And when it is expressed, it is just like a dam bursting. We say “My God, nobody could have done this.” But, somebody did.

PawPrint: How do the hallucinogens compare with the other drugs you have discussed?

Harris: The hallucinogens, or drugs that cause “pharoahs,” have been around for a long time. They are a way of building a strange world for oneself. They are a way of building a strange world they have created. It is not the drug that kills you, it is what happens when you are under the influence of the drug.

PawPrint: What about marijuana?

Harris: Marijuana is a very interesting drug; it has been around for centuries and has many different names. Some people can handle it. Some people can’t handle it. It would take a little bit of time for your eyes to adjust. Many different names. Some people can handle it. Some people can’t handle it. It is an established fact that marijuana does some peculiar things to the body. It slows down the recovery time for certain types of trauma to the nervous system.

PawPrint: What about LSD?

Harris: LSD is a natural compound. But rarely do you find people dying from the effects of hallucinogenic drugs. They may do peculiar things which kill them, thinking they can fly or walk through fire, living in this strange world they have created. It is not the drug that kills you, it is what happens when you are under the influence of the drug.

The Grateful Dead - Alive and Kicking

One might get the impression from some of the current rock publications that any group that emerged before about 1970 or so is passé, outdated and behind the times. Last Saturday, the Swing Auditorium shook to thunderous applause and unanimous foot-stomping, as the audience eagerly awaited the return of the Grateful Dead to the stage for an encore.

The Grateful Dead?

Yes, none other than the Grateful Dead were performing, and judging from audience reaction, they were anything but outdated or behind the times. In fact, they seemed to be every bit as credible (or incredible) a group as they were during the heyday of the Bay Area sound, in the late 60’s and early 70’s.

Taking the stage promptly at 7:30, the Dead wasted no time on amenities, but went straight into their music, beginning a marathon performance which would eventually stretch to over three hours in length. Keeping the music subdued yet supple, and aided by Jerry Garcia’s mellifluous, Framptonesque voice, the audience’s excitement at a fever pitch during almost every song, without having to resort to mad, frenzied and/or contrived guitar solos, or loud screaming on the part of the vocalists.

About the only disappointing feature of the concert was the fact that the band did only one encore, when it was quite apparent that the crowd still wanted more. However, after three hours of almost nonstop rock, most of the audience was probably too tired to really care.

The Grateful Dead may not ever enjoy the peak of success which they attained a few years ago. But, as evidenced by their showing at the Swing, they are still an active, viable musical source, and will continue to be for some time to come.

What liberals have against Joe

By Jim Austin

Why do liberals hate Joe McCarthy?

When some liberal starts lamenting about McCarthyism, you know you have a pissed off liberal on your hands. The Term, “McCarthyism,” has been in the liberal lexicon of horrors for the past quarter of a century and has been intended for nothing less than dissolving all opposition.

So far this quarter, I have this ultimate exaction against me twice. (Of course, I also managed to get Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini brown at me, but there is little reason to dwell on the demoted vetric of the lunatic fringe.)

The hatred felt by liberals towards McCarthy is real, intense, particularly for those who lived through or was called the “McCarthy era.” They still have nightmares about that period. I personally observed one otherwise sensible and moderate professor come apart at the seams at the mention of McCarthy’s name. He ranted and raved about something which happened during the Army-McCarthy hearings, which he got all wrong except for Joseph Welch’s famous tear-jerking speech, which the professor apparently had memorized.

He then sank into his chair, put, with head in arms, muttering, “Jesus Christ!” The other students in the class, hardly favorably predisposed towards McCarthy, were nonetheless amazed.

Originally “McCarthyism” meant smear, wild, reckless and groundless accusations, ruined reputations. The hysteria of that period was real; it was exhibited mainly by liberals who screamed at the top of their lungs that their freedom of speech was gone.

So why do liberals hate Joe?

We know that the reason has to do with McCarthy’s personal characteristics. He was an uncouth slob, a semiliterate neanderthal, basically an Archey Bunker type. Hardly a worthy object of hatred.

The reason has to do with the history of that time. It wasn’t so much the public’s hostility towards communism, but its reaction to the liberal’s puzzling shiddle towards it. The people weren’t all that certain what communism was all about, but they didn’t come to regard it as an evil something that resulted in human suffering, loss of freedom and mass murders, that communist countries were virtually indistinguishable in terms of ultimate results, from Nazi Germany which our country spent four years fighting.

The people noticed the certain rhetoric characteristic of communists and that it was not limited to just members of the Communist Party. “If it quacks like a duck, it must be a duck,” some were heard to say.

Revisionist history, currently in vogue, holds that it was the acts of the United States which were responsible for bringing on the Cold War, but at the time, US actions were considered weak-kneed, appeasement, soft, etc.

Liberals attitudes towards the domestic threat created even more resentment. Liberals were openly indifferent to the problems of national security, even after the theft of the atom bomb. Most specifically, the issue concerned what to do about security risks, individuals who were not proven spies, but of whom there existed evidence which casts doubt upon their loyalty and-or reliability.

Liberals’ belief that the presumption of innocence should apply effectively precluded doing anything about security risks. And thus liberals opposed any effective security programs.

Thus various people started wondering out loud just whose side liberals were on. The situation was ripe for Joe McCarthy.

McCarthy became the symbol of the people’s reaction to the apparent moral paralysis of liberals towards a totalitarian enemy. Current mythology holds that only a few people had the courage to denounce McCarthy until around the end of his career. But the fact is that from the very beginning of his career (the Wheeling Speech) there was a continual, never ending barrage of denunciation of McCarthyism from all the sectors of respectable opinion.

Liberals thus had good reason to hate Joe McCarthy. The main message that was coming across from all those hearings and security investigations was that the entire left wing spectrum was suspect. Those investigated were generally people of liberal-left views. The notion which was suggested by all this is that there are shared premises between liberalism and the totalitarian left which tends to render the former useless in opposing the latter.

Liberals mobilized to destroy McCarthy in order to discredit this notion, and the name of McCarthy is invoked in order to intimidate anyone from in any way alluding to it. Well, that notion happens to be true. The events of the last decade provide ample evidence to demonstrate it. Indeed, liberals’ hatred of Joe McCarthy would not be so intense if it weren’t.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The Associated Body Government is requesting that a 0.50 cent per student, per year fee increase be implemented. This fee increase was adopted by both the A.S.B. Senate, and Executive Cabinet with one dissenting vote. There is a concern between both houses of the government comprising 21 elected officials. Fixed Costs are increasing. Fixed Costs are insurance, utilities, accounting, telephones, staff, and materials:

For example the State of California requires us to purchase liability insurance, buy, and furnish sports equipment to students, we must have insurance on the building, etc. Insurance costs will go up approximately 20 percent next year. You have probably noticed that the College is moving into the Student Union Building, and will have to pay rent because of state policy, and also furnish our offices.

Student enrollment at Cal State San Bernardino has increased fairly constant for the last two years and is projected to be approximately 21,000 next year. The A.S.B. fee has remained constant for the last 12 years while fixed costs have continued to increase.

The Association defended fairly against the idea of some students who have participated in the committee's efforts. The A.S.B. Book Coop exists primarily to provide students willing to volunteer a little time and effort to help other students, sell and buy books at a low cost. We have almost no overhead, because this service is provided by volunteer labor. The students who helped this quarter are: Claire Covington (Chairperson), Doug Cole, Jim Gallen, Mike Messert, Art Millward, Fred Dehaco, and Maria Dehaco, Marty Masterman, Gina Brunnen, Lupe Lopez, Judy McGraw, Gail Lucoks, and Steve "Hippy" Sparks.

Without the efforts of these and other students who volunteered many of our activities, and services would be impossible to provide. It would have been impossible to participate in this, or other A.S.B. functions, contact Claire Covington or myself at ext. 7494, or stop by the A.S.B. Trailer.

Sincerely yours,
Kevin R. Gallagher
A.S.B. President

The Association defended the idea that the concert is being put on for the sole purpose of raising money. This is not the main reason why the concert is being put on. The A.S.B. has already raised plenty of money, via your ASB fee. (It's part of the money you shell out every time you register.) The concert is one of the many activities that the A.S.B. sponsors for your, and everybody's, enjoyment.

This brings me to the point of my letter. Since you obviously prefer a different type of activity, why don't you do something constructive about it? Let the A.S.B. officers know what kind of activities you want. Get in there and push for your ideas. Help organize the activities you want. A little effort on your part could easily result in more activities to your liking.

If you, or anybody, has ideas about activities, take them to the A.S.B. Officers. Believe me, they want to hear them. (Right now, they're knocking their brains out trying to think up new activities.) The Activities Committee meets every Tuesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the ASB trailer (west of Student Services). The meetings are open to anybody, and anyone who has an idea or wants to help get more activities is more than welcome. If you cannot come to the meeting, I will be more than happy to take ideas to them for you. I can be reached by phoning Shandlin House at 887-420, or, preferably, by writing to me at: Serrano Village 6000 State College Pkwy. San Bernardino, CA 92407

Finally, you somehow have the idea that the concert is being put on to get more activities to your liking. You have the idea that the concert is being put on to please the Activities Committee. You have the idea that the concert is being put on for the sole purpose of raising money. This is not the main reason why the concert is being put on. The A.S.B. has already raised plenty of money, via your ASB fee. (It's part of the money you shell out every time you register.) The concert is one of the many activities that the A.S.B. sponsors for your, and everybody's, enjoyment.

Of course, if you're just too lazy to do anything yourself, I would not be too enthusiastic about helping you. So, in conclusion, I just want to let everybody know that I have found that the Activities Committee is very open to ideas. All that is needed to get the activities you want is just a little effort from you. That's all, just a little effort from you.

Music Lover

Dear Editor:

I have read Clark Elder's marvelous eulogistic essay on nothing; I shall not waste my precious time in such pursuits. He says merely the same thing Austin had said: "new music ignores the emotions."

I'd like to do a Morrow-Ashton Memorial Piano Concert featuring Satie's Vexations to Morrow's difference between monotony and boredom... Dan Lenz' piece for two amplified inverted-Anna Lockwood's Piano Burning Piece (a real gas); and Matt Riedel is writing a new piece for piano and shotgun.

Now would not such an event affect your emotions? Of course, but even the enlightened Music Department here might lack the skills at such an endeavor. So continue your efforts at the destruction of new music! I simply won't work, though people are not that dumb.

Liberals may live in megaloy and worry needlessly about the real inside of people. However, so do the real inside of people. Liberals may live in intellectual circles where the loud voice passes for conviction. Everyone who disagrees with you is one of the best.

McCarthy lives

"I live,—yet not I, but Christ lives in me."

As you breathe. Second accuse everyone who disagrees with you of being a liberal or a communist. This is the best in liberal intellectual circles where the loud voice passes for conviction. There are many kinds of knee jerk fascists, and the lately dead Joe is one of the best.

Conervative menagerie boasts

By Frank W. Moore

Contributions in all shapes and sizes, just like the humans they simulate. Particularly notable, conservatives tend to fall into well-defined groups. Let's see. The hardliner, scheming, thoroughly disgustingly conservative (HOTDC). An unmitigated saint, his facial expression looks as though he is about to spit at any time. We can always note the tight-lipped expression, as though he has sat on a tack.

His main bag is complete insincerity. If anyone points out to him that maybe opportunities are not as fairly spread as they might be, he will concern with anecdotes of his struggles to the top on which his smugly-inept inheritance. He is always ready to point out, to no seeming end, that maybe minorities don't succeed because they are lazy...it's at least a possibility, anyway...

...so, we defend our successful brothers, one by one, as they come up with any reason to cover up their lack of success. However, the HOTDC tends to see as a self-evident truth, and people fear his sneering dint.

There's also the assured and self-righteous, sneeringly and haughtily, overbearing and leering conservative (ASSHOLE-C). They are easily offended by anyone on their level or lower.

...and to be our own liberty's sake conservatives, etc., all come within their scorn. ASSHOLE-C's never will admit that there just might be something wrong with their ideas, lest they loudly defend them. They rarely say much of anything, but instead rely on loud laughter, fakeconvict, incredulous faring, and descriptions beginning with "fucking..."

People usually endeavor to keep their best moments, their most profound experiences to themselves lest they be veritably belittled by an ASSHOLE-C. Who would dare to admit they were engaged in a protest once, or have black friends, or that they write poetry on occasion, a sure profound experience to them.

Lastly, we come to the most disgusting specimen of them all: the change with the wind conservative (CWTWC), better known as a Reagan-Style Viper Chameleon (RSV). A victim has been rendered helpless, or has a conscience, or has lost the hippies-types protesting for energy conservation and ecology.

Nothing will halt them in their quest to provide the proper moral atmosphere for the bulk of Americans. The FOOL-System resides on judgement. After all, he is the guardian.

As a student, how many times have you found yourself saying to another student, "Hey, you're going to liberal school, so-and-so is really good; you should take his/her class." Perhaps you would like to go up to that particular professor, and say, "I think you are doing a terrible job and I appreciate the time and effort you have spent preparing your lectures and the help you have given me when I came to your office." But you never did it. You would have been embarrassed to tell the prof that the prof would have been embarrassed and you didn't want to be accused of brown-snoozing. Maybe you have yourself in the opposite position. Don't think that Dr. Thus-and-such can get his intent across, or you think his assignments are unreasonable or grading unfair. Silent praise benefits nobody, and random bitching and meaning shared with your classmates may have tremendous calvaric value but does little to correct actual deficiency. Students should take advantage of the opportunity to Do Something about these situations.

The Board of Trustees in response to pressure from the Cal, State Univ. and Colleges Student President's As., has established a policy requiring schools to provide time for student consultation or faculty effectiveness. The type of consultation varies from campus to campus. On this campus, the School Deans and representatives of the State, the School Retention, Promotion, and Tenure Committee; have set aside a minimum of ten hours over a two week period each quarter (usually during the eight and ninth weeks) for consultation with students. These conferences can be for praise, complaints, or general discussion about any relevant issue pertaining to faculty effectiveness. The type of consultation varies from campus to campus. Robert Lee, Assoc. Dean of Academic Affairs, was in- terviewed by Lee for that entire week. Lee was asked if these conferences had any legislative effect, whether they could help students or not. The answer was: Not unreasonable, or grading unfair. Silent praise benefits nobody, and random bitching and meaning shared with your classmates may have tremendous calvaric value but does little to correct actual deficiency. Students should take advantage of the opportunity to Do Something about these situations.

The PawPwrt encourages students to take advantage of this opportunity to make your feelings known. The examination and resolution of complaints through the School Dean and the representatives of the RPT committee is one of the most effective tools that student has to participate in the continual upgrading of academic quality. But in our zeal to air problems, let us not forget the many, many professors as well, who are doing an excellent job and whose work is more than deserving of our praise.

SPA is an active student lobby

By Kevin Gallagher

Most students are not aware that there exist other students and other campuses in the California State University and College system. There exists an organization of California government at various levels: in the Board of Trustees, the legislative body, and the governors office. This involvement is primarily through the California State Universities and Colleges Student Presidents Association (SPA).

Is this money well spent? Last week, the SPA, the Student Presidents Association was comprised of the student presidents from the campuses within the C.S.U.C. that have student governments. For the SPA Legislative Board, their legislative efforts signed into law, and to tremendous legislative effect which the SPA opposed, only one became law.

The SPA has been formally credited by the California State Senate Educational Committee with saving the students of the C.S.U.C. 225,000,000.00 in proposed fee increases in one academic year alone. It is generally recognized in Sacramento and across the United States that the SPA is one of the finest and most active student lobbyists in the country. It is also recognized that the primary reason why C.S.U.C. fee's are the lowest in the country is because of a strong and effective student lobby.

The SPA by majority consensus makes statewide policy decisions affecting students. The SPA is recognized by the State as being the formal representation voice of the 300,000 students within the system. Each student within the state pays 15 cents in dues to provide an operating budget for the SPA. Most of this money is used to hire and provide staffing for the SPA Legislative Board. The Advocate is a registered lobbyist with the State of California. The money is also used to participate in the continual upgrading of academic quality.

In our zeal to air problems, let us not forget the many, many professors as well, who are doing an excellent job and whose work is more than deserving of our praise.

Kaopectate stops the runs of Those Guys

By Laria Dieffenbachia

"And on the Seventh Day, there were Cal State Intramurals," Cal State was not always the large, bustling institution it is today. It didn't always have students in famous far away places like Sony Springs. Nor did it have its alumni running for mayor of a great metropolis like San Bernardino. (I feel obligated to mention Richard Bennecke's name, who is running for mayor of San Bernardino, as this may be the first and last time you hear about him.)

Cal State's intramural beginnings were humble ones. There was no gymnasium or professional (?) coordinator like Joe Long so activities had to be invented and organized by sports and other events.

Beefers II by 8 points.

Two Percol Co-Ed Basketball - This quarter's two on two co-ed basketball league is going to be the tightest one in years. Five of the six teams have proven their almost complete incompetence, while the sixth hasn't made an appearance yet. The two deciding factors, in my mind, are whether Little One, Big One or Pink One show up or which team is least intact. Here are how the teams will finish:

1. Little One, Big One (Whichever they are) - Darlene Curtis, Jim Person
2. Persistent Pair - Dianne Bleecker, Mark Womack
3. Who Knows: Cathy Jackson, David Bennett
4. Alabama Mama: Debbie Wade, Mohammed Saleh
5. Who Cares - Aiyen Hendrickson, Joe Long
6. JD-1: C.S. Myers, Jim Given

Predictions are quite arbitrary and subjective and the predictor is witheld to prolong the life of same.

The Intramural Department would like to congratulate the winners of the Ping-Pong and Jacks Tournament. Participants of the Ping-Pong Tournament were: Terry Glenn, Francois McGinnis, Chuck Talmadge, Bijan Llahaghr and Frank Greitzer. Bijan Llahaghr, a foreign exchange student from Iran, stole the top position in Intra. Congratulations, Bijan!

Participants in the Jacks Tournament were Mary Muller, Berta McPhaul, Sandy Carter, (all renown women basketball players), Jerry Post, John Calasio, Floyd Jones, Sharon Graham and Kenneth Dean. With great skill and stamina, Shawn

"The wind factor made these events fast and unpredictable than the ones after 1968 when the gym was finished. There were also softball games, the teams co-ed, mainly because a lack of males who could participate.

Football touch was popular, and played by men only. There were "informal" tackle games on Sunday, and subsequent funerals on the Sundays following. Basketball was played outside with the Seniors, Juniors, Freshpersons and Sophomores each getting a team together. The DAID was given most of the outside games more fun and unpredictable than the ones after 1968 when the gym was finished.

During last week's distance runner Dennis Kipchoge of Kenya's "Daudi for Two Call classic operetta piece, First prize was $60.

Second place ($30) went to Mojave Good Time Band who performed a Bluesgrass in Taking the Prize, was the King who sang "I Honestly Don't You" playing the piano. There were 30 acts in all, included guitar singers, duos, guitar players, etc. An entire 150 people attended the event. The contest was deemed "successful" by ASF President Keagan Gallagher and Dr. Norris, ASF activities chairperson. Judging the event was Judge Morgan, Art Department, and Bob Strong, Music Department.

Ancient card game to be played

By Peter Guzzinia

As the winter quarter fades into the sunset, there remains but one event on the Big Tuesday schedule... Bid Whist. Whist, an ancient game of cards similar to Bridge, was first played popular by T.J. Horatio Hombrewer in 1876.

"Through the years the game has undergone several changes, for foremost being the addition of the bid."

Dr. Benjamin J. Dover, who prepped at Woodell Park in Riverside, California, will be guest instructor tonight at 6 p.m. in the Morongo recreation room. Dover was chairman at the International Whist Conference (Chicago) in 1971, has participated in several world class tournaments including the Lake Titicaca Invitational and, along with his wife, Eileen, is champion of the Tri-State League and Lesser Antilles.

The Cal State Tournament will take place on Tuesday, March 8 outside in the Morongo recreation room.

So, call your own group and come to the Department for more information.

In last week's closest distance runner Dennis Kipchoge outlasted four other candidates in the Flaxaiiing of Hard Meadow was trailing, 8-21, going into the final round but was assisted from the dubious last place start.
