Imagine a party with over 600 guests who have more in common than a love of good food, games and fun - they are all related. Five generations of the Muñoz family of Redlands celebrated such an event last Saturday at the Eagles Lodge in San Bernardino.

The Muñoz Family Reunion began just after noon with a memorial Mass, followed by games and activities such as a moon bounce, clowns, face-painting and karaoke for around 200 kids, plenty of food and then dancing to a live band until midnight.

From as far as Kentucky and Illinois and all over California, members of the Muñoz family gathered to commemorate their kinship.

Although most of the immediate families in the Muñoz heritage are larger than average, many of them were still pleasantly surprised to see and meet so many people that they could call family.

Lovey Gonzales Guerrero, a third generation Muñoz with 14 kids, said she was not really shocked to see such a big family. "I did most of it," she quipped.

"I am overwhelmed and amazed by such a great turn out," said Raymond de Espinoza, 80, who became misty eyed and whose favorite part of the reunion was feeling honored to be the oldest descendant. "I see my family enjoying themselves and introducing themselves. I had no idea this would be such an emotional thing."

Although Espinoza bought 80 dozen tortillas for the event, he remarked that until today he could not even fathom the size of the family, "There are so many of us and we are all so different, but all united."

"All the time spent organizing was time well spent," Espinoza said of the committee that set to work over 10 months ago to bring their family together.

The job of the reunion committee does not end with the reunion. Lydia Orantes, who maintains files on over 700 relatives, has set up a Munoz family website.

By the end of the day, families in the Muñoz heritage are all united.

The Godoy family and law enforcement agencies are seeking the whereabouts of Bianca Godoy, 15-year-old disabled person who has disappeared.

The famous Route 66 actually came down from the Cajon Pass into Mount Vernon Avenue and went on Fifth Street into the Los Angeles area. As a result, Mount Vernon was a very busy thoroughfare with numerous businesses, restaurants and motels.

The demise of the area was the result of the construction of the 215 freeway.

The one-day Route 66 is being sponsored by HOPP-O’s, Juan Pollo, Tri-color-590/1410, Kiwanis Club of Greater San Bernardino, San Bernardino’s TORN Program and the Gents Organization.

EDITORIAL: Joe Baca is the best choice for the 42nd Congressional District

The voters of the 42nd Congressional District will go to the polls on September 21st to elect a congressman since the late Congressman George Brown died early this year.

There are a number of candidates from different parties including five Democratic candidates, and the voting citizens are observing two major players that potentially have greater opportunity to capture the seat.

The other strong candidate is Republican Elia Pirrozi who will undoubtedly win the total Republican vote with the support of the voters in the 42nd Congressional District.

Baca’s long history of community involvement gives him a solid knowledge of grassroots issues. His three terms on the community college board is a positive indicator of a strong commitment to the education of our youth, coupled with his support of educational incentives to minorities.

His record in Sacramento, first as an assemblyperson and most recently as a senator, has enhanced his legislative skills, and has served his district(s) extremely well, successfully pushing through programs and funding benefiting our area.

His political acumen is highly effective, considering the fact that he has the strong support of the majority of local unions, Congressional Hispanic Caucus and congressmen, State Hispanic Caucus, local elected officials and community leaders.

Joe Baca has the essential attributes to represent the citizens of the 42nd Congressional District. He deserves your vote.

Univision Announces Education Initiative

Los Angeles, CA - Univision, the nation's leading Spanish-language television network, announced an extensive, multi-year campaign to ensure that Latino students excel educationally. U.S. Department of Education Secretary Richard Riley joined Univision communications Inc. President and Chief Operating Officer Henry Cisneros in making the announcement. The Univision Education Initiative, Tu futuro depende de ti...Educate! (Your Future is in Your Hands...Get an Education!) will deliver the message that quality education for all students is critical to preparing the United States to compete in the world marketplace.

"The latest education statistics reveal unacceptable high dropout rates among Latino students in the U.S. and we must work together to reverse this trend," said Mr. Cisneros. Univision Network will be working with our affiliate stations to provide Latino parents the kind of information they will require to be more savvy users of the education system and better advocates for their children.

The US Department of Education has joined Univision in this effort and will provide educational materials through its toll free number (1-877-433-7827) with bilingual operators available to answer the calls.

"It is critical that all Americans understand the link that a quality education is to a successful future," said U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley. "I hope this partnership with Univision will provide needed resources for Latino parents and community members especially to learn how they can get involved in their children's education and support positive learning opportunities."

The elements of the Univision Education Initiative include national and local public service announcements, with Univision celebrities including "Sabado Gigante" host. Don Francisco and the co-host of the Network's morning program "Despierta America," Giselle Blondet, will be featured in the national Public Service Announcements.

Irene Gonzales Natoli, who described her large family as, "a gift from God."

You could not find a member of the Munoz family who isn't proud of their large family and rich heritage that began in Yucaipa almost a century ago. Since then, the family has grown in size and expanded to touch communities throughout the United States.

Many of the Munoz descendants are members of the Inland Empire Hispanic Hall of Fame, including Ray Espinosa, for his excellence in music, Art Nunez, for his talent as a sports official, Sammy and Cristina Garcia, for their service to the community, and Harry Munoz, Sr., for his athletic skill.

Several of the Munoz descendants are educators, with two principals and one vice principal, one with a Ph.D. in Chemistry. Among the family, there are many in the medical field, mostly RNs. There are executives in the computer industry and finance and several in the grocery industry.

Quite a few are in law enforcement and one is a lawyer. Along with artists, small business owners, engineers, journalists, pilots, horticulturists, numerous members serving in the military and even a sign interpreter for the deaf, the family covers a wide span of talent and trade.

How did the family members become so successful so quickly? "Our grandparents worked so hard," remembers Orantia. "We were always encouraged to succeed and to get educated. We never let our heritage or our gender hold us back. We always kept our family's culture and traditions, but we also learned to achieve as Americans."

Munoz Family History

In 1901, a year after their wedding, Bernardino "Lino" and Cristina Munoz left Chihuahua, Mexico with their first daughter, Rafaela, for a new life in the United States.

The young family settled in Yucaipa where they worked on a ranch for Guy Dunlap. Through several years and nine more children, the Munoz family grew close to Dunlap who built them a house to replace the tent they called home.

Fifteen years, and four children later, Lino and Cristina moved the clan to Redlands where Lino and his sons harvested oranges, while the women worked in the citrus industry packing houses. The family also worked in the Oak Glen Apple Harvest for Mr. Rivers. The name, "Los Rios Ranchos," Lino affectionately gave to Mr. River's Ranch must have stuck because it is still called this today.

Harry was followed by twin boys, Nadie and Nellie. In 1913, before the twins were two years old, Nellie petitioned and lobbied to pave "L" and "Ninth" Streets and to bring electricity to homes in Redlands.

In 1903, the Munoz family welcomed Nellie into the world. She moved to Redlands at 15 and although Nellie had only a ninth grade education, she worked like a Registered Nurse. She worked for Dr. Hill during the notorious flu epidemic of 1918 in Redlands.

Nellie spent most of her adult life in San Bernardino. She served for several years as a midwife and was extremely politically active. Playing an integral role in the development of the city, Nellie petitioned and lobbied to pave "L" and "Ninth" Streets and to bring plumbing and electricity into homes in San Bernardino.

The first Munoz son, Joseph, followed Nellie in birth. One year later, Henry, their second son, came along. Joseph and Henry were lifelong caretakers of the Shirk Residence in Redlands known as Kimberly Crest Estates. Joseph had three children of his own, while Henry had just one.

In 1907, Papa Lino and Mama Tina had number six, Manuel, nicknamed "Ned." Ned spent most of his life in San Diego, working in retail. His real passion was for his violin and for his adopted daughter.

Ned was followed by a double whammy - twins! Reynaldo "Bruno" and Reynaldo. In the footsteps of their father, the twins worked in the orange groves. Bruno, who had two children, started in the harvest and earned his way up to caretaker and eventually owner of his own grove. Reynaldo, the mother of five children and a set of her own twins, worked as an orange packeter.

Cenovia was the ninth Munoz child, born in 1910. She worked along sisters, the legacy of the Munoz family, built by Papa Lino and Mama Tina, as they are lovingly called, began in 1901 with the birth of Rafaela. Rafaela was joined a year later by Tomasa. Both women worked in the packinghouses. Rafaela was mother to five children. In true Munoz family tradition, Tomasa, had sixteen children.

In 1903, the Munoz family welcomed Nellie into the world. She moved to Redlands at 15 and although Nellie had only a ninth grade education, she worked like a Registered Nurse. She worked for Dr. Hill during the notorious flu epidemic of 1918 in Redlands.

in the packinghouse. Eventually, Cenovia mothered two children and went on to manage a toy store - much to the glee of her children and grandchildren.

Four years after Cenovia's birth, another daughter, Louise, was born. Like Cenovia, Louise raised two children and worked in the packinghouses. She moved on to work for 30 years as a production and supply control administrator for Norton Air Force Base.

The youngest daughter, Lucybelle, was born in 1918. Although she worked as an orange packer, she is best remembered by her excellent cooking. Lucybelle was mother to six children.

When Lucybelle was four years old, her younger brother Harold, "Harry," came into the world. Harry was a well-known, star athlete all his life. In high school he lettered in 11 of the 13 Varsity sports. After graduation, the Detroit Lions tried to recruit Harry, but he turned their offer away to marry the love of his life, Lucy. Harry and Lucy were married and raised five children while he worked for Norton Air Force Base. The Munoz family awards two annual scholarships in honor of Harry Munoz.

The baby of the Munoz family, Christopher, was born in 1924. Christopher served in WWII and was wounded in the Philippines. Christopher fathered three children. He finished his military career at Norton Air Force Base working in maintenance.

Although the parents and 13 children of the first Munoz family have passed on, their legacy continues. Five more generations of the Munoz heritage ensure that the memory, traditions, and culture of Papa Lino and Mama Tina will always be alive.

Why lay out your hard earned cash for your business expenses when you can be bartering and paying for them with the additional business we send you?

Conserve your cash outlay and reduce your overhead by bartering with Barter members for your business, personal, family needs and expenses.

When you pay $200 cash outlay out of your pocket for mechanical, printing, legal, medical, office/shop maintenance, TV/appliances, etc., etc., you could have conserved that hard earned cash and paid for those ongoing expenses with the business/credits you have earned and accumulated! Additional business paid for through bartering.

Using your WHOLESALE, buying power, your cost (barter credits equivalent to cash dollars) you are purchasing at the regular price, however actual cost out-of-pocket is your WHOLESALE COST. PLUS YOU STILL HAVE THAT $200 HARD EARNED CASH IN YOUR POCKET - Now doesn't that sound great? INTERESTED?

Inland Empire Future Leaders: A Short History

By Martha Santana

As Future Leaders we want to know everything; as children we wanted to know where we came from, and as Future Leaders we want to know how a magical program such as the Inland Empire Future Leaders Program was founded. Well, it all happened in 1983, when San Bernardino Educator Susan Vargas attended a statewide conference of the Association of Mexican American Educators. Susan was impressed with a presentation by high school students who had attended an AMAE high school leadership conference.

Back in the Inland Empire, Susan, believing that such a program would benefit local students, enthusiastically sought the support of other local educators including Henry Vásquez, Bill Ellison, and Frank Acosta. Seeking support from a local university, Susan, Henry, Bill, and Frank contacted Dr. Tom M. Rivera, Associate Dean for Under-graduate Studies at California State University, San Bernardino. Dr. Rivera’s support and direction provided to be crucial.

The Inland Empire Committee looks forward to another year of excellence with more follow-up workshops and greater participation in future conferences. With the generous help of its supporters, local students will indeed become Future Leaders.
