California Hispanic population increases five times faster than Non-Hispanics in 1980's

WASHINGTON -- The Hispanic community in California increased approximately five times faster than the non-Hispanic population in the state during the 1980s, reports the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials (NALEO). More than one of every four California residents (25.8%) was Hispanic in 1990, according to U.S. Census Bureau data analyzed by NALEO.

Hispanics in California increased by 69.2% from 1980 to 1990, while the non-Hispanic population grew by only 15.4%. There were 4,544,331 Hispanics in California at the beginning of the 1980s, but by the end of the decade their numbers had reached 7,687,938.

Latino population growth had an enormous impact on large California cities. In Los Angeles, for instance, one out of three U.S. Latinos live in this city, says NALEO National Director Harry Pachon, Ph.D. "As the Hispanic community in California broadens its presence, the Latino political future in this state is brightening."

Eaves bill calls on Congress to act on civil rights issues

SACRAMENTO - Assemblyman Jerry Eaves (D-Rialto) has introduced Assembly Joint Resolution 22 in the California Legislature. The measure calls upon the Congress and the President to pass the federal Civil Rights Act of 1991.

The Civil Rights Act, or House Resolution 1, was introduced in Congress earlier this year. It is intended to address problems caused by several recent Supreme Court decisions that undermined two major employment rights statutes. Similar legislation was vetoed by President Bush last year. The Senate attempted to override the veto but failed by one vote.

Eaves' resolution reads in part, "...discrimination against individuals based solely upon their color, religion, gender, or national origin has been an unfortunate part of this country's history." It continues by citing some of the ways this discrimination has manifested itself, areas such as housing, job opportunities and education. It also notes that the Constitution of California makes clear that no citizen of California shall be granted privileges not granted to another.

"This resolution will place the California Legislature on record as supporting equal rights and opportunities for everyone," said Eaves. "It also makes clear that we want to see the landmark gains of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 restored."

AjR 22 will be acted upon by the Legislature within the next month.

Ayala to serve on Senate Transportation Committee

(SACRAMENTO) -- Senator Ruben S. Ayala (D-Chino) announced today that the Senate Rules Committee has appointed him to serve on the Senate Transportation Committee.

The appointment came last Friday following a meeting at which Transportation Committee Chairman Quentin Kopp requested that Senator Ayala join the committee.

"Some of my top priorities on the Transportation Committee will be to finish the improvements planned for Highway 71 between the Pomona (60) Freeway and the Riverside (91) Freeway, and also complete the Foothill (30) Freeway between La Verne and San Bernardino," Ayala said. "I also will work hard to bring about the commuter train line between San Bernardino and Los Angeles, that I first proposed back in the 1970s." Ayala said.

Along with his new duties on the Transportation Committee, Senator Ayala continues as the Chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Water Resources Committee.

He also sits on the Appropriations Committee, Local Government Committee, Revenue and Taxation Committee and the Veterans Affairs Committee.

Inland Empire California Legislature Caucus formed

SACRAMENTO - An Inland Empire Caucus of the California Legislature was formally established today in Sacramento. The Caucus, consisting of Senators and Assemblymembers of both parties, is intended to address issues of importance to San Bernardino and Riverside Counties, in a unified manner.

The Inland Empire Caucus was the idea of Assemblyman Jim Brulte (R-Rancho Cucamonga). He and other local Legislators feel that the best way to ensure fairness for the two counties is to work together in a bi-partisan way.

"Ours is such a dynamic area of the state, that we as representatives have to cooperate and demonstrate our strength," said Assemblyman Jerry Eaves (D-Rialto). Eaves was elected Chairman of the Caucus for 1991.

In addition to working together on state legislation, the Caucus wants to involve local officials in identifying and solving regional problems. Eaves indicated. It is hoped that a series of hearings involving state and local officials can be held in the area this year. Key issues identified by the Caucus this year include: Mental Health, Categorical Funding for Education, Redistricting, Transportation Funding, Local Government, and Water.

The members of the Inland Empire Caucus are: Senator Ruben Ayala (D-Chino), Senator Marian Bergeson (R-Temecula), Senator Bill Leonard (R-Upland), Senator Robert Presley (D-Riverside), Assemblymember Jim Brulte (R-Rancho Cucamonga), Assemblymember Steve Clute (D-Riverside), Assemblymember Jerry Eaves (D-Rialto), Assemblymember Tricia Hunter (R-Rancho Mirage), Assemblymember David Kelley (R-Hemet), Assemblymember Bill Lancaster (D-Upland), Assemblymember Paul Woodruff (R-Redlands).

Leonard on Appropriation Committee

Senator Bill Leonard (R-25) has been appointed to the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee.

"Serving on the Appropriations Committee will be fascinating. The committee sees approximately 75% of all legislation because that many bills are fiscal in nature," Leonard said.

Leonard was also assigned to the Industrial Relations Committee and maintains his position as Vice Chair of both the Housing & Urban Affairs and Toxics & Public Safety management committees.

Leonard remains Chair of the Select Committee on Business Development and continues to serve on the Select Committee on State Procurement Practices and Expenditures.

The committee appointments for the 1991-92 legislative session were made by the Senate Rules Committee.

Cuahtemoc (Temoc) Figueroa 36th Congressional District Field Rep. and Case Worker

Congressman George E. Brown, Jr. 36th Congressional District, announced the recent appointment of Cuahtemoc (Temoc) Figueroa as a field representative and case worker.

Mr. Figueroa, 26, has wide professional experiences in the areas of education, communications and employment. Recently, he was tenured as a planning intern with the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) which involved transportation and land use analysis and development, and serving as community liaison in the Riverside office. Other appointments have been as job developer for the Colorado River Community Action Council in Blythe, teaching assistant for the Escuela de la Raza Unida in Blythe and program director for K.E.R.U. Radio, Blythe.

Born in Blythe, Mr. Figueroa graduated from Brawley Union High School, received an AA Degree from Riverside Community College and a BA Degree in Chicano Studies from UCLA. Member of the Zeta Psi Social Fraternity, he was its treasurer and vice president. His other university involvement included intramural sports, political action clubs and volunteer work.

His father Miguel and uncle Alfredo have been actively involved in community, civil rights and political activities in Riverside County for several decades, which included support for the UFW and rights for the undocumented.

“My dad has always been my role model. Since the age of five, I can remember marching with Cesar Chavez, and for la causa with my dad. He would take me to all the functions and political meetings. I got to meet some wonderful people, like Bert Corona, the father of Chicano politics. This is probably why I am so committed and actively involved,” he stated very softly proudly.

Being involved covers a wide area of community experiences for Mr. Figueroa, including volunteer work in alternative bicultural K-12 school, ESL and bilingual programs, citizenship classes and voter registration. Other activities include coordinator for the Southwest Voter and Education Drive in Riverside, lead official for A.B.C.’s Race Across America, and representative at the 1982 National Federation of Community Broadcasters and he worked as an organizer for the “Keep George Brown in Congress” campaign in 1990.

“I want to go back to school and major in public policy. However, I continue my career in public service with a long term goal to build my own school, funded by the Chicano community emphasizing on mathematics and sciences as well as instilling a sense of history in the student and the importance of community activism.”

UCR Hispanic named deputy-chairman of international conservation group

RIVERSIDE—University of California, Riverside scientist Arturo Gomez-Pompa has been elected deputy chairman of an international conservation commission.

The Species Survival Commission of the IUCN—the World Conservation Union provides international leadership in plant and animal species conservation efforts. Government leaders, scientists, and field researchers from 147 countries participate voluntarily in the Species Survival Commission (SSC).

The global work of the SSC is becoming increasingly important due to the accelerated pressure everywhere on species and their habitats, said George Rabb, chairman of the SSC and director of the Brookfield Zoo in Brookfield, Ill. “The plant conservation side of the SSC was considerably strengthened when Dr. Gomez-Pompa accepted this appointment,” Rabb said.

Species conservation requires management based on understanding of biological sciences as well as cultures, environmental economics, and government dynamics. Plants and botanical issues must be well represented in the development of conservation measures, he said.

Gomez-Pompa, who holds professorial and administrative appointments at UCR, will be guiding the development of the SSC’s “Conservation Action Plans” for plant species threatened with extinction or of special importance to human welfare.

Recognized internationally for his expertise on the conservation and management of tropical forests, Gomez-Pompa has served as chairman of the Plant Advisory Group for IUCN and the World Wildlife Fund, based in Switzerland. An advisor and consultant to several national and international institutions, Gomez-Pompa recently edited a book, sponsored by UNESCO, on tropical forest regeneration and management. The new book includes contributions from leaders in the fields of tropical ecology and forestry.

At UCR, Gomez-Pompa is a professor in the Department of Botany and Plant Sciences and a principal investigator on the Maya Sustainability Project, an international, multidisciplinary research project on the conservation of natural resources and sustainable development in the Maya region of Mexico and Central America. The project is funded by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation and sponsored by UCR.

Gomez-Pompa also serves the University of California system as director of the University of California Consortium on Mexico and the United States (UC MEXUS), a nine-campus research organization headquartered at Riverside.
Calif. High School Drop-out program targets Hispanics

SACRAMENTO -- Actors Edward James Olmos and Rita Moreno, playwright Luis Valdez and musician Carlos Santana joined State Superintendent of Public Instruction Bill Honig, Assemblymember Richard Polanco (D-L.A.), chair of the state legislature's Latino Caucus, Senator Art Torres (D-L.A.), other legislators, representatives of the Governor's office and the California Teachers Association, plus other public officials to encourage support for a new dropout program targeting Hispanic youth. The CALIFORNIA HISPANIC HIGH SCHOOL DROP-OUT PROJECT is being promoted by the Hispanic Media Group, an organization of concerned community professionals that produces films facilitating change for Hispanics in California.

"I am gravely concerned that we are losing 28 percent of our Hispanic high school students before graduation while the overall dropout rate is 20 percent," said State Superintendent of Public Instruction Bill Honig. "Hispanic students make up 26 percent of the high school population but they represent 38 percent of the dropouts. This has serious economic and social implications not only for Latino students but for all Californians," Honig continued. "Skills required of entry level workers are increasing rapidly. Youngsters without solid communication and computation abilities will have a tough time supporting themselves."

"It is really encouraging to see the commitment here today for this comprehensive project to stem the crisis of Latino dropouts," said Honig. "If we succeed in garnering the needed support to fund the program it will provide a 30 minute documentary, curriculum guides and a resource directory designed for use by schools and communities throughout the state."

"We know a lot more now than we did a few years ago about how to make these programs work. A recent evaluation by the Department of Education shows startling success of several comprehensive programs mandated by Senate Bill 65 of 1985 by Senator Torres. When done right we can keep students in school as well as return dropouts to the classroom."

For further information about the proposal contact Margo Segura, Project Director, or Marine Dominguez, Executive Producer of The Hispanic Media Group, Inc. at (415) 331-8560. For information about the SB 65 study contact Marco Orlando with the Department of Education at (916) 322-2212.

However, Mr. Hernandez stated that, "I just wasn't pleased with his priorities." The elected councilperson indicated that voters were disappointed with the performance of Mr. Flores, including his lack of assertiveness, sensitivity and responsiveness which, Hernandez stated, were the reasons the voters returned him to the Council.

The councilperson-elect added his concern over the record number of homicides throughout the City of San Bernardino, the increases in water, refuse, building permits and other taxes disguised as "assessments".

He said, "The important thing is to work towards resolving the problems; working together with the citizens of our city in an honest and cooperative manner."
