Around May 1 all full-time faculty will receive copies of a questionnaire for the Comparative Study of Academic Freedom. This study is a doctoral research program with the goal of increasing knowledge of the ways in which faculty perceptions of academic and other freedoms are affected by institutional control: public, private-independent or sectarian.

Mr. William Van Ness, principal researcher for the study, visited the campus several weeks ago and interviewed a number of faculty members and administrators. The questionnaire reflects the results of his conversations at several colleges and universities, including CSCSB. It is brief and will require only a few minutes to complete. President John M.
