Agent Orange Effects

by Billy McCluskey

There is hope for Agent Orange victims despite the absence of accumulative scientific data, according to Attorney Robert H. Sluck, professor of law at Loyola Law School in Los Angeles, who spoke here last Friday during a seminar on the effects of the deadly chemical.

As the seminar was Dr. Albert Dronscomb who is involved in the field of Environmental Genetic Toxicology at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, Livermore California. Dronscomb tried to illustrate to the audience of about 30 interested veterans, students, and counselors that while inroads have been made in linking certain side effects experienced by a number of Vietnam Vets, to a possible deadly chemical.

Agent Orange is the general name given to the chemicals used in defoliation missions in Vietnam. Airplanes and helicopters would spray the chemicals on dense foliage to uncover enemy trails as well as on agricultural crops of the enemy. Those veterans most likely to be contaminated are the ones who worked and flew on the Agent Orange aircraft, and the ground troops who entered areas after they were sprayed.

The symptoms on individual may experience when exposed to Agent Orange or any other substance that contains the chemical component called dioxin, include: loathing (skin sores or rash), excessive tiredness, birth defects, cancer, problems with the liver, weight loss and lack of sex drive.

"Agent Orange- A Search for Answers," and the other was called "The Deadly Fog." The former was produced by the Veterans Administration, and while the film claimed to be 100% approved by the viewers of the scarce scientific data available.

The second film examined links between various chemical contaminations around the United States and the world, showing the similarities of symptoms experienced by those who have been exposed to dioxin, the most deadly substance known to man, according to the speakers.

Sluck and Dronscomb both agreed that the second film did a good job showing, on one hand, what appeared to be a flimsy example of people who experienced similar problems, but on the other hand, lack of scientific proof (Cause & Effect).

Sluck continued to emphasize the need for veterans who feel they are suffering from any of these symptoms to contact their local V.A. office. "The mood of the country is to agrior economic pacakon," he said.

"This is the moment in history, if we decide that we want to take care of Agent Orange, there is no way you can ignore it and deny it. This particular group will be apart of this moment in history. If you people don't cooperate, it will not be possible," Sluck said.

If there are any questions concerning this issue contact Roy Savre, veterans' officer on campus at CSSCD extension 7096, who about a year ago formed a non-profit organization "Veterans Working For Veterans," specifically designed for the specifically designed to help the Agent Orange problem.

There have been some cases in which veterans did not experience symptoms until 10-12 years later. If you are a Vietnam Veteran and wish to find out if you have been contaminated, you can set up a free physical at the Jerry. Pope Memorial Hospital in Loma Linda, Cal 925-7084 Extension 2286, or make an appointment at the reception desk. The hospital is located at 12001 Benton Street in Loma Linda.

"Forest" Opens May 14

by Terry Seal

The Pentfield Forest, by Robert Sherwood, will be opening at the Cal State Creative Arts Theatre tomorrow, May 14th. Presented by the Players of the Pearl Garden, under the direction of Professor William Sluck, the play is especially concerned with the takeover of an Arizona filling station restaurant. The play goes deeper than that, however. This is a play about the thirties.

Sluck said, "In primary concern was the sentiment of the thirties that the future did have hope." Sherwood as dramatist manages to dispel this notion with his depiction of the two protagonists. Jeff Hubbard plays Alan Squier, the doomed intellectual who seems to achieve his destiny during the course of the play. Ivan Glascro plays Duke Manatee, a banker/robber/hero on the run from a massacre. Manatee and his gang take over the restaurant and everybody in it, and he and Squier seem to form a friendship and understanding. "Both of us are in the same boat," Glascro said. "I think Duke Manatee is a romantic. He sees what is going on between Gabby and Squier and he understands, he's all for it."

Morse Wine plays Gabby, the proprietress of the restaurant and Squier's love interest. In the mind and evidence of alleged donations to women's groups. In recent months, Coors has begun donations to various groups, including selected women's organizations, to create confusion over company practices and to offset massive losses from national boycotts dating as far back as 1977, according to the Equal Rights Handbook.

However, Joseph Coors' main monetary thrust is still funnelled into the Heritage Foundation, on institution set up to launder contributions and channel them into the John Birch Society, Phyllis Schlafly's anti-ERA movement and various extreme right-wing organizations, whose purposes are well known as being anti-ERA, anti-union, etc. (See February 21 issue of Mother Jones).

This demonstration was an attempt to raise the consciousness of CSSCD students on issues of which they may be unaware and which could have major impact on their lives, according to one of the participants.
Letter to the Editor

While mindlessly wandering to class last week I chanced by the library and discovered that our campus newspaper, The PawPrint, now offers the major works of Shakespeare in its curriculum under the pretext, "ROTC. This college, within a college offers to teach America's future graduates the art of war. (surely the art department has something to say about this) the psychology of mass-murder and the necessity of bankrupting the economy behind the phrase, "the ends justifies the means." They must also be giving instruction about the economics of war and all duly assigned utilities.

Sincerely, C.O.

Crime Control

A special editorial by State Senator Robert Presley

Fear of crime has become epidemic in California— in fact, all across the nation. Poll after poll tells us that our citizens do not feel safe even in their own neighborhoods. Senior citizens are sometimes afraid to go out even in the daytime. The California Legislature has heard this call, loud and clear. This year, crime legislation is the top priority among legislators.

The state Senate recently approved six major bills which, when they become law, strengthen our ability to prosecute and sentence criminals who have been apprehended— criminals who have too long had their way. In recent years, the California Supreme Court has gone beyond federal standards. As a result, criminals, even when obviously guilty, have been allowed to go free on "technicalities."

SCA 7 (Introduced by Preseley) would prevent the California courts from placing stricter limits on the gathering of evidence than are required by the U.S. Constitution. If SCA 7 is approved by the Legislature, it will go before the people for a vote. If approved by you, the changes should result in a greater rate of convictions than we are now able to obtain.

SCA 7 and SCA 10, another of the measures of which I am author, are considered perhaps the two most far-reaching proposals on crime which the legislature is considering. SCA 10 would require a judge to consider safety of the public in setting bail for persons accused of serious crimes. Another crucial bill, SBC 54, would place strong restrictions on the use of the "diminished capacity" defense. This legal maneuver permits a defendant to plead that he or she was incapable of appreciating the wrongfulness of the act or the time of the crime.

Defenders have often used this technicality when they have been intoxicated or on dangerous drugs when committing a crime. Lawyers, using vague medical or psychiatric theories, pled "diminished capacity" on behalf of their clients so that they can escape the full penalty for the crimes. SCA 54 would close this loophole.

Other legislation which just passed the Senate includes Senate Bills 383, 200:251 and 538. SB 383 would make it more difficult for a defendant to appeal his or her own pleading guilty. Sometimes, criminals plead guilty to get a lighter sentence, and later want to go back on that deal. This practice has led to a backlog of court cases in California.

Current law encourages people to rob houses during the day, so that if they are caught, their punishment will not be as severe. SBC 200 would eliminate the "daytime resident" defense, so that anyone who commits a crime during daytime and nighttime home burglary. This bill also includes at least a 90-day juvenile hold for all first degree burglary.

Draft News

by Brett Wyatt

Early this month the Selective Service started to offer applications for Draft Boards, selection officers in the state of Kentucky. The job of these officers is to screen and accept applicants for Draft Boards. Part of an experimental program that is already being conducted in Michigan and will soon be nationwide.

For those readers with brothers or sons in high school the Selective Service has been notifying high school principals to inform Selective Service of the names of graduating seniors who are eligible for the draft. So far there have been no reported prosecutions of persons who have failed to register. It is believed that these prosecutions will not begin until the case of U.S. vs Wolman is decided.

A bill has recently been introduced to the California State Legislature making available to the armed forces all student documents from college throughout the state. If you feel as many others do, that such an act is an infringement of your right to privacy contact your local representative and let them know.

Recently had the pleasure of talking with Vince Vegna. Vince is a graduate student in the Counseling Psychology program on campus. He is known to many, as he did much of his undergraduate work here. Born in 1949, he is the son of a distinguished American film director. Vince has been a leader in overcoming architectural barriers for the physically challenged. This school has done a lot for himself. The German way of life. The film, "The American Friend," starring Jon Voight and Dustin Hoffman, is being shown Saturday, May 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Physical Sciences Building, at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Multipurpose room. It is free to the public.
ONLY THE ARMY GIVES YOU TWO WAYS TO LOWER THE COST OF EDUCATION IN JUST TWO YEARS.

LOAN FORGIVENESS

If you have a Guaranteed Student Loan or a National Direct Student Loan (made after October 1, 1975) hanging over your head, consider spending a couple of years in the Army.

If you train for certain specialties, the government will release you from 1/3 of your indebtedness (or $1,500, whichever is greater) for each year of active duty.

Obviously, a three-year enlistment would eliminate 100% of your indebtedness. But you may prefer to take a shorter route and sign up under the Army's two-year enlistment option (and put 2/3 of your debt behind you).

Or you might want to join the Army Reserve. If you qualify, as a Reservist you can stay home, get paid for your active duty, and receive 15% loan forgiveness (or $500, whichever is greater) for each year you serve.

But we're not just offering you loan forgiveness. With your education, you can probably qualify for a higher rank and pay grade. You'll have your choice of many sophisticated Army skills.

And you may be eligible for generous monetary educational incentives.

TWO-FOR-ONE SAVINGS PLAN

If your dream is to continue your education some day, joining the Veterans' Educational Assistance Program can bring that day closer.

In fact, in just two years you can accumulate up to $9,200 for grad school. (Only the Army can offer you a two-year enlistment.)

It's not a loan, so you'll never have to worry about making payments. It's simply a savings program between you and the government.

If you save between $25 and $100 of your monthly Army pay, the government will match that amount two-for-one. On top of that, you might qualify for an exclusive Army educational incentive of $2,000. (Longer enlistments can result in higher incentives.)

And you can participate in VEAP at the same time you're receiving loan forgiveness.

So, in just two years, you can go back to school with 2/3 of your debt behind you and up to $9,200 for your education ahead of you. (Of course, a longer enlistment could result in more educational benefits and 100% loan forgiveness.)

To find out more about both ways to serve your country as you serve yourself, call 800-421-4422. In California, 800-252-0011. Alaska and Hawaii, 800-423-2244. Ask for the name of the Army's college representative nearest you.
