CITY OF REDLANDS PLANNED BIG CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR CHILDREN

Santa Claus arrived at the Redlands Community Center to bring holiday cheers for over 700 waiting children. The festivities were planned by the Redlands Parks/Recreation Department and coordinated by Superintendent Danny Santler. Hundreds of toys and 24 bikes were donated by Walmart Stores. Other toys, full stockings, food, candies and a prepared lunch were donated by 168 Redlands businesses. Santa’s helpers included over 80 volunteers, consisting of students, seniors, policemen and firemen.

SAN BERNARDINO’S CHIEF LEE DEAN DEPARTING FOR A NEW “CHALLENGE” — By Jessica Carney

After a six-year whirlwind as San Bernardino’s top cop, Police Chief Lee Dean is retiring, sort of.

Dean, 51, says he will continue his service to law enforcement, perhaps as a legal advisor or a consultant in organizational development to a law enforcement agency.

“I think there is a real value in things that are new in our lives,” said Dean, explaining why he is leaving SAN BERNARDINO’S CHIEF LEE DEAN DEPARTING FOR A NEW “CHALLENGE” CONTINUE ON PAGE 5
The Colton Unified School District has future plans for five new elementary schools to be constructed to accommodate the influx of students for the City of Colton and Colton School District for outstanding citizens that have served strongly recommends that the Colton has future plans for five new elementary schools. Bernardino Valley College. Before he retired from the Colton School District in 1972, Ray Abril, Sr. says he worked in every facet of maintenance in the district.

In 1932, Ray Abril, Sr. helped organize the Latin American Civic Club that was instrumental in providing sewers, sidewalks, streetlights and paved streets in South Colton. In 1941, the area’s Boy Scout troop leader was sent off to war and Ray Abril, Sr. took over the responsibility for Troop 45 from 1941 to 1964, displaying his leadership skills and being a role model in providing sports and other activities for the youth of South Colton and other areas. He was able to help develop individual character for the youths during their important growing up years.

The result was outstanding young, remarkable men and community leaders who in turn, demonstrated those attributes learned from Ray Abril, Sr., such as: Dr. Ernest Garcia, Dr. Tom Rivera, Ernie Colunga, former Mayor Frank Gonzales, Chuck Llamas, Assistant Superintendent Danny Carasco and Ray Abril Jr. and many others that were raised in South Colton during that era.

Ray Abril, Sr. soon became city and school recreation director, appointed by Superintendent Paul Rogers. At his new post, Ray Abril, Sr. organized basketball, baseball and football teams that participated throughout the Inland Empire.

“Since the early thirties, I have felt a deep commitment to my community and especially our youth,” he said of his six decades of devotion. “I have used my talents that God gave me and my total experience toward the betterment of our community and its people so that it would be a better place to live.”

Ray Abril, Jr. adhered to his father’s commitment of improving the community by following in his footsteps as an activist and leader.

Ray Abril, Jr. was elected as a trustee of the Colton Unified School District in 1973, but the battle was all uphill.

“I was supposed to get frustrated and leave,” said Ray Abril, Jr. “But I came back to every board meeting.”

Ray Abril, Jr. has come back to board meetings for 28 years, through seven full terms, with his last board meeting on November 13th 2001.

After graduating from Colton High School in 1950, Ray Abril, Jr. joined the Navy. Four years later, he returned to Colton where he worked 25 years as a machine operator at the former Griffin Wheel Co.

Frustrated by the lack of funding for South Colton schools in the 1970s, Ray Abril, Jr. ran for the school board and won.

Many say he led by example as a tireless inquisitor and champion for children in the district.

County Superintendent of Schools Herbert Fischer, who served as Colton’s superintendent for seven years, said Ray Abril, Jr. was instrumental in enforcing safety measures after a 1992 shooting death at Colton High School.

Ray Abril, Jr. was also a well-known proponent of improving students’ reading levels and increasing the rate of college attendance, according to Fischer.

Ray Abril, Jr. says his motivation was his six children, 19 grandchildren and one great-grandchild — educated in the Colton School District. He would repeatedly state that his belief was what was best for his family, would be best for all children in the district.

Ray Abril, Jr. says it was not uncommon for his children to show up on his doorstep with concerns about the education of their own children.

“They all wanted the best for their kids, but they couldn’t get their point across,” he explained. “I wanted to be their voice.”

Ray Abril, Jr. served his 28 years as an influential, effective voice, fighting for what was best for students in the Colton School District.

Ray Abril, Sr. helped create opportunities for youth to experience leadership skills, sports and positive habits, creating a foundation of leaders that, to this day, have been influential in their respective communities in the Inland Empire.

The Colton School District and the City of Colton have become a better community in many ways with the involvement of these two men.

Schools have been previously named for outstanding past school board members: Cooley Elementary School and Ruth Harris Middle School, and deservedly so.

Naming two new schools for these outstanding father and son would be appropriate to thank them for their dedication and commitment to the youth and the City of Colton.

Minority students seeking careers as newspaper journalists are invited to apply for generous awards that combine graduate scholarships with internships. The Newhouse Graduate Fellowship/Internship in Newspaper Journalism for Minorities underwrites master’s level study at the acclaimed S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communications at Syracuse University while providing on-the-job training at the Newhouse Newspapers.

Two winners a year receive free tuition, monthly stipends of $1,100 health insurance coverage and up to $3,300 in other benefits for 18 months of graduate study during which time they also work as interns at The Post-Standard.

Later, after receiving master’s degrees, the awardees work for a year as full-time apprentices either at The Post-Standard or at one of the other Newhouse newspapers across the country, earning competitive entry-level salaries.

To be eligible for the 2002-2004 competition, a candidate must have earned an undergraduate degree from an accredited college or university in a field other than journalism (with a B average or higher) by June 15 of 2002, be a United States citizen and either African American, Hispanic/Latino, Asian or Native American.

To apply he or she must, by February 11, 2002 submit a complete application for admission to Syracuse University’s master’s program in newspaper journalism. This requires taking the Graduate Record Examination no later than February 1, 2002.

The $50 Syracuse University graduate application fee will be waived for all eligible Newhouse Fellow candidates.

Winners have included: Ms. Gloria Gonzales of Los Angeles, Calif., 1994-96; Ms. Alisia Rivera, of Bronx, N.Y.; Mr. Angel Duenigeno, of New- ark, N.J., 1995-1997; Mr. Pete Ramirez, of Austin, Texas and Mr. Damian Guevara, San Antonio, Texas, 1999-2001 and Ms. Dina Montes, San Antonio, Texas.

Further information and application forms are available from Professor Nancy W. Sharp, 102A Newhouse I, Syracuse University, Syracuse, N.Y. 13244-2100. She also can be reached by phone, 315-443-1124; e-mail, awsharp@syr.edu or fax 315-443-3946.
RAY ABRIL, SR. “A BIG MAN”
Editor’s note: the following article is an updated version of an original article published in 1989.

Ray Abril, Sr., a 92-year old resident of Colton, is a straight-talking, no-nonsense gentleman of the old school. “I have witnessed a lot of history in this area and have seen many good changes occur in our community (of Colton),” he stated.

A second-generation Californian, he attended Colton public schools until the 8th grade in order to work in the orange groves, dairy farms and any other jobs that were available to Mexican-Americans.

Abril, Sr. went through the hard times of the depression, like many in the community of Colton. He was employed in several jobs, including the Work Progress Administration and Southern Pacific Railroad. “The railroad did not give Mexican-Americans an opportunity for advancement. I wanted to go into an apprenticeship program and when my supervisor refused to accept me, I complained to the superintendent. I was finally into the apprenticeship program, graduating as a carman. I quit the job after achieving the goal of carman,” he said.

In 1948, he was employed by the Colton School District in the maintenance department. He continued his education, attending the San Bernardino Valley College for four years, studying heating, air conditioning and electronics. This education helped him become more effective in the maintenance department, he said.

Abril, Sr. recalls his growing up years during the depression, highlighting the poor socio-economic conditions that existed at that time. Discrimination was rampant and he recalls that Mexican-Americans could not venture into North Colton after dark and if caught, would be harassed by police. Police protection in South Colton was non-existent, however, segregation existed at the elementary schools, swimming pools and theatres and sub-standard education was very much prevalent.

One of the worst situations existed on La Cadena Avenue, due to the fire station and ambulance services being in North Colton. When a fire or emergency existed in South Colton, those services would be delayed due to the trains stopping all traffic at the railroad.

RAY ABRIL, JR., LONG TIME COLTON SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD MEMBER RETIRES

On December 13th, 2001, Ray Abril, Jr. ended a 28-year tenure in the Colton School District’s Board of Trustees, a singular record of longevity of service in an educational setting (and a record for volunteerism in any setting) and equaled only in a few instances in that district.

“Being born and raised in South Colton, we experienced discrimination and segregation, for example, until we ventured north of Valley Boulevard at night because if caught by police, they would harass you, attending segregated elementary and middle schools and sitting in certain sections of the theater only. Things didn’t bother me because I didn’t know any better,” Abril stated.

Graduating from Colton High School in 1950, Abril enlisted in the Navy that same year and served during the Korean Conflict.

After his discharge, Abril married Hortensia Gasca in 1955 and are the parents of Nick, Michael, Melinda, Dominic, Rebecca and Nellie, 19 grandchildren and 1 great-great granddaughter.

Abril was employed at Griffin Warehouse for 25 years and 16 years with the County of San Bernardino Coroner’s Office.

During the tumultuous civil rights era in the 1960’s, there were many issues confronting minorities, especially Mexican-Americans, and it was no different in Colton.

In 1968, Abril decided to get involved because he saw students getting kicked out of school and other irregularities that were outwardly apparent. He and UCR students, including Al and Alicia Campos, Mary Ellen Campos, Irene Morales, Henry Ramirez and others organized United Mexican-American Students. The group was able to help students stay in school and also help parents deal with the school system.

At a later date, Abril and other activists, including Chuck Llamas, Frank Gonzalez, Pauline Garcia, Mary Lou Vasquez, Mary Saldana, Lorenza Vasquez, and others, formed the Mexican-American Parents/Students Organization (MAPSO) and confronted the school district on issues affecting parents and students. In 1973, Abril decided to run for the school board and won.

“At first, the (all white) school board members felt that I wouldn’t last and any suggestions that I made were always rejected. But I knew what was happening in the education of our kids and I was persistent in having changes made. And eventually things changed around, but it wasn’t easy,” stated Abril.

Throughout his tenure, Abril has used his influence to incorporate effective curriculum, teacher accountability, selection of superintendents (five superintendents have served during his tenure) and adequate funding provided to ensure program effectiveness, and lead in providing adequate safety regulations in the schools.

“I always knew what my role was at the school board level. I never tried to micro-manage. There were many problems with parents, students and within the school system, I always felt that if a problem existed with a parent and their children, they had to come up with a solution. If a problem existed in the school system, I always followed up to see that it was solved, whether it was a teacher, administrator or the system. A problem was a problem.

Abril is proud that he had the privilege of presenting graduation diplomas to his six children and five grandchildren during his tenure on the board. He is also proud of donating 144 pints to The American Blood Bank Association since 1956.

“Throughout these many years in the school board, it was a learning process for me. This was my mandate and I accepted that responsibility.”

Once we think that we have reached the highest goal in education, then we are in trouble. Education is an ongoing process, with technology and better teaching methodologies. Parents must be involved in the educational process, because their children’s education is at stake.

Ray Abril, Jr.

I felt that whatever would enhance the education of my children and grandchildren would also provide a good education for all students. Ray Abril, Jr.
KEEP THE HOLIDAYS SIMPLE

Tips from Dr. Joyce Brothers

Keeping the holidays simple can be difficult since it’s one of the busiest times of the year, with meals to prepare, gifts to buy, last minute errands to run and finding time to visit with family. Dr. Joyce Brothers, world-renowned psychologist and best-selling author, suggests that by focusing on the basics you can reduce the clutter and remember the joys and the bonds the holidays can bring to everyone, young and old.

“This holiday season in particular is very important for us all to remember our family and friends and so many of those in need,” said Dr. Brothers. “This year, more than ever, people will want to simplify the tasks at hand so they can focus on what’s really important. That involves trying not to stress out over unnecessary activities.”

Following are a few simple tips Dr. Brothers suggests to reduce stress and focus on the people and traditions that really matter during the holidays:

• Stick to the basics: Embrace your family’s traditions, bring out the time-honored decorations and eat family favorites. It’s important to remember lifelong holiday traditions can provide a sense of continuity through the ups and downs of life, while offering stability.

• Reach out and touch someone: Instead of signing and sending out 100 holiday cards that may or may not be personalized, select 10 friends or family members you have lost touch with during the year and give them a call so you can really catch up and rebuild those relationships.

• Recapture the magic of childhood: As a child life was simple. See the holidays through the eyes of a child and remember what made the season “magical for you as a child. Read your favorite childhood song.

• Keep it simple: When the kids are home from school for the holidays or relatives are visiting, don’t try to be the constant entertainer or plan big activities. Simply share your hobbies or interests with your visiting friends and loved ones. Go bird watching or fishing together or teach your children to bake an old family recipe.

• Prioritize your holiday activities: Don’t try to do everything. A great tip for simplifying your holiday to-do list is to prioritize the tasks and then cut your list in half, or cross out every fourth item.

• Listen to your instincts: Pay attention to the connection between what you do and how you feel. Schedule activities that you want to do rather than the ones you feel obligated to do.

• Don’t sweat the small stuff: Have friends over even if the floors aren’t waxed or you haven’t had time to dust.

Dr. Brothers also says that if things do get too busy and you feel you’ve lost control, leave the situation for a couple of minutes and return with a new attitude. If that doesn’t work, call a friend you can talk to or put whatever it is you’re doing away and start fresh tomorrow. The key is not to let the stress outweigh the fun and focus on what’s truly important this holiday season.

SAN BERNARDINO'S CHIEF LEE DEAN DEPARTING FOR A NEW "CHALLENGE"

By Jessica Carney

his post in San Bernardino. "It was a matter of the desire to take on a new and different challenge."

It comes as no big surprise that Dean wants to continue working in law enforcement, the career he began at the age of 22. In 1972, Dean worked as a patrol officer with the Los Angeles Police Department. Dean later moved to Sacramento with his wife, Heidi, where he worked for the Sacramento County Sheriff's Department.

In Sacramento, Dean started as a juvenile detective, then worked his way up through sergeant, lieutenant, and finally, captain.

As captain, Dean was charged with overseeing 200 deputies while attending Lincoln Law School. Dean graduated from law school and passed the state bar exam. As chief in Sacramento, Dean also established a leadership development program.

Leadership would be the common thread in Dean's career, which took him from Sacramento to Vacaville, a city southwest of Sacramento.

In Vacaville, Dean started a youth at-risk program and once again established a leadership development program.

In January 1996, Dean accepted an offer to come to San Bernardino as chief. With Dean, came changes to our city.

Dean set up a chaplain program that welcomed all faiths. The program has come into its own with a board of directors.

Thanks to Dean's efforts, the city earned grants to buy new guns for the officers, to redesign the graphics on police cruisers and to purchase a recreational vehicle for a mobile command post.

Dean also extended the training requirements beyond the minimum state standards to a 40-hour, in-house training block.

Under Dean's direction, the police department appropriated funds to establish a graffiti task force made up of three officers and a sergeant. Dean also initiated a task force to mitigate RAVE parties in the area.

He says the most challenging task in San Bernardino was establishing positive relationships with residents and implementing positive changes.

"That was difficult because of the time it took and getting people to look forward, not back," he said. "It was definitely worth doing and now I feel very, very supported by the community."

Since Dean's tenure, citizen complaints about police misconduct and legal claims against the city have dropped. New policies hold police officers to higher standards and aims to prevent the kinds of issues that hinder public trust.

Dean's style of policing - community-oriented - was a relatively new idea when he introduced it to the department in 1996, but is now becoming a model in law enforcement philosophy.

"I am absolutely happy with the accomplishments in San Bernardino," said Dean. "I am most proud of instilling a shared vision of being a leader and setting a standard of excellence."

Over 500 community members and coworkers showed their support for Dean at a retirement dinner on November 15 at the Radisson Hotel.

"I was overwhelmed by the community showing of love and support," he recalls.

San Bernardino City Councilman Frank Schnetz presented Dean with a key to the city.

"Lee was such a calm, cool and collected personality, which is important in the field of police work," said Schnetz.

Dean credits his wife of 31 years and his children for their support during his career. Dean's daughter Julie is a third-grade teacher in Roseville and his son David is a paralegal in Sacramento.

road tracks! Generally, there was a discriminatory attitude within the Anglo community, he said.

As a result of socio-economic, political and educational conditions, the Latin American Civic Club was organized in 1932. Members included Jennie Gonzales, Manuel Padilla, Pete Luque, Paul Torres, Johnnie Martinez, Nellie Abril (Abril, Sr.'s wife) and many others, who became outstanding leaders in the community.

He proudly stated that due to the efforts of the LACC, the city installed sewers, sidewalks, street lights and paved the streets in South Colton. "It was a continual struggle to have the city perform minimal services in our part of the city."

In 1941, World War II was declared and Dr. Ross, scout leader for Boys Scout Troop 45, went into the service and Abril, Sr. took over as scoutmaster. Under his guidance, the youth were organized into teams and played within the city and competed throughout the area. As scout leader and role model, he was able to provide the guidance to many of these youth, instilling important attributes essential for growing young men.

Many outstanding men and community leaders emerged as a result of being influenced by Abril, Sr., names like Dr. Ernest Garcia, Dr. Tom Rivera, Ernie Colunga, former Mayor Frank Gonzales, Chuck Llamas, Assistant Superintendent Dan Carrasco, Ray Abril, Jr. and others that have, in turn, contributed to the progress of the city and in the educational community.

Abril, Sr. was persuaded by Superintendent Paul Rogers to become recreation director for both the city and school district. As director, he was able to more fully organize baseball, basketball and football programs throughout the city until his retirement in 1964, and gradually withdrawing from other civic activities, although he continued to be active on a part-time basis.

In an earlier statement, Abril Sr. stated that since the early twenties, he has had a deep commitment to his community and especially the youth. "I have used the talents that God gave me and my total experience toward the betterment of our community and its people. I have struggled to educate and improve myself and my family. In my heart I feel that I will continue to struggle for the betterment of my community until the day I die."

YOLANDA NAVA
A Woman With Gumption

With a strong will and the desire to surpass people's expectations and stereo types of a "Latina," Nava reached beyond the hurtful and de-moralizing words of an unseasoned junior high school teacher—who sarcastically remarked that it didn't matter whether her grade was an "A" or a "B"—Nava was going to be pregnant and married by the time she was seventeen anyway. A spirited student with good grades and ambition, Nava chose, instead, to focus on the positive attitudes displayed by the many teachers that genuinely cared about her success and that of her classmates.

"In elementary school, one of my teachers, Mr. Nucchio, once told my mother that I was a bright child and that I needed to go on to college," recalls Nava. "As a kid, that is an empowering message to have in the back of your mind." Not surprisingly, these words resonated in her psyche throughout and beyond her college career as she graduated from UCLA, with both a bachelor's and master's degree, and as she prepared to become a teacher herself.

With an emergency credential in one hand and plenty of gumption in the other, Nava walked into a classroom in south central Los Angeles following the Watts riots and made the best of a challenging situation. Rather than dwell on the negative, Nava set out to simply connect with her students, engaging them in conversations about life, responsibility and delicate topics, such as birth control, that could very well have gotten her fired in those days. The result... She gained their respect and trust.

"We need to give students the real story," Nava asserts. "That life is hard and that it takes effort to succeed." One reason she wrote her book of traditional Latino virtues is to convey to a new generation the values that are sometimes neglected as Latino generations begin to assimilate into the American mainstream. "When values, such as responsibility, respect, courage and fortitude are instilled in us, we have fuerzas," she adds. "We have the ability to overcome whatever obstacles are thrown at us. We have the ability to superar."

When she speaks of responsibility, she doesn't just mean responsibility to others. She means to ourselves as well. When her daughter went off to college, she told her "all I want for you to do is to fall in love with learning." Nava knows that schooling only lasts a few years but learning lasts a lifetime. "Education is the most important gift we can give ourselves. It is our responsibility. When we engage in the learning process, it becomes exciting." This is exactly what memorable teachers convey.

Over the next decade the state will need to find 300,000 people to take on the challenging but rewarding job of teaching California's children. As an extension of ongoing recruitment efforts led by CalTeach (the California Center for Teaching Careers), the "Inspire a future leader. Teach" campaign is a statewide public education campaign to attract individuals to the teaching profession—especially Latinos.

CalTeach is a one-stop information, referral and recruitment center for individuals interested in a teaching career. Administered by the California State University, Office of the Chancellor, CalTeach offers a variety of informational and advisor-assisted services. Established in 1997 by the California Legislature, the goal of CalTeach is to recruit qualified individuals to the teaching profession and alleviate the shortage of credentialed teachers in the state. THE CHICANO MOVEMENT BEHIND THE LENS:
A NOTED FILMMAKER'S MEMOIR

Published as part of the Hispanic Civil Rights Series. Jesús Salvador Treviño’s chronicle of the Mexican American civil rights movement of the late 1960’s and early 1970’s. Eyewitness: A Filmmaker’s Memoir of the Chicano Movement, offers the reader a firsthand account of the pivotal events in those years.

Noted filmmaker Jesús Salvador Treviño participated in and documented the most important events of el movimiento: the farm workers' strikes and boycotts, the Los Angeles school walk-outs, the Chicano Youth Conference in Denver, the New Mexico land grant movement, the Chicano Moratorium against the Vietnam War, the founding of La Raza Unida Party, and the first incursion of Latinos into the media. Coming of age during the turmoil of the sixties, Treviño was on the spot to record the struggles to organize students and workers into the largest social and political movement in the history of Latino communities in the United States.

As important as his documentation of historical events is his self-reflection and chronicling of how these events helped to shape his own personality and mission as one of the most renowned Latino filmmakers. Treviño’s beautifully written memoir is fascinating for its detail, insight, and heretofore undisclosed reports from behind the scenes by a participant and observer who is able to strike the balance between personal reflection and reportage.

Activist and former senator Tom Hayden said: “This is a readable, penetrating history of the Chicano struggle told in human terms by an individual who truly has been an eyewitness. An extremely valuable book for anyone trying to come to grips with their individual identity in the midst of historic times.”

Treviño’s collection of short fiction, The Fabulous Sinkhole and Other Stories, received a starred review in Booklist, “All of [the stories] contain lively, accessible language and demonstrate the author’s very gifted sense for storytelling.”

JESÚS SALVADOR TREVÍNO is an award-winning filmmaker, renowned for his pioneering documentaries and feature film of the Chicano experience. Treviño has continued his commitment to Hispanic civil rights by serving as the executive producer of the acclaimed four-part PBS series, Chicano! The History of the Mexican American Civil Rights Movement, and as the Co-Executive Producer of the SHOWTIME drama series, Resurrection Boulevard. He has also directed such Hollywood television dramas as NYPD Blue, The Practice, Third Watch, Star Trek Voyager and many others. He is the author of a collection of stories, The Fabulous Sinkhole and Other Stories.

Treviño’s riveting and courageous testimony rekindles the spirit of the Chicano urban movement bringing to life the total commitment, excitement, sacrifice and unquenchable energy that built the movement. His unique, honest, uncompromising story shines a light of understanding on the Chicano life experience, the poverty, inferiority, police brutality, institutionalized discrimination and betrayal.

The County of San Bernardino
Department of Economic and Community Development

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Supervisors of the County of San Bernardino will, at their regular meeting scheduled for TUESDAY, January 8, 2002 at 10:00 A.M., in the Chambers of the Board of Supervisors, 385 North Arrowhead Avenue, First Floor, San Bernardino, CA 92415-0040, will consider the following proposed substantial amendment to the Strategic Plan for the CDBG portion of the 2000-2005 Consolidated Plan and 2001-2002 Action Plan and will consider citizen comments regarding this amendment.

Initiate the Countywide Small Business Technical Assistance Program for year 2001-02.

CONSOLIDATED PLAN

Each year since 1975, the County of San Bernardino has qualified to receive federal housing and community development grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The funds are to develop viable communities by providing decent housing, suitable living environments and expanded economic opportunities, principally for low- and moderate-income persons. In 1999, the County qualified to receive these funds for a three year period from the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), Emergency Shelter Grant (ESG) and HOME Investment Partnerships Act (HOME) programs for Fiscal Years 2000, 2001 and 2002. The CDBG funds are for eligible projects in the unincorporated communities and 14 participating cities. These cities are Adelanto, Barstow, Big Bear Lake, Chino Hills, Colton, Grand Terrace, Highland, Loma Linda, Montclair, Needles, Redlands, Twentynine Palms, Yucaipa, and the Town of Yucca Valley. For the purpose of these grant funds, this area is referred to as the County Consortium.

To receive the 2001-2002 CDBG, ESG, and HOME grant funds, the County prepared a consolidated grant application to HUD. The County’s 2000-2005 Consolidated Plan and 2001-2002 Action Plan formed the Grant Application. On April 17, 2001, the County of San Bernardino Board of Supervisors approved the proposed Consolidated Plan and Action Plan. Upon completion of the public review period and after all comments were received and considered, the final Consolidated Plan and Action Plan was prepared. The final Consolidated Plan and Action Plan was submitted to HUD on June 6, 2001 for funding approval.

PUBLIC COMMENT

For a period of thirty (30) days beginning on December 25, 2001 and ending on January 24, 2002, the public is invited to submit written comments on this proposed amendment. Comments received after 5:00 p.m., January 24, 2002 cannot be considered in the preparation of the amended Consolidated Plan. Send comments to the County Department of Economic and Community Development at the address shown below.

Those individuals wishing to express their views on this substantial amendment may be present and be heard at the Board of Supervisors meeting or may, prior to the time of the meeting, submit written comments to the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, 385 North Arrowhead Avenue, Second Floor, San Bernardino, CA 92415-0130.

If you challenge any decision regarding the above proposal in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the meeting described in this notice or in written correspondence delivered to the Board of Supervisors at, or prior to, the meeting.

Due to time constraints and the number of persons wishing to give oral testimony, time restrictions may be placed on oral testimony at the public hearing regarding this proposal. You may make your comments in writing to assure that you are able to express yourself adequately.
