CFA gains Support at Teach Ins

The California Faculty Association launched a new advertising campaign on October 16th, 2001 in the lower commons.

By Mark Fretz
Staff Writer

Feinstein Proposes Tracking System

Senator Dianne Feinstein (D-Calif) has begun a mission to supplement student's rights. Feinstein is shown in the background.

By Mathew Taylor
News Editor

nonimmigrants, 500,000 foreign nationals entered on student visas. The foreign student visa system is one of the most under regulated systems we have today. Feinstein also believes that most of the foreign students come to the U.S. to study and then ultimately provide a large contribution to institutions of higher learning. But she is concerned that within the last ten years, more than 16,000 students have come from terrorist supporting states only to learn chemical warfare and other techniques unique to the U.S., so that when they return home, they can use the knowledge they gained against the United States.

"Without an adequate tracking system, our country becomes a sieve, creating ample opportunities for terrorists to enter and establish their operations without detection," said Feinstein. In 1991, the Washington Post reported that the United Nations weapons inspectors in Iraq discovered documents detailing an

The event was held from noon to 6pm. The CFA chapter president Tom Meissner said, "Without an adequate tracking system, our country becomes a sieve, creating ample opportunities for terrorists to enter and establish their operations without detection."
Biochemical Warfare and Cal State

By Rody Rodriguez

President Bush recently said, "We are fighting a new kind of war," and he couldn't have been more right. Everyday the fear of more biological attacks in the U.S. grows.

With the latest anthrax attacks on NBC, ABC, Senator Tom Daschle and other Congressional members, everyone is wondering where and when the next attacks will be.

People around the country are purchasing equipment and antitodal medication for fear of a major attack. Now the question is here at CSUSB, are we next?

Critics say the chances are low that CSUSB would be attacked. Professor Clark, Political Science professor, points out, "The chances are extremely remote."

Tips for opening mail

The risk of contracting any disease from an envelope is extremely low. Awareness of suspicious mail is appropriate.

General precautions for those who handle large volumes of mail:

1. Wash your hands with warm soap and water before and after handling the mail.
2. Do not eat, drink or smoke around mail.
3. If you have open cuts or skin lesions on your hands, disposable latex gloves may be appropriate.
4. Surgical masks, eye protection or gowns are NOT necessary or recommended.

If a letter is received that contains powder or contains a white substance:

1. Do not shake or empty the envelope.
2. Isolate the specific area of the workplace so that no one disturbs the items.
3. Evacuation of the entire workplace is NOT necessary at this time.
4. Have someone call 911 and tell them what you received, and what you have done with it.
5. Wash your hands with warm soap and water for one minute.
6. Do not allow anyone to leave the office that might have touched the envelope.
7. When emergency responders arrive, they will provide further instructions on what to do.

Important:

Do not panic.
Do not walk around with the letter or shake it.
Do not merely discard the letter.

Voter Awareness arrives at CSUSB

By John D. Halcon

In an effort to notify students of the upcoming November 6 consolidated election in San Bernardino County, the Adult Re-Entry Center (ARC) of Cal State San Bernardino is hosting a Voter Awareness event on Wednesday, October 24, on the grass area in front of the John F. Pfau Library.

Moonsoon Yang assembled the event, which is scheduled from noon to 2 p.m., in cooperation with the ARC to help CSUSB students get familiar with the topics, candidates and the different ordinances within the election.

"It's an event to let people know what's going on in November," said ARC graduate assistant Tobi Cazavus. "Yang" will host the event and several student programmers will also be helping out.

According to Becky Pлепow, a graduate student entering her fourth year at CSUSB, this is an event which could potentially help bring political awareness to the campus.

"I think it's important that we know what we're voting for," she said. "If the school brings an event to inform us about voting, then I'd be aware of what's going on. Otherwise, the only way I know when there will be an election is when I get my voting pamphlets from the mail."

In addition, two CSUSB students claimed that the lack of political exposure on campus is the reason why students aren't aware of the county election.

"I haven't seen any campaigning around campus," said Gary Cope, a transferring student from Victorville Community College. "But I live in Victorville, and I'm only here at school for two days a week, so I couldn't be that I'm not seeing everything that's going on while I'm off-campus."

Jason Haynes, a Mass Communication major, also claims that the campus has a lack of political awareness which other schools, like UC Berkeley, strongly promote.

"I haven't sensed a lot of political awareness," he said. "But when I was at UC Berkeley, there was a lot of political campaigning going on. The only political campaigning I've seen lately is off campus in Redlands where there are several signs posted about the Water Board."

Voter registration may be obtained at a local Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) or visit the Internet at www.ca.gov/elections/ elections.shtml for an online form.

For more information on the Voter Awareness Event, please contact the ARC at 880-5253.
Learn to Protect your Breasts: Breast Cancer Awareness

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation is announcing the award of a grant with the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation to all female students with limited or no health insurance. The Student Health Center oversees this project to make sure the mammograms are offered to all female students.

The breast cancer exams should be done on a monthly basis as a precaution. Early detection of breast cancer means that a woman has more than a 75% chance of surviving this deadly disease, according to the American Cancer Society. The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation has awarded a grant with the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation to offer free mammograms to all female students with limited or no health insurance.

Dr. Jordan, a physician at the Student Health Center, oversees this project to make sure the design of the program meets the needs of its clients. Women age 20 to 29 have a 3% chance of having a lump in their breasts. Women 35-39 have a 10% chance. Women 40-55 have a 35% chance of having a cancer lump in their breasts, and women over 50 have an even slightly higher risk than their younger counterparts.

Women who are diagnosed with breast cancer usually have family members whom have been previously diagnosed with the illness. Risk factors include a high dose of radiation from treatment, early menopause, smoking cigarettes, having children after 30 years of age, being overweight, and advanced age. You can obtain this important information and more with self help videos and brochures from the Student Health Center.

The Breast Cancer Awareness Day is Thursday, October 25, 2001, Noon to 2 P.M. in the Events Center C.

The program is brought to you courtesy of the Women's Resource Center and co-sponsored by Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Avon, the Cross Cultural Center, the Adult Return-Entry Center, and the Loma Linda University Breast Cancer Awareness Center.

R.A.D. Defense is Taught to Female Students

By Pleasance Brown and Mathew Taylor

The recent attacks on campus have made everyone realize that there's a need to protect and defend ourselves at any cost. The campus police are aware of the increased criminal activity that has put fear into our minds. As a campus and community, CSUSB still wants to know...What can we do to protect ourselves?

CSUSB wants its students to know that everyone is concerned about these issues, and that Public Safety is doing everything they can to increase the security on campus. Sergeant Shannon Lewis of the CSUSB Police and Public Safety is well known for enforcing student's rights while they are on campus and under his watch. Lewis is also one of the instructors for the self-defense class R.A.D., Rape Aggression Defense, a program for Cal-State students.

The objective and motto of R.A.D. is to develop and enhance the options of self-defense, so they may become visible contributors to the woman who is attacked. "R.A.D. is basically here to empower women and give them confidence. It gives them options, not just a passive defense," said Tanya Scott, Lead Instructor for R.A.D.

R.A.D. has been a very successful program, although it is not based in the martial art. It teaches the correct defensive concepts and techniques which you should use against various types of attackers. The program is a 16-hour process, which is broken down into four different workshops.

In the first session, the participants are taught the student manual, and then engage in a discussion that covers such topics as risk reduction and date rape. In these sessions, some participants share their own personal experience with assault and are assured that none of the attacks are based on facts. This first session also helps the participants get a defensive mindset so that they are always aware of their surroundings.

In the second session, the participants begin hands-on training in which they are taught about their own personal and basic motor skills. R.A.D. helps the students develop the skills to the point that they are instinctual. The students get the opportunity to use what they learn by fighting with padded instructors. All the techniques are targeted at a single attacker.

In the third session, the students get to continue to refine the steps that they learned in session two and also they get some more in-depth techniques that make them more confident in their training. "Everyone helps each other out and comforts each other," said Angie Quezada, a R.A.D. participant.

In the fourth and final session, the students will go through a simulated assault. "I'm not sure how the simulation will be...I know it's going to be emotionally intense, so that you know the situation can be real," said Debbie Washington.

-R.A.D. Continued on page 14

Governor Davis Signs Domestic Partnership Bill

By Omar Zubair

Good news is in store for nontraditional couples living in California. A domestic partner bill, the first of which was presented to the state legislature back in 1994, looks to finally be in its way to full legal status.

The bill, which grants some of the rights that married couples have to live in elderly and homosexual couples, made its way through the Senate with a 23-to-11 vote and the Assembly with a 42-to-29 vote. Then Governor Gray Davis put his signature on the bill, which enabled it to go into the law books.

For many gay and lesbian couples, this is a huge step toward the recognition of the love and commitment that is shared between them. Assembly Bill 25 gives couples who are registered as domestic partners the added rights to make medical decisions, sue for wrongful death, and add certain tax exemptions (among other partner-related actions).

Originally written by Assemblywoman Carole Migden (D-San Francisco), with a provision for automatic inheritance, the bill did not pass through the system unincited. "I know that the governor refused to support inheritance rights for domestic partners," said Owens A. Baldwin, executive director of the L.A. Gay and Lesbian Center; however, the later stated that the legislation will be "a significant step forward in providing gay and lesbian families the same legal and financial security afforded heterosexual married couples."

Though met with opposition from many obvious parties (the Christian Coalition of California, the Traditional Values Coalition, the California Catholic Conference...), the new law will surely make the lives of many elderly and homosexual couples much easier.
THE ROVING REPORTER

Asking Students What They Think...
...if recent events, whether on-campus or international news, have affected their study habits and ability to perform well in class.

By Susie Medina
The Scene Editor

Maria Mora
Spanish Major
Senior

"No, nothing has really personally affected me. Maybe the campus rape. Last week I even used the campus escort but the guy took the money and gave me the wrong change. The war thing hasn't affected my studying but I do think about it from time to time because I was in New York when it happened."

Therone Williams
Graduate Student
Business/ Education

"I don't feel threatened by any of this. I don't feel sexually harassed because I'm a pretty big guy. The robbery also doesn't really affect me because I don't know anyone that doesn't like me and who would do that to me. The war thing hasn't affected my studying but I do think about it from time to time because I was in New York when it happened."

Victor Rangel
Business
Senior

"Yes, it bothers me because I am a business major and since the terrorist attacks, I'm wondering where the economy is going. When are the interest rates going down and when will it start. Will taxes be cut again? This whole attack just makes me want to join the army and fix my anger. Also the anthrax thing scares me, it's always on my mind."

Chris Allen
Criminal Justice
Freshman

"To some point my study habits are affected. Sometimes I think about what's happening, I can't concentrate on studying. Like I won't watch T.V. when I'm doing my homework - I haven't watched it for a while due to bad news. I'm uncertain of what's going to happen next. But for now when I get worried I put on some music or call a friend."

Student Spotlight

Ann Marie Butler

By Karen Sogard, Staff Writer

Ann Marie Butler, a junior political science major at CSUSB, is among three student finalists named to serve on the California State University Board of Trustees. Two students nominated by the California State Student Association and chosen by the governor, alternate two-year terms on the board. If selected, she would become the only trustee from the Inland Empire.

Encouraged to apply by her advisor, Dr. Brian Janisek, Assistant Professor of Political Science, Butler filled out forms, submitted essays, and went to multiple interviews. Janisek explained, "Ann Marie is in the example of the wonderful students here." He says he tells his students not to listen to their misgivings, but to reach out for opportunities.

Getting involved and a desire to be helpful seem to come naturally to Butler. Her father was the Director of the Campfire Boys and Girls in San Bernardino and active in city politics. Her mother, a speech pathologist, is her role model, "really strong" and "willing to help me with my laundry," said Ann.

Laundry would be an issue, because although her parents are nearby, Butler has lived on campus since her freshman year. "I wouldn't trade my experience," she says, speaking of life as a Serrano Villager.

From Honors Society to Student Ambassador to working in the Student Technology Support Center, Butler practices what she believes: "Involvement is way up there on my list." She contends that students who participate in extracurricular activities (presumably sober activities) do better in their studies and thinks that people who limit their campus experience to only attending classes are missing out on the point of a four-year college education.

The political science discipline is "very difficult, you really have to have your "head in the game," Ann says, but it can lead to all kinds of jobs. She appreciates the people in the department here, calling them "a tight group."

Butler is the Director of the Student Ambassadors Society. Ambassadors represent the student body at events where there are donors, donors, and legislators. They also work with the President in community outreach and recruiting students from area high schools. She says the university is increasingly recognized as "a good campus, growing, improving everyday."

While she aspires to "the big challenge" of representing CSU, the largest school system worldwide, with over 370,000 students, Ann Marie Butler continues to serve CSUSB with dedication and passion.

THE LA LLORONA URBAN LEGEND

By Hector Franco, Staff Writer

In the early 1500s, a very poor Mexican woman lived in a small pueblo located very close to todays Mexican-American border. She had a husband, and five children all 8 years old or younger. Her husband worked far away on a nobleman's property. He loved his children and would come home once or twice a month to visit them and provide food for them. The husband would often play with the children and tell them stories during his visits but his poor wife would always be pushed aside. The woman grew very jealous of the children, for all the love of her husband would only go to them.

As the months passed, her husband grew more and more distant. He began to visit less often. Finally, she told his wife that he had to speak with her. After laying his children to sleep, kissing them, and telling his children he loved them, he went to his wife. "Dear wife. I have fallen in love with another. She is the woman I love."

The woman was overcome with anger and rage. She knew what she had to do. She woke the children and told them to hurry out of the house for they were in danger. Without question, they ran and they ran until they reached the side of a nearby rocky creek. They stopped. "Children, bow your heads and pray," they did, and they were slain. She cut the bodies into pieces and scattered the parts into different rivers, creeks, streams, and lakes.

Some years had passed. She had quickly grown old and died of a guilty heart. As she slowly arose to heaven the pain in her heart began to fade. She tried to enter the gates of heaven, when a large guard appeared before her with angry eyes and a very cross voice. "We know what you have done!" She immediately appeared before her with angry eyes and a very cross voice. "We know what you have done!" She immediately fell to her knees and began to cry. "You shall be damned on earth and live in your painful sorrow until you find your children!" and back to earth she was cast.

Today, her ghost still roams the creeks, rivers, streams and lakes along the Mexican-American borders looking to find every piece of her slain children. Legend has it that she cries and cries, "Mis hijitos, mis hijitos." (My children, my children). And that is how she got her name "La Llorona," the weeping woman. So beware, for if you find yourself looking into a body of water and see the reflection of a child instead of yours, one of the kids is in that water and she will do anything to get to them.
October 22, 2001

The Coyote Chronicle

Halloween in the Inland Empire

By: Belinda Downs and Susie Medina

October brings a month filled with candy, costumes, and haunted houses. From Pharaoh's Lost Kingdoms in Redlands to Castle Park in Riverside to here on our own campus, there are a bunch of monsters waiting to scare you!

Pharaoh's "Haunted Kingdom" will have many attractions this pumpkin-filled October that include: a haunted train ride, 3-D laser tag, and a nightmare haunted chamber. The Haunted Kingdom is open Wednesdays through Sundays. Doors open at 7:00PM. Prices are $8.00 for the haunted house only and $14.99 for the haunted house and unlimited use of rides.

During the week of Halloween they'll be open Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. On Fridays, they have a Freak Film Festival that is free and starts at 8:00PM.

In Ontario, the 8th Annual Haunted House is going on at Scandia. Think Knotts Scary Farm got cut in half. The place may not be as big and have as many haunted houses, but this one definitely gives you your share of screams. It's open now through October 31, 2001. Doors open at 7:00PM.

When you walk around, you may have to watch yourself as the monsters just spring out at you with their blazing chainsaws and obscene masks. You'll see some pretty scary monsters, but none are as scary as "Butcher Bob" and the Rat Lady who gets eaten by live rats. For the haunted house alone, the price is $7.95 but with an unlimited pass the price is only $4.95. After October 26th the prices go up to $9.95, so get there soon!

Castle Park is also featuring a haunted house. This one is 3-D. I am not even brave enough to even imagine what that will be like. The price is $9.99 for the haunted house or $6.99 with a printable coupon on their website.

Scary but fun-filled event for the kids.

If you'd like to do the adult thing, but don't want to drive all the way down to Berna Park to get the wits scared out of you, you can go to a Halloween LBBA party at Carlos O'Brien's club in downtown San Bernardino. There will be dancing, drinking and a costume contest - and friends from school.

October is a great time to go out and trick or treating yourself. I do realize, however, that most of you readers are over 18 and trick or treating, unless you have a child with you, will only result in foul and smirking doors. The are many things you can do for Halloween that I don't have enough space to cover. The hard part is deciding what to do. So remember that it is meant to be fun, so don't be scared.

Halloween offers many choices for scary fun. The hard part is deciding what to do. So remember that it is meant to be fun, so don't be afraid to go out and have a good time.
The Song Remains the Same

By Shareena C. Clark
Staff Writer

Here at CSUSB, you don’t really hear a lot of live music unless: a) you are a musician, or b) you are in the parking lot. Parking lot music doesn’t really count because it’s blaring from someone else’s car speakers. Unless a) you are a musician, or b) you are in the parking lot.

A lack of live music on campus, and Parking lot music doesn’t really department, there are folks with I go to hear some local live music? in the Inland Empire? Where can the cool cats in the music, of University Hall. But where is anyone going to their shows? “The show an interest in putting out made.” explained one of the jazz department receives, compared to the music culture at school,” Popular the music and the music department are two separate entities...the music department does not have music culture at school.” Popular music and the music department are separate entities...the music department does not have its walls....” Clayton’s comment because they have to.” stated the musician. One of the other musicians, Clayton Connolly, seems to be doing his part to spread the music around. Clayton is a music student at CSUSB, and teaches piano. Clayton said the following about the lack of music culture at school. “Popular music and the music department is being spread around. Clayton said the following about the lack of music culture at school. “Popular music and the music department are separate entities...the music department does not have music and the music department are separate entities...the music department does not have its walls....” Clayton’s comment department performance unless a professor offers points to attend. Few High schools, but some of us are coming back to school to further our education or get a better job. This transition definitely isn’t something easy to get into. “It’s nerve wracking. You feel like you don’t fit in as well as you would if you came out of high school. You put a lot of pressure on yourself as soon as you walk in the door,” stated Mary Petty, a full time student and mom who also holds a full time job. “I admire them because they’re going to school at a time when I should have gone to school,” said Elizabeth Rehkop, a freshman who had went to community college after high school but is back to continue her education years later. Being involved in a club or sport was one way to make this transition a little easier on some. Krystal Spreck, a member of the soccer team, wasn’t the least bit nervous because, “I already knew people.” During their initiation they did a lip sync and dressed up in funny clothes. “It was fun, it helped bond the team to- gether.”

So Fresh and So Clean, Clean

Tiffany Marquez
Staff Writer

This is the new beginning for the freshmen, straight out of high school or starting up after taking a break, to raise a family or get things into perspective. Whatever the reason, all re- act differently to the new atmosphere. From being nervous to going wild, partying and socializing, freshman year is an exciting event for us all. The workload has changed to the dis- appointment of most who fig- uered that we’d have it easier; after all, we just went through four years of high school, what could be harder than that? But overall, this is something that throughout the weeks will lose its effect and before you know it, you’ll be into the swing of things and next year will prob- ably look back on and laugh. Most of us came from surround-

Continued on Page 14
October 22, 2001

The Coyote Chronicle

Speaking Louder than Words

By Gilbert Carcia
Staff Writer

To be able to walk the campus of CSUSB enveloped in the huge diversity of people is amazing. The different races, ethnicity, and religions are on display during the Cultures Awareness week. These displays on various cultures are there to educate others about their history and backgrounds of these people.

You can see these cultures, these people, and understand about their identity. Out there among the crowd at CSUSB there is another culture that is quite invisible. I am part of that culture that hardly anyone is aware of. It's called the Deaf Culture.

You are probably thinking how can a disability be a culture? To be able to understand the answer to that question you will have to look at the history of the Deaf and how they interact as a group. When Deaf people interact with each other they speak a visual language known as American Sign Language (ASL). ASL is the leading minority language in the U.S. after the big four: Spanish, Italian, German and French. This large population of ASL speakers, and the several means for the transmission of ASL across the generations (residential schools, Deaf children of Deaf parents, and the Deaf club), assure a rich culture for the Deaf-World.

Nothing is more central to that culture and dearer to the hearts of Deaf people than their language. My name is Gilberto Garcia. I was born deaf, but could hear well enough to wear hearing aids. I grew up with a hearing family where I learned to read lips and at the same time, I learned to do ASL.

At the California School for the Deaf (CDSR) in Riverside, which assists deaf children to get an education in grade levels of Kindergarten through high school, I picked up the identity of being Deaf. I learned about the culture of the Deaf-World and I learned that it was the language that bonded the Deaf culture.

Communication is important in all cultures—to be able to share ideas and feelings with each other. The Deaf Population grew and among each other they found a need to belong to a group. These

Continued on page 14

Do you have a suggestion for a culture not featured in our section? Please contact us or leave us a message in our Chronicle suggestion box.

Tutor for You
Math & English

Judy Handleman
Certificated Teacher
(909) 792-0342

INVESTMENT STRATEGIES
THAT ARE CLEAR
AND CONCISE.
EVEN IF OUR NAME ISN'T.

As do from our name as we have been in the business of making things simple. So contact us for smart, easy investment tools to help you reach your financial goals.

TIAA-CREF.org or call 1.800.8.2.2776

MULTICULTURAL

Do you have a suggestion for a culture not featured in our section? Please contact us or leave us a message in our Chronicle suggestion box.

Tutor for You
Math & English

Judy Handleman
Certificated Teacher
(909) 792-0342

INVESTMENT STRATEGIES
THAT ARE CLEAR
AND CONCISE.
EVEN IF OUR NAME ISN'T.
I know that everyone reading this knows what I mean when I say "that girl." There are no bars, clubs or even parties "that girl" doesn't attend. She is the girl who tends to be the biggest idiot there, the girl who you include in your stories as you summarize your evening to your friends. My biggest fear is being "that girl."

As an National Student Exchange participant here from Virginia Tech, the idea of going "clubbing" is very bizarre to me, and quite a new experience. Yes, I will refer to it as "clubbing." I had to actually force me to engage in a little multicultural fun that my southern life has deprived me of. Well, and I kid you not, this assignment has caused me many headaches. From my clueless knowledge of what to wear all the way to the God-forsaken task of actually dancing, I have been in a constant state of turmoil.

I told that Gotham, a club on East Caroline Street in San Bernardino, would be the perfect place for me to make my nightclub debut. In preparation for the night, I was shoved off to the mall. I was informed that my favorite overalls would be laughed at, so I made my way into a first tell you that no to my disbelief, most of of fabric. At the persis- connected into buying nothing for me, aside not being able to sit complimented with a handkerchief. Looking only one thought, thank me.

Once I got to bar to earn my club to stay there the rest of run off when I realized much elder man who no other choice; I had to go to the dance floor. Holding the hands of my roommates, I squeezed, as if the pants allowed me to squeeze anymore, through the crowd of veteran hip-hoppers to a remotely vacant spot on the dance floor. Things were going well as my newest friend was a hip-hopper to a remotely vacant spot on the dance floor. Things were going well as my newest friend was a hip-hopper to a remotely vacant spot on the dance floor. Things were going well as my newest friend was a hip-hopper to a remotely vacant spot on the dance floor. Things were going well as my newest friend was a hip-hopper to a remotely vacant spot on the dance floor.

This was the cycle of my night for about two hours, and just as I was giving up on the idea that I could enjoy this assignment, there he was. The most beautiful creature ever placed on this wonderful earth was standing before my slightly blood shot eyes, asking me to dance. I knew it was true love when I was actually asked anything, because up to this point, my body belonged to every set of hands that it passed, certainly not to me. This was the moment in the night that I realized everything that I needed to know about clubs, a true epiphany into the nightlife that I thought reaped no benefits. I felt butter­flies and the room was spinning (and I am almost sure it was because of the guy). We danced for the rest of the night, and somehow I forgot what a terrible dancer I was (until the next day).

The arrival of the last call was not welcomed by many of the Gotham-goers, especially me. I was having so much fun that I actually disregarded the time and I was forcefully booted out. I lost my hot-guy somewhere in the crowd, most likely when my roommates pulled me toward the exit, which I still haven't forgiven them for. On the ride home, I jotted down a few notes, almost illegible the next day. The key words included "Jennifer Lopez," the real woman who set my dancing free, and "hot-guy," the unmistakable divinity that I loved for just a few hours in my life. Also on my scribble page were directions to every club in Inland Valley. My cynicism has dwindled, and I am a true advocate of nightclubs after my experience. The thought of seeing hot-guy again, or even a close replica, could motivate me into those fake leather pants once again.

I am grateful Gotham for helping me conquer many fears that fateful night, except of course, that I was "that girl."
You’ve Been Ed-Lightened

What the Hell is Going on? Armed Robbery, Sexual Assault, False Fire Alarms, and it’s only the Fourth Week of School. Are we Students or Victims?

By John J. Eddy
Executive Editor

It’s usually around 2:00 am when I finally call it a night. Sometimes it’s easier to flip between CNN and MSNBC than to make the journey upstairs. Sleep seems so trivial, yet it sometimes is the only sanctuary.

The tragic events on our campus over the last two weeks have made everyone around here a little jittery. It has also come to my attention that we may have sometimes is the only sanctuary missed or misrepresented some upset or misrepresented words. Sleep seems so trivial, yet it is true that even a hypersensitive is crucial to our existence. We are all volunteering our time, we are all working for the experience and none of us are receiving money. We are all about ready to go batty in the head; but then again... that hasn’t always been a bad thing.

So let’s leave things where they lie, and move toward the future. I want to shift my focus to other issues that have been pushed off of the media circuit for war propaganda. I want to put my faith into the departments here on campus that are guarding our safety and security. I want to sleep at night, feeling safe, rested and healed.

The selected faculty member will be presented with a $1,000 check and awarded a $3,000 Faculty Professional Development grant for purposes of research and professional travel activities. In addition, the selected Outstanding Professor will be recognized during his or her respective college graduation ceremonies.

The nominee must be:

1. A superior teacher
2. Widely recognized for his/her creative production or scholarly achievements in research and/or production
3. A full-time instructional faculty member at the University for at least six years, one who has contributed to the stature of this institution.

To nominate a candidate for the 2001/02 Outstanding Professor Award, please complete the form below and return it to the Office of Academic Affairs (AD-101) by no later than Monday, November 5, 2001.

Please Chancellors, remember that as much as students care about our own wellbeing and ability to advance after college, we also care about the people who helped us get there. Give your faculty a fair contract, and preserve the CSU institution as one that the government of California and its citizens can be proud of.
CREATIVE VS. PERFORMING
Musicians Speak Out

by Melissa Adamson
Assistant A&E Editor

Have you seen a flyer for the music department this year? If you had, you would know the music is loud and clear at CSUSB. Despite the name change from Creative Arts to Performing Arts, the music department remains a haven for personal choice when it comes to creativity and performing.

The Music major is divided into three separate areas for students to concentrate their studies in which are Music Education, Music Performance, and Sound Engineering.

Education major students like Asia Derman and Christine Ross have a core curriculum which include piano lessons, private voice, composition and music theory. Students in the sound engineering program focus on the production element of sound in a recording studio-like environment. Students who choose to focus on performing spend most of their days in practicum classes, in which they can fine-tune their skills for the stage.

All majors are encouraged to join the concert choir or chamber singers, as well as jazz or classical ensembles. Asia Derman, a freshman, explained, "To be a good musician, you have to practice your art. I want to be a music teacher and I feel that performing with the concert choir is just as important in my education as my writing and theory classes are."

According to Dr. Dunnam of the Music Department, the name change may have seemed as though the focus had shifted away from curriculum and music creation, but that isn't the case. "We have the same amount of performances this year as we have had in the past, that isn't the case. "We have the same amount of performances this year as we have had in the past, the focus had shifted away from the concert choir."

Music Department, the name change may have seemed as though the focus had shifted away from the concert choir. "We have the same amount of performances this year as we have had in the past, the focus had shifted away from the concert choir."

The program is designed to create a well-rounded musician, and that's exactly what the Music Department intends to do. As for the department and the name change, misnomer or not, the band will continue to play on.

Berkeley Hits Panic Button

By Matt Schoennmann
A&E Editor

The word from the FBI to expect additional terrorism over the weekend wasn't the only panic in Berkeley over the weekend. The southern boys in Widespread Panic unleashed a flurry of improvisational rock that everyone in attendance was thrilled to be a part of. Able to make the trip for the Friday and Saturday shows, I know that it was in my best interest to head home rather than stay for the 3 p.m. show Sunday afternoon. Bad decision, but I'll get to that later.

Being that Friday night's show was the first since the September 11 attacks, it made for a fairly predictable opener and encore. The show opened up with the appropriate "Hope in a Hopeless World," with John Bell's soulful voice waiting the first lines, "Baby Born in New York City. "The show continued in usual Widespread fashion and concluded with "City of Dreams" followed by the crowd favorite "Space Wrangler."

For Saturday's show everyone was expecting something special. They gave us to us as the band treated us to a very rare "Sharon" squeezed between a "Fishwater" jam. Cecil "Peanut" Daniels joined the band on saxophone for "Stir it up" and a jam, as well as the percussion solo for the second night in a row.

A guest had been expected the following evening. To my amazement, the expected finally happened and Carlos Santana had sat in for the entire first half of the second set.

Needless to say I learned a little something by doing what I swore I could never do. I never imagined that I would miss a show of that magnitude after I was already in the city of the venue. I learned the hard way, so please be understanding if this editor misses a day or two of work in the future.

CREATIVE VS. PERFORMING
Musicians Speak Out

By Melissa Adamson
Assistant A&E Editor

Have you seen a flyer for the music department this year? If you had, you would know the music is loud and clear at CSUSB. Despite the name change from Creative Arts to Performing Arts, the music department remains a haven for personal choice when it comes to creativity and performing.

The Music major is divided into three separate areas for students to concentrate their studies in which are Music Education, Music Performance, and Sound Engineering.

Education major students like Asia Derman and Christine Ross have a core curriculum which include piano lessons, private voice, composition and music theory. Students in the sound engineering program focus on the production element of sound in a recording studio-like environment. Students who choose to focus on performing spend most of their days in practicum classes, in which they can fine-tune their skills for the stage.

All majors are encouraged to join the concert choir or chamber singers, as well as jazz or classical ensembles. Asia Derman, a freshman, explained, "To be a good musician, you have to practice your art. I want to be a music teacher and I feel that performing with the concert choir is just as important in my education as my writing and theory classes are."

According to Dr. Dunnam of the Music Department, the name change may have seemed as though the focus had shifted away from curriculum and music creation, but that isn't the case. "We have the same amount of performances this year as we have had in the past, we've just advertised them more this year."

Professor Kris Carlisle, who performs often on campus, feels that the Music Department has achieved a delicate balance between creating and performing, and he hopes it will remain that way.

The program is designed to create a well-rounded musician, and that's exactly what the Music Department intends to do. As for the department and the name change, misnomer or not, the band will continue to play on.

Berkeley Hits Panic Button

By Matt Schoennmann
A&E Editor

The word from the FBI to expect additional terrorism over the weekend wasn't the only panic in Berkeley over the weekend. The southern boys in Widespread Panic unleashed a flurry of improvisational rock that everyone in attendance was thrilled to be a part of.

Able to make the trip for the Friday and Saturday shows, I knew that it was in my best interest to head home rather than stay for the 3 p.m. show Sunday afternoon. Bad decision, but I'll get to that later.

Being that Friday night's show was the first since the September 11 attacks, it made for a fairly predictable opener and encore. The show opened up with the appropriate "Hope in a Hopeless World," with John Bell's soulful voice waiting the first lines, "Baby Born in New York City. "The show continued in usual Widespread fashion and concluded with "City of Dreams" followed by the crowd favorite "Space Wrangler."

For Saturday's show everyone was expecting something special. They gave us to us as the band treated us to a very rare "Sharon" squeezed between a "Fishwater" jam. Cecil "Peanut" Daniels joined the band on saxophone for "Stir it up" and a jam, as well as the percussion solo for the second night in a row.

A guest had been expected the following evening. To my amazement, the expected finally happened and Carlos Santana had sat in for the entire first half of the second set.

Needless to say I learned a little something by doing what I swore I could never do. I never imagined that I would miss a show of that magnitude after I was already in the city of the venue. I learned the hard way, so please be understanding if this editor misses a day or two of work in the future.
The Horror, the Horror...

By Shane Vanderfin

CSUSB to Host Film Festival

The second annual film festival will once again be held at CSUSB on October 25th-2001. The festival, produced by Cornerhouse Entertainment, will include short movies, skits, music videos, stand-up comedians, and live performances from local bands like Soft Spoken and Ace Guile. The event boasts actors, writers, directors and musicians who are all locally based according to Cornerhouse Entertainment CEO, Nikolos Johnson, a native of Highland. According to Mr. Johnson, the festival will highlight the original, creative work of local artists in an environment that will be fun and entertaining. He also feels that CSUSB is a great place for students to gather in the community.

The event will take place from 7pm to 9pm at the Student Union Events center on campus. All students are encouraged to come and join their community in enjoying the festival.

There is no admission for children dressed in costume and there is trick or treating in the Performing Arts Recital Hall following the concert. The Spook-tacular features the CSUSB Symphonic Band and Concert Choir.
CLASSIFIEDS

FUNDRAISING

Looking to earn money for your organization or yourself? Try Find-U, a no-cost fundraising program that's easy and reliable. Call 1-866-48-FindU or visit www.find-U.com

HEALTH

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation has granted your Student Health Center an award to offer FREE Mammograms to eligible Students. Call (909) 880-5241

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Internet company hiring business savvy, disciplined students for marketing positions on your campus. PT, nice salary. www.workoncampus.com

If you would like to place a classified ad, please call (909) 880-5397 for prices and availability.

---

Student Union Corner

FREE Game Day!

October 29, 2001

ALL DAY!

Student Union Game Room

(some games except pool tables)

FREE

Advertise in the Coyote Chronicle...get the word out to over 5,000 students, and Faculty. Discounted rates available to on campus clubs and organizations. Call us at 880-5931 or email us at SBchron@csusb.edu

---

BACK THE PACK!

Come watch our NATIONALLY RANKED Women's Volleyball team with

Women's Volleyball Game!!

THIS FRIDAY

October 26th

7:00 PM

Coussoulis Arena

Wear your Coyote Pack Tee-shirt to receive

FREE IN-N-OUT BURGER MEAL COUPONS!!

*Supplies are limited

---

BUST A NUT LAUGHING!

HE.AI .TH

THE SUSAN G. KOMEN BREAST CANCER FOUNDATION

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation has granted your Student Health Center an award to offer FREE Mammograms to eligible Students. Call (909) 880-5241

Internet company hiring business savvy, disciplined students for marketing positions on your campus. PT, nice salary. www.workoncampus.com

If you would like to place a classified ad, please call (909) 880-5397 for prices and availability.

---

FREE Game Day!

October 29, 2001

ALL DAY!

Student Union Game Room

(some games except pool tables)

FREE

Advertise in the Coyote Chronicle...get the word out to over 5,000 students, and Faculty. Discounted rates available to on campus clubs and organizations. Call us at 880-5931 or email us at SBchron@csusb.edu

---

BACK THE PACK!

Come watch our NATIONALLY RANKED Women’s Volleyball team with

Women’s Volleyball Game!!

THIS FRIDAY

October 26th

7:00 PM

Coussoulis Arena

Wear your Coyote Pack Tee-shirt to receive

FREE IN-N-OUT BURGER MEAL COUPONS!!

*Supplies are limited

---

You Say

a graduate degree costs too much?

Cal Baptist's Graduate Degree Programs

Master of Business Administration

Master of Science in Counseling Psychology

Masters Degrees in Education

Master of Arts in English

Education Credential Programs

Cal Baptist also offers undergraduate degree programs in more than 20 areas.

Here's a great investment tip: Cal Baptist.

A graduate degree is supposed to pay dividends for a lifetime—but not all graduate degrees are created equal. At Cal Baptist, you can count on personalized attention from talented faculty, widely recognized graduate programs, and an ethical focus that distinguishes you from the crowd. So don't think of your Cal Baptist graduate degree as money out of pocket. It's more like money in the bank.

---

California Baptist University

8432 Magnolia Avenue
Riverside, California 92504
1.877.238.8777
1.909.343.4240
Committee Spots Available

Students have the opportunity to make a significant impact in many areas of the university when they join committees on campus. Whether they join committees to network with campus staff and faculty members, or for other reasons, students are likely to gain valuable experience working in a highly professional environment.

Several open seats are available on Faculty Senate and campus-wide committees, and those vacancies must be filled as soon as possible.

Contact Sara Thibaut at (909) 880-5932 to express interest in joining a committee or for more information.

The following list includes all committees that have open seats.

Faculty Senate Committees

- University Curriculum Committee
  - Reviews all curriculum proposals including experimental courses

- Educational Policy and Resources Committee
  - Evaluates, initiates and reviews educational policies and plans

- Library Committee
  - Reviews and recommends allocation of educational resources within the library

Campus-wide Committees

- Campus 3 Sec. Advisory Committee
  - Vacancy: one undergraduate student
  - Reviews requests for establishment and/or adjustments of mandatory student fees
  - Provides recommendations to the university president

- Copyright/Fair Use Committee
  - Writings and implements fair use policy for the university

- Discrimination Complaint Policy Panel

- Diversity Committee
  - Vacancy: one graduate student
  - Improves diversity-related issues on campus
  - Sponsors annual Diversity Conference
  - Provides funding for diversity-related events
  - Works with students, staff and faculty to increase awareness and tolerance

- Emergency Loan Advisory Committee
  - Reviews and recommends policies governing the Emergency Student Loan program

- Non-Academic Grievance Policy Panel

- Student Aid Committee
  - Reviews and decides on students' appeals regarding loss of financial aid due to unsatisfactory academic progress

- Technology Advisory Council

- Transportation and Parking Committee
  - Advises on campus policies and procedures relating to transportation and parking

- Addresses issues regarding

Intra-University Committee

- College of Business Administration
- College of Engineering and Technology
- College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
- College of Science and Mathematics
- College of Social Sciences

October 26 - November 2

- Fall Fest
  - Student Union Program Board
  - Student Union Courtyard

- Thursday, 1
  - Day of the Dead
    - Student Union Cross Cultural Center
  - Student Union Courtyard

- College Bowl
  - Student Union Program Board
  - Student Union Events Center A
  - Student Union Events Center B & C

- ASU Movie Night
  - 7 p.m. - 10 p.m.
  - Student Union Events Center B & C

- Friday, 2
  - AIDS Day Conference
    - Sponsored by: Health Science
  - Student Union Events Center

Advertorial

Access the saving$

Harry to the ASI Box Office to purchase your discount card and save an instant $5 with your Coyote One card.

The discount card entitles you to savings at the following 15 nearby businesses:

- McDonald's, Del Taco
- Pizza, Danny's
- Hollywood Video, El Dorado
- Togo's and Burger King.

Topo's and Burger King.

Student clubs may purchase the discount card in unlimited supply and resell it for $10, the card's actual value, to generate funds for its sponsored activities.

ASI Announces Fall Events

Halloween Costume Contest
- Wednesday, October 31
  - 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.
  - on your grass area, near the Student Union

Movie Nights
- Rush Hour 2
  - Thursday, November 1
  - 7 p.m.
  - Events Center

- The Fast and the Furious
  - Tuesday, November 20
  - 7 p.m.
  - Events Center

ASI Activities Board Meetings
- Thursdays at 2 p.m.
  - Board Room, Student Union
  - Open to all students

ASI Finance Board Meetings
- Tuesdays at 10 a.m.
  - Board Room, Student Union
  - Open to all students

ASI Board of Directors Meetings
- Tuesdays at 12 p.m.
  - Board Room, Student Union
  - Open to all students
doesn't want to exclude men but counteract the moves we learn.”

comfortable environment where for me. The moves are really intense, the instructors won’t take the class and learn to defend themselves without the threat of a potential attacker.

themselves without the threat of a potential attacker. “R.A.D. has been an experience for me. The moves are really intense, the instructors won’t make you do anything you don’t want to. I wish that if I had taken this a year ago. I think that R.A.D. is very beneficial,” said Washington.

Besides R.A.D., CSUSB provides public safety escorts for all students that come to and from the campus. The Public Safety Board advises alternatives like creating a buddy system with a classmate or friend or parking closer to the building they are going to. They also suggest walking in brightly-lit areas and wearing bright clothing that will allow them to be seen by other students.

Women can prepare themselves for an attack on and off campus by: a) being aware of their surroundings and b) carrying whistles, mace, pepper spray, and keys. Keys may seem like a simple household item but they can keep a person from possibly attacking you. Education is the key to protecting women from being attacked by a malicious person.

Classes such as R.A.D. continue to teach women to protect themselves and are offered at a minimum fee. For more information about the on campus program call (909) 880-7592 or (909) 880-5704.

If you cannot attend the classes on campus, Public Safety suggests you call your local Police Department to get information on self-defense courses and rape prevention programs.

Spencers, Hot Topic, and Fredericks of Hollywood are other shops, in all major local malls, that have limited costumes. These prices range from $17.99 for a slave girl to $45 for an elaborate masked costume at Spencer’s. A simple child’s costume can be bought at Walmart or Target for less than $25. Some adult costumes are available but sizes are limited.

Halloween is coming fast so I advise you to buy your costumes now. Keep in mind that most stores do not allow you to return or exchange costumes after Oct. 31.

For answers to questions like these and others about how credit cards really work, visit www.credit-ed.citibank.com. Be smart. Get the facts you need to use your card wisely.
What took Detroit Lions head coach Marty Mornhinweg so long to realize that Ty Detmer is not their guy at quarterback? Charlie Batch put on a show completing 31 of 41 passes for 345 yards, 3 touchdowns and no interceptions against the Minnesota Vikings, but the Lions came up on the short end 31-26 to the Vikings on October 14.

Germane Crowell: "When you need a touchdown and there's 15 seconds left to win the game and you have no timeouts left, why would you even think about staying in bounds? Don't you ever remember running the two minute drill in practice? Duh."

The Elite Quarterbacks in the NFL: Peyton Manning, Indianapolis Colts. He's smart, efficient and just knows how to play the game. Brett Favre, Green Bay Packers. He can carry an offense all by himself. Donavan McNabb, Philadelphia Eagles (see Daunte Culpepper). Mike Bibby will give the Sacramento Kings much more stability and scoring potential. "It was huge (the season opening win over Westmore) to turn the season," Johnson said. "You just don't go on their home field and beat that team. That was a good start to the season and the women have built upon that." The Coyotes entered this season with a new offense, a four-four-two offensive formation, which requires a lot more mental preparedness. The Coyotes have excelled and are laying a foundation for the future. "We will graduate some key players, but we are ahead of the curve and laying great ground work for a successful future," Johnson said. "Don't get me wrong, these (women) want to win now and are aiming for the (CCAA) conference title." Led by senior Lisa Arent, who had an great season, the Lady Yote's surpass expectations.

Lisa is probably the most talented player in the conference, nothing surprises me with her play," Johnson said. "As long as they continue to play the way they have and we get into the playoffs, I have no question in my mind we can win the conference." Johnson says the biggest surprise on this year's team has been the play of freshman Roxanne Escatel. "She has been a tremendous goal and added one assist, but Johnson says..."
A Lady Coyote serves up against UC Davis Kim Moranhufofo contributed 9 kills while Kristen Soliz added 11 during Cal State Los Angeles' sweep against Los Angeles.

The victory pushed the Coyotes winning streak to seven games, and also improved their season mark to 12-1 and 20-1 overall.

In addition, CSUSB retained its national ranking at the number three spot behind No. 1 New York A&M (19-2) and No. 2 Truman (26-1). The only other CCAA schools to post a national ranking besides the Coyotes were No. 17 Cal State Bakersfield (12-4) and No. 19 UC San Diego (14-4).

The Coyotes will face Bakersfield on Friday, October 26 at Coussoulis Arena before also hosting Cal State Stanislaus on Saturday and concluding its five-game homestand against the Broncos of Cal Poly Pomona on October 27.

The Lady Coyotes are up against UC Davis Kim Moranhufofo contributed 9 kills while Kristen Soliz added 11 during Cal State Los Angeles' sweep against Los Angeles.

The victory pushed the Coyotes winning streak to seven games, and also improved their season mark to 12-1 and 20-1 overall.

In addition, CSUSB retained its national ranking at the number three spot behind No. 1 New York A&M (19-2) and No. 2 Truman (26-1). The only other CCAA schools to post a national ranking besides the Coyotes were No. 17 Cal State Bakersfield (12-4) and No. 19 UC San Diego (14-4).

The Coyotes will face Bakersfield on Friday, October 26 at Coussoulis Arena before also hosting Cal State Stanislaus on Saturday and concluding its five-game homestand against the Broncos of Cal Poly Pomona on October 27.

The Lady Coyotes are up against UC Davis Kim Moranhufofo contributed 9 kills while Kristen Soliz added 11 during Cal State Los Angeles' sweep against Los Angeles.

The victory pushed the Coyotes winning streak to seven games, and also improved their season mark to 12-1 and 20-1 overall.

In addition, CSUSB retained its national ranking at the number three spot behind No. 1 New York A&M (19-2) and No. 2 Truman (26-1). The only other CCAA schools to post a national ranking besides the Coyotes were No. 17 Cal State Bakersfield (12-4) and No. 19 UC San Diego (14-4).

The Coyotes will face Bakersfield on Friday, October 26 at Coussoulis Arena before also hosting Cal State Stanislaus on Saturday and concluding its five-game homestand against the Broncos of Cal Poly Pomona on October 27.