DR. FROST DIES
IN BELIZE JUNGLE

Dr. Marvin Frost, associate professor of geography was found dead Thursday afternoon in the jungle of Belize, formerly British Honduras, where he had gone on sabbatical leave.

Dr. Frost, who left campus March 29 or 30, had set out Sunday morning from a remote Mayan Indian village where he had been staying with a friend while making forays into the dense jungle with a guide. That morning, however, he left alone with only a machete and a camera. When he did not return, searches were instituted, first by the local villagers and then by authorities.

According to a spokesman from the U.S. Embassy the body was located about 12:30 p.m., Thursday in a remote area. There were no signs of violence. Although decomposition had started, authorities said they were positive of the identity. Dr. Frost's father, who lives in the San Joaquin Valley, was contacted and is making arrangements.

Dr. Frost was familiar with Belize and had been there previously. For his Ph.D., received in 1974 from Oregon State University, he wrote his dissertation on the relationships between man, land and wildlife in Belize. He also had studied this subject in Costa Rica. Dr. Frost, who had been with the college since 1976, was coordinator of the environmental studies program and the college weather station. He had received a sabbatical leave for spring quarter.

CAMPUSWIDE FORUM SCHEDULED ON INTERCOLLEGiate ATHLETICS

A campuswide forum on intercollegiate athletics will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Wednesday in the Multipurpose Room of the Student Union. All members of the college community will have an opportunity to express their thoughts about whether intercollegiate athletic competition should be initiated. The time frame will allow staff to use their lunch break to attend a portion of the forum.

The open meeting, to which the press also will be invited, is one of several steps being undertaken by a special task force headed by Dr. Ward McAfee (Social and Behavioral Sciences). Factors being studied are campus and community support, facilities, coaching staff, finance, sports conference participation and scheduling.

The focus now is on NCAA Division III competition, which involves smaller schools such as the University of Redlands and the Claremont Colleges. Sports receiving primary consideration at this time are basketball, soccer, swimming, tennis, volleyball and cross-country for both men and women; women's softball; and men's baseball. Other sports may also be considered.

The task force plans to report its findings to President Evans by early June. If intercollegiate sports were approved, the competition would not begin before the 1984-85 academic year. Dr. John Hatton (Dean of Students) chairs the task force's subcommittee on campus and community support, the group organizing this open forum.
MAJOR COMPUTERIZATION UNDERWAY FOR ACCOUNTING

The college is in the process of implementing a new management information system called the Integrated Business System (IBS). This major project is being undertaken throughout the CSU system. The IBS is expected to facilitate the required financial reporting to government agencies, to standardize the CSU's financial records and to make financial information more readily available, more accurate and easier to use.

The new system will generate financial and control reports by function and by department. These reports will summarize financial transactions by day, week, month and year-to-date. They can be used by all levels of college management to review, monitor and analyze financial data.

Five people from each campus are being trained by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. to provide the on-campus training in the implementation and use of the IBS. Trainers from this college are Donald Saponetti (Accounting), the project coordinator; James Bentley (Computer Center), Jim Martinez (Budget Officer), Patricia Quanstrom (Accounting) and Kathryn Shepard (Purchasing). They have started the training of the Accounting staff.

The new system, purchased from Westinghouse Information Systems, will be implemented in three phases. Phase I covers the financial management/reporting and accounts payables, and should start in July. Phase II, which includes accounts receivables, purchasing and property, will begin July 1984. The final phase will be budget preparation and payroll, which will be implemented July 1985.

The only change for departments in processing requisitions will be use of 10-digit account numbers instead of 15 digits. The Accounting Office will furnish a list of the new account numbers sometime during June.

In addition, members of the training team will meet with college staff and administrators during September to explain in detail the many uses of the new system.

The festival continues tomorrow and Sunday. A special event tomorrow is the performance of "Bits and Bytes" by the South Coast Repertory at 10 and 11:15 a.m. in the Recital Hall.

Sunday, which also is the day of the Health Fair Expo and the Alumni Awards Brunch, several activities are planned by the Art Club and Art Department, including the Raku Party, art demonstrations, a hi tech sculpture exhibit and a student art sale. The Computer Center will hold an open house, with demonstrations and hands-on experiences with computers. Audiovisual Services will show video tapes on robotics and the latest uses of electronics during the Hi Tech Video Festival. The Pfau Library and the Bookstore will display computer resources. Phil West (Music) has prepared a synthesized music demonstration. The Cal State Associates will sponsor puppet shows and puppet making for children.

Two plays by Israel Horowitz about life in New York City will be performed during "A Night in New York," a student production opening Thursday in the Drama Lab. Randy Charnin, a senior theatre arts major, will direct performances of "Rats" and "Indian Wants the Bronx" at 8:15 p.m., Thursday through Saturday, April 28-30 and May 5-7.

"Rats," a statement on getting to the top in society's rat race, stars Geoff Berry, Jeff Macey and Lantis Bernard. "Indian Wants the Bronx," a story about a man from India confronted by two hoodlums at a Bronx bus stop, stars Macey, Marc Dietrich and Tim Reilly. Charnin also designed the scenery for the production and Berry is in charge of lighting. Other students involved are Vicki Smith, costumes and make-up; Paul Wilkerson, props; and Laurie Branson, stage manager.

Tickets are $2 and may be reserved in advance at the Theatre Arts Department, Ext. 7452.
DATA BASE SEARCH SERVICE AVAILABLE IN LIBRARY

A data base search service for finding periodicals on subjects ranging from education and business to science and the humanities is now available in the Pfau Library. During its introductory stage, which continues through June 30, students, faculty and staff of the college may use the service free.

Through the computer, the researcher has access to more than 150 data bases, which contain more than 55 million records. Patrons do not receive the entire document of an article, but rather a bibliographic listing, which includes information needed to locate the article and possibly an abstract or summary of the information.

The Library has allocated $5,000 per year to underwrite the project. Based on statistics gathered in the first three months, the college will determine the annual cost. To meet expenses in excess of the allotted $5,000, users will be charged a percentage of the cost of their searches after June 30. If the service eventually is opened to off-campus patrons, they will be assessed the full cost.

The charge for each search is determined by the time on the phone and by the cost per hour for use of the data base, which can range from $25 to $300. However, the typical search takes 15 to 30 minutes, with an average cost of $15 to $30, according to John Tibbals (Library), coordinator of the data base search service. Except during the introductory period, patrons would pay a percentage of this amount.

To minimize the use of time on the computer, the patron can have the listing printed "off line" and sent through the mail, instead of being printed "on line" by the computer. The user can also determine at any point during the search how much the activity has cost to date and can end it at that time.

ACTING MEDICAL DIRECTOR NAMED

Dr. James R. Savage is serving as acting medical director for the Student Health Center for the remainder of the school year. Dr. Ross Ballard, medical director, is on leave.

TIME TO START PAPERWORK FOR RETIREMENT PROGRAM

All approvals, except one, have been received for the early retirement plan, which enables CSU employees to receive two year's extra service credit upon retirement between April 18 and Aug. 15. Endorsement by the Joint Legislative Budget Committee is expected soon. Since the window period began last Monday, the Personnel Office now is processing estimate and final determination paperwork for eligible employees interested in the program.

On the remote chance the Joint Committee does not approve the "golden handshake bill," an employee who would not wish to retire without the two year's extra service credit may withdraw his or her application any time before receipt of the first retirement check, according to Sandra Jensen, personnel officer.

To be eligible, one must have five years of state service employment and be 50 years old at the date of retirement. Persons who have not received a packet or who wish to complete the estimate or final paperwork are asked to call Personnel, Ext. 7205.
