Detweiler New CSUDH President

Dr. Robert C. Detweiler, vice president for academic affairs here since 1985, Tuesday was named president of Cal State, Dominguez Hills by the CSU Board of Trustees.

The campus reaction to the announcement is uniformly pleasure for Dr. Detweiler and a sense of loss for the campus.

"I am elated over the trustees' selection of Vice President Detweiler as the new president of California State University, Dominguez Hills," said President Anthony H. Evans.

"Although his departure from our campus will create a major void, we all have anticipated this action. It was only a matter of time.

"The talent and versatility which he has demonstrated at our campus will serve him well in his future assignment," continued Dr. Evans. "I'm convinced that he will soon distinguish himself as one of the best presidents in our system."

Dr. John Craig, chair of the Faculty Senate, said, "I'm really delighted for Bob. He's going to leave a huge hole on the campus. We're going to miss him very much as academic vice president."

Dr. Judith M. Rymer, vice president for university relations, noted, "The four vice presidents had formed an outstanding working relationship and had worked together as a team for four years. We will miss Dr. Detweiler's many contributions to our group and to the campus as a whole."

Dr. Tom Pierce, chair of the University Evaluation Committee, spoke of Dr. Detweiler's "very positive contributions to the university."

"In an environment of rapid growth in the student body and tight monetary resources, he's done his best to support the faculty," said Pierce, who served as acting dean of the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences during Detweiler's first two years as vice president.

"He's one of the hardest-working people I've ever met," he added.

"While looking forward to the challenges of the position, Dr. Detweiler expressed regret at leaving the warmth of the San Bernardino campus and the larger community."

"I doubt that we ever again are going to work with a better team of colleagues and administrators," he said.

"I hope to be able to work with the people at Dominguez Hills to implement some of the successes we've enjoyed at the San Bernardino campus."

"Many of the challenges are similar there," he said, mentioning as examples the need for a more successful enrollment plan, a stimulation of campus life and better community relations.

The San Bernardino campus has surpassed Dominguez Hills in enrollment in recent years and that campus lacks identity with the multitude of surrounding small communities.

"The student bodies have much in common with an average age of about 28 years, heavily community college transfers and about the same number in on-campus housing," Dr. Detweiler said. Dominguez Hills has a higher percentage of minorities (about 58 percent).

"In many ways, the opportunities and challenges will be similar," he said. "I hope to capitalize on what I've learned with President Evans and my colleagues here."

Dr. Detweiler hopes to take a brief vacation before assuming his presidency in August. His current responsibilities with faculty appointments and tenure decisions will keep him busy until mid-July.

"Neither Susan nor I are anxious to leave here," he said. "Both the campus and the larger community have been very warm toward us. One of the nicest things here is how quickly people accept you and let you become part of the community."

Dr. Detweiler came to Cal State in 1985 from San Diego State University, where he had been dean of the School of Arts and Letters, professor of history and department chairman.

He also was a finalist in the search for the president for the new CSU campus at San Marcos. The Dominguez Hills search was completed first, however.

Dr. Detweiler is the first person to move from the San Bernardino campus into a university presidency.

President Evans is expected to name an acting vice president, following consultation with various campus groups, until a search for a permanent replacement has been conducted.

Chancellor to Speak at Graduation

Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds will speak at the university's 23rd commencement exercises Saturday afternoon, June 17.

Nearly 1800 students, the largest class yet, are expected to be eligible to participate in the 5:30 p.m. ceremonies on the lawn east of the Library.

The Class of 1989 will include fall and winter

International Student Director Named

Zahur Ahmed from Cal State, Fresno will become the new director of the international student services program here June 19, Dr. Peter Wilson, vice president for student services, announces.

Ahmed brings 11 years of experience in working with international students, including one year at UC, Riverside before going to Fresno.

A counselor in International Student Services, he designed and coordinated the international student orientation program at Fresno, which consistently ranks among the top three schools in the CSU in the enrollment of students from other countries.

His other responsibilities there included academic and personal counseling, teaching, working with international clubs, cultural programming and working with the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"I have been closely involved with international students for the past 20 years, having come to the United States as an international student in 1969," he said.

Prior to his work at UCR in 1980-81, Ahmed directed a one-person foreign student program at Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville in 1978-80.

He has presented workshops at regional conferences of the National Association of Foreign Student Advisors and at the National Orientation Directors Association conference.

Ahmed earned his B.S. in psychology at SIU, Edwardsville and will receive his master's degree in counseling there May 27.

Ahmed was one of five finalists brought to campus in the national search for a director. He succeeds Jeanne Hogenson, who died last November.

Open Forums Announced For Graduate Dean Post

Open forums are set for the four remaining finalists for the position of dean of graduate studies, Dr. Amer El-Ahraf, chair of the search committee, reports.

A new candidate was added to the list after Dr. William Taft withdrew. The latest addition is Dr. Royce Ballinger, professor and director of the School of Biological Sciences at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

The candidates and their open forums include:

- Dr. Julius Kaplan, dean of graduate studies and professor of art here, 1:30 to 2:15 p.m., Wednesday, May 31 in the Student Union Rooms A and B;
- Dr. Maude Wahlman, associate professor and chair of the Art Department at the University of Central Florida, 11:15 to noon, Thursday, June 1 in the Pine Room of the Commons;
- Dr. Ballinger, 10:45-11:30 a.m., Monday, June 5, SU A and B;
- Dr. Phillip Sokolove, professor of biological science and associate dean of arts and sciences at the University of Maryland, Baltimore, 10:30-11:15 a.m., Thursday, June 8, SU A and B.

The first candidate to visit campus was Dr. John B. Turner, associate dean of the graduate school and assistant provost at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on May 12.

Children's Theatre Set for June 5

An evening of theatre for children will be presented Monday evening, June 5 as a joint endeavor of The Imagination Players and The Children's Theatre Touring Show from San Bernardino Valley College.

The two-hour, free presentation will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall. Doors will open at 6:15 p.m.

The Imagination Players (IMPS), directed by Dr. Amanda Sue Rudisill (Theatre Arts), will present a variety of old favorites and new stories including:

Two original stories by student Matt Webster, "Butterflies Alone" and "Follow Me Blindly," also will be performed by the IMPS.

The presentation by the Valley College touring theatre group, "Stories to Tell ... from a Dark Forest of Another Time and Another Place," consists of a series of short stories written and performed by the theatre students. The nine stories, specifically created for the child audience, stress important ideas in training, teaching, character building and personal traits. The company director is Harry L. Murray, associate professor of speech and theatre arts at SBVC.

The Cal State IMPS is a class offered each spring and open to all students. After five weeks of rehearsals, the company tours elementary schools and presents children's literature to more than 6000 students. The IMPS have been touring since 1978.
Outdoor Fiesta Tomorrow

The sound of music will be Latin when the Music of the Americas Festival concludes tomorrow (Saturday) with a free, outdoor fiesta on the Commons patio.

Six groups, both professional and student, will be performing from noon to about 6 p.m.

They are: UCLATINO, at noon; Mixcoacalli Folk Dance Ensemble, 1 p.m.; Los Peldanos Trio, 1:45 p.m.; University Jazz Ensemble, 2:30 p.m.; INCA Folk Ensemble, 3 p.m.; and Poncho Sanchez and the Latin Ensemble, 4:30 p.m.

Booths, sponsored by student organizations, will feature food, crafts and comedy.

The last of three evening concerts will feature the Chamber Orchestra at 8 o'clock this evening (Friday, May 19) in the Recital Hall. Admission is $5 general and $3 for students and senior citizens.

Dr. Raymond Torres-Santos (Music) is the coordinator of the Music of the Americas Festival, which this year features Latin American music. The Friday Bulletin regrets the error in not giving credit to him in the May 5 issue.

Little-Known Resource
Blood Account Can Benefit Campus

By Christine Stanfield
Intern from the Communications Department

In times of disaster human nature draws people to help those who can't help themselves. County blood bank lines are full of eager people waiting to donate blood. But what most people don't realize is that disasters happening everyday in somebody else's life create a desperate need for blood.

Shortages in the blood supply are being reported nationally. Some people are being asked to postpone or cancel elective surgeries because of the shortage.

Cal State, San Bernardino is part of a nationwide program to help supply blood for the everyday personal disasters that a member of the campus community may endure.

The campus maintains a Blood Reserve Account with the Blood Bank of Riverside and San Bernardino Counties to help not only maintain the blood supply, but also to help defer some of the blood costs to members of the Cal State community.

"The account was set up to defray some of the blood replacement costs, but fortunately not many of the units have been used," said Dorinda Thurman, health services assistant. "Many people are not aware of this reserve of blood."

The Blood Reserve Account system operates like a bank savings account and allows groups to provide blood for members within their own group or to others who are unable to donate for themselves. Each unit of blood donated is credited for one unit and is released on a one-to-one basis. The blood is deposited with all the regular blood supply and the campus is notified of the number of units available monthly. The blood cannot be kept separately because it can only be stored for 42 days.

The account is open to all of the campus community and their immediate families. Currently the account holds 154 units of blood and has only been used by three people in the last two years. The blood drives held on campus are used specifically to replenish the account, but donors may give at any of the four donor centers and contribute to the account.

The Blood Bank has donor centers in San Bernardino, at 399 Blood Bank Road; Riverside, 8,543 Indiana Avenue; Ontario, on the corner of 4th and Vineyard; and in the High Desert, 11941 Hesperia Road.

Although most of the blood is needed for emergency transfusions, blood components are used to help patients with cancer, hemophilia, heart disease and other problems. The Blood Bank needs between 250 and 300 donors every day just to maintain the blood supply in the two-county area.

Even though there is such an urgent need for blood, many people are hesitant to give blood unless a personal tragedy affects them.

"Many people don't donate because of the fear of the unknown, the fear of needles and the fear of AIDS, " said Paul Sautter, director of donor resources at the Blood Bank of Riverside and San Bernardino Counties.

"We try to answer the questions of those who are afraid to donate and target our approach to those who don't have any fears," Sautter continued.

Prior to all the publicity surrounding AIDS, many people were afraid to donate blood, but since then many more refuse to donate because they believe they can contract AIDS from blood donations. Sterile, disposable equipment is used for each donation; therefore, it is impossible to get AIDS from donating blood, he said.

The donation process is a simple procedure, usually lasting less than one hour. It is accompanied by a mini-physical and a detailed questionnaire about sex and drug behavior and its correlation with AIDS to help reduce the risk involving AIDS and blood transfusions.

Lost and Found Items

Lost anything on campus recently?

The Public Safety Department, the official depository of lost and found items, has collected a variety of misplaced property including books, clothes, calculators, purses, keys and sunglasses. Among the unclaimed items also are an exercise bike, a bicycle and a globe.

The missing owners will have until Monday, June 5 to claim their property, said Sgt. S. C. Nowicki (Public Safety).

After that date, the items turned in through Feb. 28 will be given to a charity.

Anyone wanting to check on lost property should call Ext. 5165 or stop by the Public Safety Department in the Physical Plant complex.
New Research Institute Established by Faculty

A new Institute for Applied Research and Policy Analysis, established by faculty at California State University, San Bernardino, offers full-service consultation and applied research capabilities to government agencies, businesses and nonprofit organizations.

Managed by professional researchers who will draw upon the diverse expertise of faculty throughout the university, the new institute will conduct public polls, surveys, evaluation studies and feasibility and needs assessment studies, in addition to providing other services, said Dr. Sheldon Bockman, chair of the institute's board of directors and a professor of management.

Launched by a four-member board composed of professors in information and decision sciences, marketing, management and criminal justice, the institute is an outgrowth of the former Research and Data Gathering Center, created three years ago to conduct applied research primarily for off-campus clients.

The upgrading from a "center" to an "institute" involves administrative support and a financial commitment from the institution for a research group that is universitywide, said Dr. Donald Lindsey, criminal justice professor and board member.

"We are getting support from the university with the understanding that we will be at least 50 percent self-sufficient within three years," Lindsey said.

"Our interest in applied research and the university's recognition of the need for this service in the Inland Empire helped to establish a formalized research group within the institution," said Bockman.

"The institute also provides statistical and informational-processing counseling for faculty," explained Dr. Barbara Sirotnik, professor of information and decision sciences and a director of the institute.

In addition to research and consultation, the institute offers economic, social and demographic information about the Inland Empire. The Inland Empire Economic Development Council is the institute's first subscriber for this computerized service.

The founding board members, which also includes Dr. Nabil Razzouk, professor of marketing, will manage the institute, develop projects and serve as principle investigators.

Previous projects conducted by some of the researchers have included a needs assessment study on the Enterprise Zone and a prevailing wage study for the City of San Bernardino, a cost comparison analysis of California Probation Departments and an evaluation study of the Community-Oriented Policing Program for the San Bernardino City Police Department.

Women's Council

The CSUSB Women's Council will meet from noon to 1 p.m., Thursday, May 25 in PL 241 to update the women faculty, staff and students on the campus' sexual harassment policies and actions, announced Dr. Loralee MacPike (English).

Nominations also will be accepted for election of a campus representative to the statewide governing board of the Women's Council of the State University. Anyone interested in serving should contact Dr. MacPike at Ext. 5839, PL 291.

Scholarship Benefit

A musical variety and fashion show to benefit a new Transfer Scholarship Fund will be held Friday evening, May 19 at San Bernardino Valley College.

Admission for the event, to begin at 6:30 p.m. in the main auditorium, is $4.50. Tickets will be available at the door.

The fund to assist underrepresented and low-income students is being established by the Educational Committee Aiming for Higher Opportunity (ECHO), which consists of representatives from Cal State, UC Riverside, SBVC and the University of Redlands.

More information is available from Harriet Gibson in Educational Support Services, Ext. 5042.

Braille Signs

All of the doors on campus soon will be marked with braille symbols identifying the office.

Work on the project, which will assist visually handicapped students and visitors, began about May 1, reports Jim Hansen (Physical Plant).

The work is being done by Joe Payan and Genetta Cheatham, who borrowed the lettering equipment from Services to Students with Disabilities. Barbara Sovereign (Services to Students with Disabilities counselor) provided the braille symbols.

Sympathy

The university community extends deepest sympathy to Marina Kyritsis (Enrollment Services) on the death of her father, Konstantinos G. Kyritsis, May 12 in San Bernardino. Services were Tuesday at St. Prophet Elias Greek Orthodox Church.
