WASC Team Cites Impact of Growth In Balanced Report

Cal State, San Bernardino is a "rapidly growing, vibrant, comprehensive university, with a demonstrated emphasis on service to its assigned region," noted the accreditation team from the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) in its fifth-year review of the campus.

"Collaboration, respect and civility between administration, faculty and students was most evident, as well as mutual agreement on institutional goals."

The team reviewed the university's report on progress achieved on the recommendations made five years ago and concluded with suggestions for special consideration.

Associate Vice President Jerrold Pritchard, liaison with the accreditation process, termed the report "as clean a bill of health as one could hope to get."

"It's a very balanced report that confirms strengths and weaknesses we had already identified ourselves. It provides guidance for future responses to issues identified in the 1984 report as well as suggestions for future development," he said.

The WASC visitors commended the university's expanded mission statement and strategic plan, but expressed concern about the impact of growth on campus programs and resources.

"The institution is growing rapidly and should closely assess the impacts of growth and new programs which appear to be outstripping resources. Goodwill, morale, sense of community, caring for the enterprise, class size, quality of education, workload, research and so forth, all could eventually be impacted," the team wrote in its report.

The team expressed sympathy for the library's space needs and said it was responding well, "given the problems of space and automation." The team suggested the stacks be placed closer together and be allowed to go higher. "The library is commended for its desire to service both the on-campus and off-campus programs," it wrote.

The CSU already has projected plans to double the size of the library and to return all classroom space to the library, Dr. Pritchard noted.

The visitors reported the School of Natural Sciences has a particular problem with space, shortage of equipment and technical support and recommended greater attention to departmental majors, faculty planning for the future of the school and scholarly development.

Community Service Program Lauded

The program of community service launched by the Student Life Office with lottery funds has been praised by members of the California Senate and the Legislature.

Called "Campus and Community in Partnership," the university's Community Service Program matches student volunteers with nonprofit organizations in the community.

Patton State Hospital nominated the Cal State program for the state honors.

Certificates of recognition for "outstanding service to patients and staff of Patton State Hospital" were signed by Paul A. Woodruff, 61st Assembly District; Jerry Eaves, 66th Assembly District; Bill Leonard, 24th Senate District; and Ruben S. Ayala, 34th Senate District.

"This award shows that we have successfully combined our efforts at developing community-minded students and at meeting real needs within the greater San Bernar-

On the fiscal side, the team found the planning and budgetary process is "well understood and involves many constituencies," but suggested further communication as to the rationale for the final decisions.

The university has made significant progress in purchasing computer equipment to meet faculty and student needs and in computerizing the areas of admissions and financial aid, the team said.

Special dialogue is needed for more open discussion about all aspects of affirmative action "to ensure the maintenance of a campus environment that is truly hospitable to these new constituencies," the report commended the university for the development of its educational equity plan and the substantial strides taken in affirmative action in recruitment, hiring and promotion.

The visitors cited favorably the aggressive approach to student recruitment, the strengthened mandatory advising program and the mentoring program that "provides support for faculty who are able to lend a personal touch, an understanding ear and a motivating word to students."

As a result of its growth, regional influence and faculty development of unique and successful new programs, the WASC visitors encouraged the university to "discover and cultivate a distinctive role or character" within the CSU system.

dino area," said Randy Harrell, director of student life.

He commended the work of Tami Bakewell, student advisor, and Kathy Privette and Judy Takano, students, in "developing a level of excellence in our program which was responsible for this recognition."

The participants were honored at a luncheon May 24 at Patton State Hospital, where the awards were presented.

The Community Service Program, in operation for about 18 months, is funded by state lottery money under the auspices of the California Human Corps legislation. The university expects a 50 percent increase in its allocation next year, Harrell reports.

For the first full year of operation, 1988-89, the university was awarded $23,000.

During the current year, 80 students were involved as volunteers. In addition to Patton State Hospital, they worked in agencies such as the Highland Senior Center, the PAL Center and the Inland Legal Services.

In a time when the need for volunteers has been promoted at the level of the U.S. presidency, the students are asked to give of their time (50 hours in a quarter) to assist a community organization.

The students' interests and skills are matched to the needs of the organizations as much as possible.

In addition to exposure to social and economic needs in the community, the students have the opportunity to test their interest in a career in that field.

In exchange for their time, the students receive a $100 cash grant and mileage allowance.

Management Center Established

The Inland Empire Management Center has been established by university faculty to meet the special training and applied research needs of business and government agencies.

Operated by the School of Business and Public Administration, the center will offer special instruction in accounting, computer information systems, finance, economics, management, manufacturing, marketing and real estate. Research assistance will be aimed at improving quality control and productivity.

"There is a growing demand in our two-county service area for specialized seminars, short courses, management training and other instructional activities," said Dr. David Porter, school dean.

The center already has an $80,000 contract with General Dynamics to train employees for the certification exam in production inventory management, said Dr. Jay Varzandeh (Information and Decision Sciences), center director. Proceeds from the contract will be cycled into faculty professional development in the school. The nonprofit center also will organize conferences and offer some free seminars.

Book Sale
Library Gives Permanent Checkout

Cash or checks—not zebra bar codes on ID cards—will be the medium of exchange when Pfau Library holds its book sale Thursday, June 8.

These publications, which have no due date for return, will be on sale from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in the north end of the Library basement (near Audiovisual Services and the elevators).

Hundreds of new and used books on all topics will be for sale at bargain basement prices, reports John Tibbals (Patron Services).

Although a few "treasures" will be specially priced, most of the books will be sold for 50 cents for hardcover, 30 cents for large paperbacks, 20 cents for small paperbacks and 10 cents for loose magazines and pamphlets.

From 4 to 5:30 p.m. the clearance (but not going out of business) sale prices will be $3 for a bag of books.

All proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase new books for the Library, Tibbals said.

Access to the sale area is via the stairs.
7 Sexual Harassment Advisors Added

Seven faculty and staff members have been added to the list of sexual harassment advisors, the first level of recourse for any campus person who believes he or she is the subject of unfair treatment, announces Olga Morales (Academic Programs), chair of the university’s Sexual Harassment Committee.

“The official policy of the university is to maintain a working and learning environment free from sexual harassment of its students and employees and everyone who applies,” she explained. "Anyone who believes he or she is the subject of sexual harassment should discuss the matter with a sexual harassment advisor (SHA)."

The advisors will endeavor to resolve the concern at the informal discussion level or will assist with filing a formal complaint, she said.

In order to provide confidentiality to a complainant, the SHAs are a diverse group and are situated all over the campus. "We want to make it possible for someone to go to an advisor out of his or her work area," Ms. Morales explained.

All prospective advisors are interviewed by the Sexual Harassment Committee, prior to their appointment, for sensitivity and availability, she said.

The current sexual harassment advisors include (asterisks indicate the new appointees):

Auditions Open for Summer Play

Would-be actors and actresses from campus and community, seeking a stimulating summer experience, are invited to audition for roles in the university’s special presentation of "Scapino!"

The open auditions are set for 2 p.m., Sunday, June 4 and 7 p.m., Tuesday, June 6 in CA 143, announced Dr. Bob Yowell (Theatre Arts).

The play will be performed July 14-15 on campus, July 21-22 in the Big Bear Civic Center Theatre and July 28-29 in the Sturges Art Center in San Bernardino.

The play is the story of Scapino, a likable but somewhat deceitful Italian servant who attempts to unite love-starved young men with swooning young women and still maintain family honors.

Director of the summer production will be Barry Wallace, drama teacher at Eisenhower High School in Rialto.

Anyone wishing to audition may borrow a script from Theatre Arts, CA 175, Ext. 5876.

Psychologists to Host Major Convention

The Psychology Department and the university have been chosen as hosts for the 1990 convention of the Western Psychological Association, announced Dr. Charles Hoffman, department chair.

The annual meeting of more than 2500 psychologists will be held April 26-29, 1990 at the Los Angeles Biltmore Hotel.

Serving as convention co-chairs are Dr. Jan Kottke, on-site coordinator; Dr. Larry Janner and Dr. Hope Landrine, all psychology faculty.

"Being selected as host institution is an honor for the department and the university," said Dr. Hoffman. "At this juncture in our development, it's an especially exciting role for us to play in our profession."

Convention hosts in the past have included UCLA, UC Berkeley, the universities of Washington and Oregon and larger CSU campuses.

The university's co-chairs, assisted by other members of the department, will be arranging about 50 events, inviting speakers and defining symposia.

The university was selected from among several applicants by the executive committee of the WPA.
Tickets Available For ‘Birds’

An Aristophanes comedy, “The Birds,” is now on stage in the University Theatre.

Tickets are available for the Theatre Arts Department’s final production of the regular season, which opened last night.

Performances are at 8:15 p.m., today and tomorrow, June 2-3 and Wednesday-Saturday, June 7-10.

“The Birds” has been described as a “colorful spectacle of theatrical entertainment as birds are pitted against man in an Athenian combat of verbal wit and musical parody.” It is the tale of two Athenian citizens searching for a government to their political liking.

Dr. Ronald Barnes (Theatre Arts) is directing. Choreographer is Antony Balcena, a member of the first touring cast of “A Chorus Line, who is teaching in the Theatre Arts Department this quarter. Special music was composed for the production by Dr. Raymond Torres-Santos (Music).

Admission is $6 general and $3 for students, senior citizens and alumni.

Open Enrollment Extended

The open enrollment period for health benefits (insurance) programs will end Friday, July 14, rather than June 16, reminds Marjorie Callaghan (Personnel).

The period in which employees may change, add or drop insurance programs is earlier than usual this year, she said. Ordinarily it has been in September-October.

The open enrollment period was extended a month because of a delay in getting the PERS booklets that explain all available plans, Ms. Callaghan said. The booklets will be mailed to employees’ homes the first part of June. A few copies are in the Personnel Office, SS 151. Any changes employees make will be effective Aug. 1.

Last Foreign Film

The final foreign film for the season will be Francois Truffaut’s “Small Change,” shown at 8:15 p.m., Saturday, June 3 in PS 10.

The 1976 French film, with English subtitles, takes a warm and tender look at 10 children’s lives and shows that growing up can be both perilous and charming.

The movie, open to the public, is free.

Commencement Garb Deadline

The last day for students to reserve caps and gowns for commencement is Friday, June 9.

Both students and faculty may begin picking up their garb at the Bookstore on Monday, June 12.

Dr. Del LaVerne Watson (Nursing) won the faculty drawing for the free regalia to be used at commencement, the Bookstore announced. The attire is donated by the Collegiate Cap and Gown Company.

Commencement exercises for the Class of 1989 will begin at 5:30 p.m., June 17 on the lawns east of the Library.

Information Booth to Close

The assistance booth at the main entrance to the campus will be closed from June 1 until early September, announced Harry Larsen (Parking Services).

“Sponsors of visitors are asked to plan ahead and provide guest parking permits by mail when feasible,” he said.

“Large group clearances should still be made through Parking Services (Ext. 5912) well in advance of the event if booth staffing is critical to the event.”

Homes Needed for Japanese Students

Homestay is needed for women students from Trident and Yasuda Colleges in Japan who will be here during July to participate in the American Culture and Language Program sponsored by Extended Education.

One group will be here from July 5 through July 28 and the others from July 11 through Aug. 2.

Host families are expected to provide transportation to and from the university, lodging and meals. They are paid $300 for the three-week period. Families may host one or two students.

The visitors will have limited English proficiency but hosts do not need to know Japanese, explained Donna Boyd (Extended Education).

Anyone interested in offering their hospitality to the Japanese women should contact Ruth Gray in ACLP, Ext. 5978.
