New Duties Assigned for Key Administrators

Two top administrators have assumed new roles at both the Cal State campus and at the Coachella Valley Center. Dr. Juan Gonzalez, assistant to the president, is now serving as interim vice president for student services. He succeeds Dr. Peter Wilson who recently was named interim dean of the Coachella Valley Center. Dr. Catherine Gannon, who has overseen operations at the satellite campus since its opening in 1986, is returning to teach full-time in the English Department. The changes became effective on Sept. 1.

Gonzalez, who joined Cal State in 1987, brings a wealth of experience in program evaluation and the administration of educational equity programs to his new management duties in the student services division which comprises enrollment services, financial aid, pre-college outreach and student housing, among other operations.

"I feel privileged and excited to be able to take on this new role," says Gonzalez. "I see it as a new way to serve the university and as an opportunity for me to grow and expand my horizons.

"What most excites me is the opportunity to directly work with students and the student services staff. There's a great group of people in that division. My vision is that student services is a pivotal part of the university which provides students a wide array of programs and services."

In discussing his new interim role, Gonzalez says, "The biggest challenge will be to provide stability and continuity to the university. I don't anticipate implementing many major changes to the division." Gonzalez also will maintain his position as assistant to the president.

Prior to joining Cal State as the university's first presidential assistant, Gonzalez was a visiting research associate at UCLA's Higher Education Research Institute, studying strategies for keeping low income and minority students in college. Previously, he served as the director of the Academic Advancement Program at UCLA, and he has worked as a consultant to a variety of educational agencies, including the California Postsecondary Commission and the Tomas Rivera Center in Claremont. Gonzalez has a Ph.D. in educational psychology from the University of Illinois, an M.A. in bilingual-bicultural education from the University of Texas in San Antonio and an undergraduate degree in Latin American Studies from Texas Tech.

Gonzalez has a Ph.D. in educational psychology from the University of Illinois, an M.A. in bilingual-bicultural education from the University of Texas in San Antonio and an undergraduate degree in Latin American Studies from Texas Tech.

Like Gonzalez, Wilson is looking forward to the responsibilities of a new administrative role. "It's a challenging opportunity," says Wilson. "I think the Coachella Valley Center has tremendous potential for service in the area - a lot of which has not been realized yet. I feel the center is at a watershed in its development. The next year or two will be critical for it in terms of future development."

Major Grant To Assist Graduate Social Work Program

Cal State's Social Work Department is part of a 10-school consortium of graduate social work programs in California to receive $350,000 in funding from the Ford Foundation and private California sources, announces Dr. Morley Glicken, professor of social work.

"This grant is the first grant of its kind," says Glicken, who was one of 10 deans and directors of graduate programs in the state to develop the grant proposal. "Its purpose, to train graduate social workers for services to the most needy, is a tremendous boost for social work in California and begins to address the growing need for position, Wilson says, "It gets me into a work area that I've never been in before, including instructional programs and facilities planning. Taking this interim position pulls me into academic affairs and opens a new career path for me.

"One of the big challenges is to obtain the necessary physical and personnel resources to do the job. The center is extremely crowded and somewhat understaffed to do what they are being asked to do. They do need additional instructional and administrative space," says Wilson.

As the new interim dean of the center, Wilson plans to "continue and expand relationships with local school personnel, particularly at the College of the Desert, community members, government agencies, businesses and local industries." He also feels it will be important to establish a closer working relationship with the San Bernardino campus, and he intends to explore opportunities for a variety of conferences, workshops and seminars which may be conducted by the Cal State campus through the Coachella Valley Center.

Another goal cited by Wilson is to "provide the best student services we can by conducting a needs assessment survey and calling on the main campus for assistance." Wilson notes that he will work toward making potential students in the area more aware of the educational opportunities available at the satellite campus.

Wilson's background in higher education provides a wealth of administrative experience for his new role. Prior to joining Cal State in 1983, Wilson was involved with student affairs management at U.C., Santa Cruz for eight years. He also worked in student services as a graduate student at UCLA. Wilson holds a Ph.D. in higher education and management from Ohio University, an M.A. in philosophy of education from UCLA, a master's degree in student personnel and administration from Colgate University in New York and an undergraduate degree in psychology from Gettysburg University in Pennsylvania.

highly trained professionals." In addition to Cal State, other participating institutions include UCLA, UC Berkeley and USC.

Glicken notes that the grant will be used to develop curricula that will enhance training for public sector social workers, especially those planning to work with extremely low-income and minority clients. "Almost all of our students will work in public or private nonprofit agencies when they graduate," says Glicken. Additionally, the grant will help improve the availability of funding for graduate students who will seek employment in public sector social service agencies.

The master's program in social work begins its second year this fall quarter. Currently, 100 students are enrolled in the program which has eight full-time faculty members.
Construction Update
One of two minor capital outlay projects initiated this summer has been completed, reports William Shum, director of physical planning and development. The new pedestrian walkway running from Northpark Boulevard to the Perimeter Road is now in use helping to promote campus safety along the east side of University Parkway.

Construction of a new electronic signboard, to be located at the entrance to campus on the northwest corner of Northpark Boulevard and University Parkway, is now underway. Basic trenching of the site is complete and electrical cables are in place. The board will consist of concrete panels and columns that are being pre-cast at an off-campus site to ensure that the sign is built to the accurate dimensions of design. Final assembly will be completed on campus.

For aesthetic purposes, the earth-tone colors planned for the sign will coordinate with those found in the university landmark sign located at the main campus entrance. The electronic signboard is anticipated to be operational by early October. It will be used to highlight major campus activities and events throughout the year.

In other construction news, work on the new classroom/student services/faculty office building remains on schedule. More details on this project will be forthcoming in the next issue of the Friday Bulletin. Members of the campus community are reminded that the construction site is a hard-hat area and are encouraged not to walk into the job site. If enough interest is expressed, tours of the site may be arranged through the Physical Planning & Development Office by contacting Shum at Ext. 5136.

Fall Extension Bulletins Available
Picture yourself with Extended Education this fall. The Office of Extended Education offers a variety of programs for professional development and personal enrichment. The fall Bulletin, outlining the courses offered this quarter, is now available in the Bookstore, Pfau Library and through the Office of Extended Education.

Once again, the Desert Studies Center offers several courses providing the opportunity to learn about the environment and to spend an enjoyable weekend outdoors.

The "Women in Management" program starts in this month. It is an intensive 10-month course geared for women who would like to upgrade current job skills, move up in their organization, change careers or re-enter the job market.

Personal enrichment courses include: "West Coast Swing Dance," "Ballroom Dancing," "Canoeing: Black Canyon" and "Re-Creating Yourself," a special class to help you become the person you want to be.

Save the Date
Mark your calendar for Saturday, Oct. 27, as Cal State celebrates 25 years of service with a "Silver Anniversary Gala" beginning at 6 p.m. at the National Orange Show Restaurant. Festivities of the black-tie-optional event will include stories of the university's early days, a slide show complete with original music composition, presentation of the new CSUSB alma mater and fight song, and dancing to the music of the Latin Society. The evening's cuisine will be provided by Joan Mayhew Catering.

"On behalf of the planning committee, I'd like to encourage members of the campus community to join us for this very special occasion," says Dr. Judith Rymer, vice president for university relations, who serves as co-chair of the 25th anniversary committee. "This is an opportunity to recognize those in our community who were instrumental in the development of Cal State and to celebrate our years of educational service to the region."

Admission to the "Silver Anniversary Gala" is $35 per person. Invitations will be distributed on Oct. 1.

Educator to Serve on National Council
School of Education faculty member, Dr. Barbara Flores, is one of two newly elected members of the Elementary Section Steering Committee of the National Council of Teachers of English. Her four-year term begins in November.

The council is a professional organization of teachers and supervisors of English language arts programs from elementary schools through university-level graduate schools. The overall goal of the council, which has over 12,000 members, is to improve the teaching of English at all levels of education. Flores, who joined Cal State in 1987, is one of eight elected members of the steering committee. She is a professor and coordinator of the bilingual education program.
Spirit Players Leading for Top Title
In Faculty & Staff Softball League

Paul "Golden Glove" Esposito (Career Development Center) helped lift the Spirit to a virtually uncontested top slot in the Faculty/Staff Softball League (FSSL), putting the Reds in the red with a recent 11-5 victory. Red's coach Ross Miyashiro (Transfer Services Center), reflecting on the loss which drops his team to the number four spot, said, "The brilliant defense of the Esposito father-son combination was just too much for us." He added, "And, the sun was in our eyes!"

The FSSL, created last spring for faculty, staff, families, alumni, friends and friends of friends, will finish its regular season on Sept. 13 and wraps up the year with a final appearance on Sept. 30 at the Annual Old-Fashioned Picnic. Fans, this is one event you won't want to miss. Rumor has it that Ernest Garcia, dramatic rendition of the National Anthem.

The commissioners, Pamela Langford (Development) and Ted Krug (Financial Aid), players and league umpires (still on strike) express thanks to the sponsors for their support of the FSSL.

Search Begins for Alumni Writers

The Alumni Affairs Office is looking for alumni writers who have published books, poetry, short stories or plays. The works are sought for a special library display slated for February, 1991 in conjunction with this year's Homecoming festivities.

Members of the campus community who know of such authors or have copies of their published works are encouraged to contact Mary Colacurcio, director of Alumni Affairs, at Ext. 5008. Or, submissions may be forwarded to AD-104.
Men's Basketball Assistants Named
by Dave Beyer, sports information director

CSUSB has named Mark Warren and Reggie Thompkins as assistant coaches for men's basketball. Both are former Coyote basketball players.

"I'm very happy to have two men like Reggie and Mark join my staff," says head basketball coach Jim Ducey. "Reggie has already proven himself with our J.V. program, and I know Mark has a load of basketball knowledge to impart to our players next season.

"Since we are in a rebuilding mode, having these men on staff will be a blessing. Our team certainly will be able to draw on what Mark and Reggie can offer through their experience. Besides, these two men represent the finest of the 'Coyote' tradition."

Warren is the only player from Cal State to be named All-American in the six-year history of the program. He attained that status twice, being named third team in 1988 and second team in 1989. Warren holds a total of 20 CSUSB team records and was twice named as the Coyote's "Most Valuable Player."

Thompkins, formerly Reggie Smith, played in 30 games for the Coyotes from 1986-88. He averaged 6.0 p.p.g. and 2.4 r.p.g while shooting 46.1 percent from the field for his two seasons in the CSUSB uniform. Thompkins has been a volunteer coach for two years with the junior varsity team.

Warren and Thompkins will be replacing Craig Williams, who relocated to Ventura County after the 1989-90 season. Williams had been Ducey's assistant coach for all six seasons at Cal State.

New Golf Coach Appointed
by Dave Beyer, sports information director

Fred Hanover of San Bernardino has been named as the university's head golf coach replacing Dr. Greg Price who resigned after the 1990 season.

Hanover, 28, will be attempting his first-ever coaching assignment by taking over the successful Coyote golf program. Upon turning professional in 1986, Hanover qualified for the regional finals of the PGA Tour. In 1987, he qualified for the Canadian Tour and was ranked 51st out of 150 golfers with a stroke average of 72.36. Achievements during that year included a second-place finish in the Central Coast Open, third place in the Embassy Suites Pro-Am and a spot in the "top 100" on the tour's money list.

As an amateur, Hanover's accomplishments ranged from winning the Citrus Belt League Championship (and second-place finish in the California Interscholastic Federation tournament in 1980) to several tournament titles. Included on that list was winning the San Bernardino County Amateur in 1984 and five titles on the Golden State Tour from 1985-86. He also was a U.S. Amateur qualifier in 1983 and 1986, a finalist at the Western Amateur in Benton Harbor, MI, and 10th-place winner at the Rice Planters Invitational in Charleston, SC.

Hanover is a local product, attending both San Bernardino High School and San Bernardino Valley College. He holds a B.A. in Political Science from U.C., Irvine, where he played on the Anteaters' golf team for two seasons, as well as one year each for U.C., Davis and SBVC.
CSU Names Doctoral Incentive Program Winners

Six out of 10 individuals applying for the CSU's 1990-91 Forgivable Loan/Doctoral Incentive Program through the Cal State campus will receive financial assistance to pursue their Ph.D.'s reports Dr. J. Cordell Robinson, associate vice president of academic personnel.

"It's the best and most creative program to come out of the Chancellor's Office as far as faculty recruiting is concerned. It will have a definite impact on the available pool of minority faculty members within the next four or five years," notes Robinson. "While there's not a commitment on the part of the institution or the winners to return to work for the CSU, there is certainly an implied commitment."

The program is geared to specifically assist ethnic minorities, women and disabled individuals in those academic fields where they are underrepresented within the CSU. In addition to financial assistance, the program provides participants with faculty support through a sponsorship program. "Faculty sponsorship," notes Robinson, "provides both moral and academic support while they go through the program."
