CONCERT CELEBRATES DANCE AND DRUMMING

West African and Caribbean dance comes to life on Saturday, Nov. 9, when the Afro-Caribbean Dancers and Drummers headline a fall concert presented by the University Dance Company. The 7:30 p.m. dance concert, in the Recital Hall of the Creative Arts Building, also will feature faculty artists and student performers.

Under the direction of Mari Lascoe, a dance instructor at Orange Coast College, the 10-member Afro-Caribbean Dancers and Drummers fuse island movements with folk and percussion instruments and an assortment of drums. "Choreographed, yet free in spirit, this group reflects the vast cultural diversity of the West Indies and our changing demographic climate," notes Lascoe, a recipient of two National Endowment for the Arts Choroep­graphic Fellowships.

In addition to performances by the guest artists, works by Physical Education faculty members Janys Antonio and Sarah Both will be presented by members of the University Dance Company, including student ballet artist Frank Haggard. "The concert will represent a wide variety of dance forms, including jazz, modern, ballet and street," says Both, who is the founder and co-director of the University Dance Company.

As part of their visit to campus, Lascoe and her company will conduct a master class in ethnic dance and drumming on Saturday, Nov. 9, at 11 a.m. in the small gymnasium located in Room 104 of the Physical Education Building. Both dancers and non-dancers are invited to participate in the class. A $5 fee will help fund upcoming concerts by the University Dance Company.

Tickets for the Saturday evening concert are $5 general admission; $3 for seniors and Cal State students. Tickets and additional information on the concert, master class or University Dance Company are available by contacting Both at Ext. 5351.

CAMPUS POWER OUTAGE SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY

Employees are reminded to secure all data processing and miscellaneous equipment that may be affected by the loss of power in preparation for a widespread power outage on Sunday, Nov. 10, reports James Hansen (Physical Plant). No electricity or air conditioning will be available during this time.

Hansen notes that the outage is necessary to connect electrical power to the new 500-ton chiller installation at the central plant and thanks the campus community for its cooperation during this unavoidable disruption of power. Any questions or concerns regarding the power outage may be directed to Hansen at Ext. 5166.

CAMPUS' LARGEST FACILITY

GROUNDBREAKING LAUNCHES

The roar of bulldozers and mounds of freshly turned earth set the stage as campus and community leaders joined together to mark yet another campus milestone—the official groundbreaking ceremony for the School of Business and Information Sciences Building. Almost on cue, heavy equipment operators quieted their machinery as the crowd of more than 150 spectators assembled on the crisp autumn morning of Oct. 25 to show their support for the university's major facilities expansion efforts.

"Excellence is a joint venture," remarked CSU Alumni Trustee R. James Considine, Jr., one of the visiting dignitaries on hand for the ceremony. "We have a fine faculty and a truly entrepreneurial spirit pervades in the Inland Empire as is evidenced here today." President Anthony Evans joined the trustee in this enthusiasm for the project. "This is a very special moment in the life of our university," he remarked. "We are delighted that progress is underway. We have a magnificent new facility that our people have earned and that our region deserves.

FAMOUS POET'S LAST DAYS

The final, turbulent weeks of poet Dylan Thomas' life will be staged at the university's theatre season opener, 'A Warring Absence.' He co-stars with student Jody Duncan, who plays Caitlin, Thomas' embattled wife. Faced with her husband's adultery, alcoholism and failing health, Caitlin struggles to save the couple's dying marriage. Duncan began writing the script for the play two years ago in a playwriting course. She is editor of the special effects magazine, Filmfect, and has written a book detailing the creation of the hit movie "Terminator 2."

Alumnus Doug Buckhout, cast as Thomas. Buckhout formerly appeared in musicals at the Mission Inn in Riverside and works with the Riverside Community Players.

Evening performances for "A Warring Absence" are Nov. 15-18 at 8 p.m. All shows will be held in the University Theatre located in the Creative Arts Building. "This is only an inspection." Ichna notes that a member of the campus' Public Safety staff will be on the scene in the event that a real emergency would occur during the inspection. Any questions on this activity may be directed to Ichna at Ext. 5179.

The event will feature several former Cal State students noted for their musical accomplishments.

"It's the maiden voyage for the new "AFFIRM CSUSB" support organization," says Dr. Loren Fielbeck, acting chair of the Music Department. The organization's goal is to provide assistance in scholarship development, as well as helping with other general support programs. Alumnus William Adams will have just finished the lead role in Monteverdi's opera, "Coronation of Poppea," when he appears on campus. Also performing is Sara Anson, who earned her master's in flute performance at the University of Southern California and performs professionally throughout the southland. LIFE-SPAN PROGRAM UNDERGOING FACELIFT

The renovation of the life-span program, which will help make students more employable.

The changes in the life-span program also will make it easier for students to complete their Ph.D. work at Claremont Graduate School. The university now is working to develop a closer relationship with Claremont. One Cal State student began attending there this fall.

Currently, the life-span track prepares students for careers in gerontology, developmental psychology, child, youth and family service programs; psychological services to senior citizens; and parent education.

"With the life-span program, you can have knowledge of the theoretical in applied issues from conception to death," Morton says.

Participants studying will complete a thesis with the assistance of the psychology faculty, ranked 13th nationally in research productivity by the publication "Professional Psychology." For more information on the program, contact Morton at Ext. 5597.

MAJOR MOVIE SERIES FEATURES $1 FLICKS

Attention movie lovers. Grab a friend and enjoy a flick now showing at local theaters for just $1, as part of the Student Union Program Board's (SUPB) new Major Movie Series. Under an agreement with Films, Inc., major feature films will be shown in stereo in the comfort of the Recital Hall, reserved Sonia Reagins (Student Union). The series got underway in October with such recently released titles as "Truth or Dare," "Soap Dish," and "Point Break" with both evening and afternoon performances.

"Terminator 2," starring Arnold Schwarzenegger, is next on the entertainment list with performances scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Although the series originated as a "service to students who cannot afford current theatre prices," Reagins notes that faculty and staff members are welcome to attend with one guest. Tickets are available at the door. The "success (of the series) has been astonishing," and we have a great response event that we're developing," says Reagins, who notes that attendance averages between 50-80 movie-goers per show. Proceeds from the series help fund programs on the Inland Empire.

Based on the success of the fall series, more $1 flicks are on tap for the winter quarter, including "Dead Again" and "The Fisher King," respectively scheduled to play in December and January. Both features will be shown at $1.50. More information on the series is available from Reagins by calling Ext. 5940.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS WILL EASE CONGESTION AT 215 FREEWAY & UNIVERSITY PARKWAY

- A $500,000 cooperative project between Cal-Trans and the City of San Bernardino's Engineering Division will benefit campus drivers with the installation of traffic signals at the intersection of the 215 freeway and University Parkway, reports Maria Loetsch (Physical Planning & Development). Loetsch, who serves on the city's Traffic Advisory Committee, says the signals are slated for installation in January or February, 1992, and that the project represents efforts by the city to relieve the severe traffic congestion in the area as well as enhance safety.

Existing lanes will be accommodated by a fully automated signal system with detectors for all traffic directions, including left turn arrows into freeway on-ramps. Loetsch reports that the city is in consultation with the safety of pedestrians crossing Northpark Boulevard. Sign alerting drivers that they are entering a school zone area will soon be posted by the city.

ANNUAL FUND DRIVE ADDS A TOUCH OF HUMOR

"Dear Mom and Dad, Someone else will be calling you for money this time. Please support CSUSB's programs with your generous gift in the 1991-92 Parents Fund." This clever message recently greeted parents of Cal State students, aged 24 and under, as they reached into their mailboxes to find a colorful postcard-sized, peel-off CSUSB decal. Likewise, a similar postcard/decal message, targeting alumni, uses humor with quotes such as "YES! I will send the 'Vene and send the cash immediately,' and "YES, I will send you my fingerprints." Signaling the beginning of this year's Annual Fund Drive, these direct-mail approaches attempt to provide a gift to potential donors and at the same time, appeal to sense of humor before they are asked to pledge financial support to the university. "Our main thrust for parents and alumni is to incorporate humor into the drive," says Mary Colacurcio (Alumni Affairs), who is coordinating development efforts for the Annual Fund this year. "We feel a request for money should be short and sweet. Humor is a great icebreaker and if it's humorous, we hope it gets the reader's attention." Two of these "teasers" currently are being followed-up with a phonathon conducted by student workers, who make personal appeals to prospective contributors. These gifts to Cal State's annual fund help to supplement the university's yearly operating budget, which is generated by state tax revenues. Unrestricted gifts help to meet a variety of needs not supported by state funding, such as student scholarships and faculty research and development. Restricted or designated gifts are used according to the donor's direction and often support specific schools and programs, athletics scholarships and other named scholarships.

As the drive progresses, faculty and staff will have the opportunity once again to participate. "With declining state revenues, private support for the university becomes increasingly important," says Colacurcio. "Our goal is to help sustain and enrich Cal State's academic, cultural and recreational programs." Additional information on the Annual Fund is available from Cal State by calling Ext. 5008.
