CELEBRATE HOMECOMING THIS WEEKEND

Faculty and staff can join the fun as students and alumni team up to present Homecoming 92. Centering on the theme of "CSUSB—The Next Generation," this year's Homecoming committee has been busy preparing a full slate of activities in celebration of the seventh annual campus/community event. "We have put together an array of events that would involve everyone," notes Mary Colacurcio (Alumni Affairs), who chairs the Homecoming committee. "Our goal is to involve all students, campus groups, faculty/staff, alumni and anyone else interested in Cal State. We think people will really have a good time, and we hope everyone gets involved."

Homecoming festivities begin today with the traditional Club Fest from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Lower Commons patio area, featuring food, fun, games and, of course, the popular car parade beginning at noon. Club Fest participants also can meet members of the men's and women's basketball teams, scheduled for introduction between the Coyotes and the Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo Mustangs round out Homecoming festivities. General admission to the dance, which is $3 or $5 with a basketball ticket stub, is $5 per person. The Alumni Association holds its first-ever chili dinner in the Upper Commons. If you haven't purchased a ticket yet, contact Mary Colacurcio in the Alumni Affairs Office at Ext. 5008 by 5 p.m. today.

The celebration continues tonight with the excitement of Division II basketball competition. Fans won't want to miss the action when the women's team takes on Cal State, Los Angeles at 5:45 p.m., followed by the men's game against powerful Cal State, Bakersfield at 8:00 p.m.

Following the games, a Homecoming Dance is being sponsored by the Black Student Union from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Upper Commons. Rent your staff while a DJ spins popular top-40 tunes during this final event of Friday's Homecoming festivities. General admission to the dance is $5 or $8 with a basketball ticket stub. "CSUSB—The Next Generation" continues on Saturday at 5:30 p.m., when the Alumni Association holds its first-ever chili dinner in the Upper Commons. If you haven't purchased a ticket yet, contact Mary Colacurcio in the Alumni Affairs Office at Ext. 5008 by 5 p.m. today.

As part of the event, officials from Southern California Edison Company will present the university with a rebate check in recognition of a number of energy-saving devices installed in University Hall. DeMauro says these funds will be used toward other energy-efficiency projects on campus, such as additional classroom light switch sensors and the installation of more high-sodium, exterice light fixtures. The rebate, according to DeMauro, is specially significant in view of the fact that utility budgets are now the sole responsibility of each campus in the CSU.

In another construction news, work on the new School of Business and Information Sciences Building is proceeding slightly ahead of schedule. The foundation is in place, and all underground utility connections will be finalized during the next three weeks. Erection of the steel frame is now underway and should be completed by April. While this work continues, members of the campus community are encouraged not to enter the construction site, which is a hard-hat area. Construction vehicles delivering steel materials to the site will enter the campus from the east by crossing the perimeter road south of the Physical Education Building. Again, please use caution when traveling near the job-site area.

The expansion of the Student Union Building is slated to begin in March. M.L. Hausen Company of San Jacinto, CA, is the apparent low bidder on the project, which could come in one-quarter of a million dollars under budget if their $3.76 million bid is approved by the Chancellor's Office. According to William Shum (Physical Planning & Development), the university is proposing using funds from the bid savings to upgrade the building design, bringing the structure in compliance with the American Disabled Act. If approved, automatic electric doors would provide easier access through the main entrance, and upgraded door hardware would be installed in the restroom areas. Both upgrades are designed to provide easier access by disabled individuals.

Shum also reports that a secondary electrical feeder has been installed on campus, providing an additional back-up system in the event of an emergency. With the secondary system, individual building repairs can be made without disrupting service to other campus buildings and should eliminate the many electrical shortages that have occurred during the past few months.

On the parking scene, a design architect is being recruited to plan a 100-space addition to the staff parking lot west of the Children's Center. This project will also provide additional handicap parking spaces north of the Foundation Building. A campus-wide parking lot "signage" project goes out to bid that month and could begin in April. This project will provide identification signs for all campus parking lots and aisles.

The Pfau Library addition project is expected to go out to bid in March, pending notification from the state's Department of Finance. All working drawings and agency reviews for this project are complete. Construction drawings and agency reviews for the expansion of the Physical Education Building also are complete. Plans are currently being reviewed by state architects and fire marshals. Shum anticipates that plans for this project will be presented to the State Public Works Board this April.
Manuel Castro is the newest member of the University Advisory Board. A group of prominent community leaders employed as an anesthesiologist at St. Mary are being choreographed by Sarah Boeh. Castro says he "enjoys a more routine life," says Castro. "I enjoy working with a wide range of culturally diverse individuals."

Prior to joining the university, Castro was employed for four years as a deputy sheriff with the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department. While he likes his last job, Castro says he "enjoys a more routine schedule now," which allows him more time with his family. During his off-duty hours, Castro says spending time with his family is his number one priority. He resides in San Bernardino with his wife and two children and claims tennis and golf as his hobbies.

MUSICAL FEATURES MEMORABLE TUNES

Song and dance will abound as the musical comedy, "The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd," opens Feb. 28 in Recital Hall. Written by Anthony Newley and Leslie Bricusse, the play enjoyed a good measure of popularity during its original staging in the 1960s, largely due to the song score. "Oozy" and "Sir," played by Cal State theatre students Erik Pirfitt of Antelope Valley, CA, and Michael Lake from the low desert area, are "wrapped up in a game in which the rules are made—and often changed—by Sir. The play's title is taken from just such an instance, when Cocl^ says "You're good. It's a good game."" We're hoping that people will leave the theatre singing," says Dr. Kathryn Ervin (Theatre Arts), the play's director. The play afforded a comedy, but it's not entirely funny," says Castro. "I enjoy working with a wide range of culturally diverse individuals."

"Cal State is a small city within itself," says Castro, who joined the university in early January. "Right now, I'm trying to learn the campus and the surroundings."

Like other members of the campus' public safety team, Castro's primary responsibilities revolve around protection and crime prevention. "We try to make the students and employees feel safe and try to protect them from outside negative elements. We try to make life more comfortable for them," says Castro.

"NEW FACE ON CAMPUS"

Dr. Taewoong Kim has joined the University Advisory Board. A resident of Apple Valley, CA, Kim is his number one priority. He resides in San Bernardino with his wife and two children and claims tennis and golf as his hobbies.

Care-givers, significant others, family members and friends, as well as individuals living with A.I.D.S., are welcome to join the group as regular participants or drop in on an informal basis...
