CALIFORNIA STATE STUDENTS GOING TO SING BACH AT CARNEGIE HALL

by Andrea Loggins, student intern

Members of Amadeus, a select music group from CSUSB, will go to Carnegie Hall this June and perform Johann Sebastian Bach’s “Magnificat” under the direction of John Rutter, a composer who is well known for his many works, including “Gloria” and “Requiem.”

The opportunity to perform at Carnegie Hall comes by invitation only and was issued by Stephen Gothold, a Whittier College professor who was the original conductor for this concert. Six other choruses will be joining the one from Cal State and will be accompanied by the New England Symphonic Ensemble.

Says Cal State choral director, Tamara Harsh (Music), “Many of these students have never been out of the state, so going to New York and having the opportunity to perform under a famous director like John Rutter will be quite an experience for them.”

Of the 14 students who will share the privilege, three are from San Bernardino, Shane Churchill, Delivera Doyle, and Jennifer Hsu; three are from Redlands, Amy Allen, Joshua Hanafin, and Bob Pratt; and two are from Riverside, Erin Anne and Michael Guzorek. Bitcher resident Julie Day, Crealine resident Michelle Wiltain, and Teresa Sheltka from Barstow are also participants, as are Laila Bahgavi from Citrus, Tracy Chapman from Alta Loma, and Andrea Meyer from Rancho Cucamonga. The trip will cost $1,100 per person; the students are holding fund raisers to help finance the trip.

LAO REPUBLIC EDUCATION, SOCIAL REFORM EXAMINED

by Cindy Murphy, alumna intern

Dr. Rosalie Giacchino-Baker (Second-year and Vocational Education), who has conducted extensive research on Lao people’s Democratic Republic ethnic groups represented in California public schools, will talk about educational and social changes in the republic on April 12.

The free lecture will take place in the Panorama Room of the Lower Commons at noon.

Giacchino-Baker spent one year in the Lao people’s Republic. Her international experience also includes study and work in France, Micronesia, England, Belize, China, and Thailand.

Second language and multicultural education are her specialized areas of study. Giacchino-Baker also visited Cambodia and Vietnam while in Southeast Asia. She has edited a book, Stories from Laos, Polkules and Cultures of the Lao, Hmong, Khmu, and Yao-Mien. And Giacchino-Baker has written several articles based on her research in the Lao people’s Democratic Republic.

The Spring International Lecture Series sponsored by International Student Services is supported by the National Science Foundation. For more information, call the International Student Services Office at Ext. 5193.

COMET HUNTER DAVID LEVY APPEARS HERE

by Andrea Loggins, student intern

Levy comet-hunting team. Chunks of Shoemaker-Levy 9 slammed into Jupiter at 135,000 miles per hour last summer.

When Levy isn’t out skywatching, he’s at the University of Arizona, where he is a senior instructorist in the ARTIST program. He has also been an observer with the Palomar Asteroid and Comet Survey and was an assistant discipline specialist for the International Haley Watch in the mid-to-late '80s.

Levy’s discoveries and vivid, romantic portrayals of the night sky have put his name on the pages of USA Today and Time and his face on the cover of Mielean.

A Montreal, Canada native, Levy was educated at Acadia University and Queen’s University. He was a boyhood friend of Klaus Bursch, acting dean (Natural Sciences), who made the arrangements for the speech sponsored by Phi Kappa Phi, the School of Natural Sciences and the The Intellectual Life and Visiting Scholars Committee.

His free talk begins at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Events Center. For more information, call Ext. 5577.

STUDENT'S ALERT ACTIONS LEAD TO THIEVES' ARREST

Two thieves responsible for 10 of 30 car break-ins last month were arrested after a Cal State student identified them for campus police.

Stopped and arrested along Northpark Boulevard the evening of March 1, the burglars had been spotted leaving the area where the student had parked his car. The student followed the suspects, who were driving a beige Monte Carlo, after he noticed his car radio missing. By coincidence, the suspects headed west on Northpark and drove near the campus police station, but pulled over and turned around when they saw a car trailing them. The student took down the license number and went on to the station to report the incident.

The two thieves’ method of punching and prying open car door locks with a screwdriver, says Steve Nowicki, acting director (Public Safety), helped campus police determine that these were the men responsible for many of the February car thefts, which shot up by 15 times the amount of the previous month. Eleven burglaries remain unsolved. Another car burglar, Nowicki says, was apparently working the campus at the same time.

It was while the suspects were being questioned separately last week they began accessing each other of greater responsibilities for the crimes. Eventually, they led campus police to the flood control area around Little Mountain Dr. and Northpark, where they had hidden CD players, stereo equipment and tapes. Up until that time police had no physical evidence to connect them with the burglaries.

Campus police say the student’s detailed description of the suspects and their vehicle was vital in making the quick arrests.

MUSICAL SPOOF SPICES UP DINNER CONCERT

The hilarious spoof “Orpheus in the Underworld” will be one of the highlights at the 20th Annual Renaissance Banquet being presented April 27-29 and May 4-6 at Cal State. All shows are at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Events Center.

Performed by the Cal State Chamber Singers, Jacques Offenbach’s “Orpheus” includes the famous “can-can” music, a revolt by the Olympian gods and goddesses, and a romp through the underworld. The banquet will be served by the performers themselves.

For 19 years, Loren Fitebeck, chair (Music), directed and produced the annual affair. This year he has turned director’s duties over to Tamara Harsh (Music), who is director of the university’s choral activities.

Reservations can be made through the Music Department at Ext. 3859. The reservation deadline is April 15. Cost for the banquet is $30 per person.

60 SCHOOL REPS COMING TO FAIR

More than 60 school district representatives will be on hand at the Fifth Annual Careers in Education Job Fair taking place April 1 in the university’s Student Union Events Center. Held from 1-5 p.m., students, alumni and the general public are all invited to attend the free event.

“All the school districts have openings,” says Pat Rodgers-Gordon, director (Career Center). They’ll be looking for teachers, counselors and other education professionals at all levels K-12, she adds.

And this year, says Rodgers-Gordon, more school districts from northern and central California will be represented at the fair.

For more information, call the Career Center at Ext. 5250.

THE BULLETIN BOARD

LIFE BLOOD

Tuesday, April 18 is the day the Blood Bank will be accepting blood donations to the Student Health Center. Faculty and staff will have an opportunity to replenish the campus’s blood supply by making an appointment for the 10:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. drive. Those with appointments receive priority at registration. Release time has been authorized. Call Ext. 5241 for an appointment or more information.

TWO FOR YOU

Take advantage of the two At Work Weight Watchers meetings left on the spring schedule March 30 and April 6 from noon-1 p.m. in AD 103. Both meetings are free.

Twenty-one members are in the group now and as long as there are 16 members another 10-week session will begin the week of April 10. Call Karen at Ext. 3018 or E-mail her at kgray.

FOUR DAYS OF GLORY AND INDEPENDENCE

Not only will the campus be closed on Tuesday, July 4, but Administrative Council members have approved the proposal to close the campus on July 3 as well. One little catch. Save some CTO, vacation or personal holiday hours because you’ll need to use them to make up for the July 3 day off. If you don’t have sufficient balances in any of these accounts, you’ll need to put in extra work before July 3 to prevent any loss in pay. Call Human Resources if you have any questions.

LATINO AWARDS BANQUET

The Tenth Annual Scholarship Banquet sponsored by the Association of Latino Faculty, Staff and Students will be held April 22 in the Upper Commons. Cost for the 6:30 p.m. event is $25 or $10 for the dance only. For ticket information, call Norma Romero at Ext. 3924.
